Pirates See Cards' Last Stand

Today

Their Party Needs Them.
Be Ready For War.
Mexico Kills Quickly.
That Wedding Guest.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE.

Copyright, 1927.

MR. VARE from Philadelphia and Mr. Smith from Chicago will be sworn in as senators, whatever may happen later.

Republican high morality would bar them, because too much money was spent in their campaigns. But that was some time ago, before the Dempsey fight. And besides, Republicans have the thinnest kind of Senate majority and would have none, if they threw out Smith and Vare.

The two wandering sheep will be sworn in, the Senate organized, the Republican morality will make up its mind.

The fact that Pennsylvania and Illinois knew all about the money spending, before the men were elected, makes both cases difficult.

GENERAL SUMMERALL tells the country to be ready for war and warns "three months' delay may be fatal."

In Europe it is said, quite calmly, that "Germany will probably not go to war with Poland before 1932."

IF the world goes to war again it will prove its insanity. But it has done that often. This country doesn't want war, but sometimes it can't be avoided.

The United States should be ready, in the air, and below the water especially. And there should be a separate cabinet officer, with complete control under the President, of the national air force, interested in nothing but that air force.

MEXICO administers punishment swiftly. On Monday Mexican troops killed forty bandits, caught two and hanged them immediately. That was at Las Cruces. At Tepic, fourteen bandits captured alive were immediately lined up in the public square, shot dead, then hanged to trees with warning placards on each body.

They allow no seven years for Sacco-Vanzetti agitations in Mexico.

SEEKING precedents for President Coolidge's "I do not choose," Senator Gillett finds one in the Victorian era, Lord Palmerston, in a bitter political fight with Lord John Russell said, "I do not choose to be rubbed into the dirt by Johnny Russell."

AN earlier use was Coleridge's in "The Ancient Mariner." You remember the wedding guest who "beat his breast when he heard the loud bassoon," and the succeeding statement, "the wedding guest sat on a stone, he could not choose but hear, and thus spake on the ancient man, the bright-eyed mariner."

President Coolidge used the best of English, it couldn't be improved on, and it is absolutely definite.

THE big automobile fight, expected when Ford starts rolling out his new cars, will be a friendly enemies' fight, according to Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors.

Ford will make a good car, of good value per dollar of price, and will sell a great many of his new cars. General Motors will continue to sell great numbers of its cars, in the various price fields.

THE real fight will be, as it should, to increase quality, while cutting cost of production, and giving the public the benefit of lower costs.

Another pertinent fight is to make the public understand that a motor is as much a necessity as feet and hands.

A busy man should have his car always at hand, to save his time. A family needs two cars, at least. And that means no extravagance, for time is worth saving and unlike horses, cars do no eat, when idle.

THIS country needs 30,000,000 cars now, and following five years' life for each car, that means six million new cars a year indefinitely. There will be plenty of business for the man able to make the right car for that car's right price.

JOHN A. GARCIA, able Chicago engineer, says America has false ideas about Russia. Wall Street will show interest when it

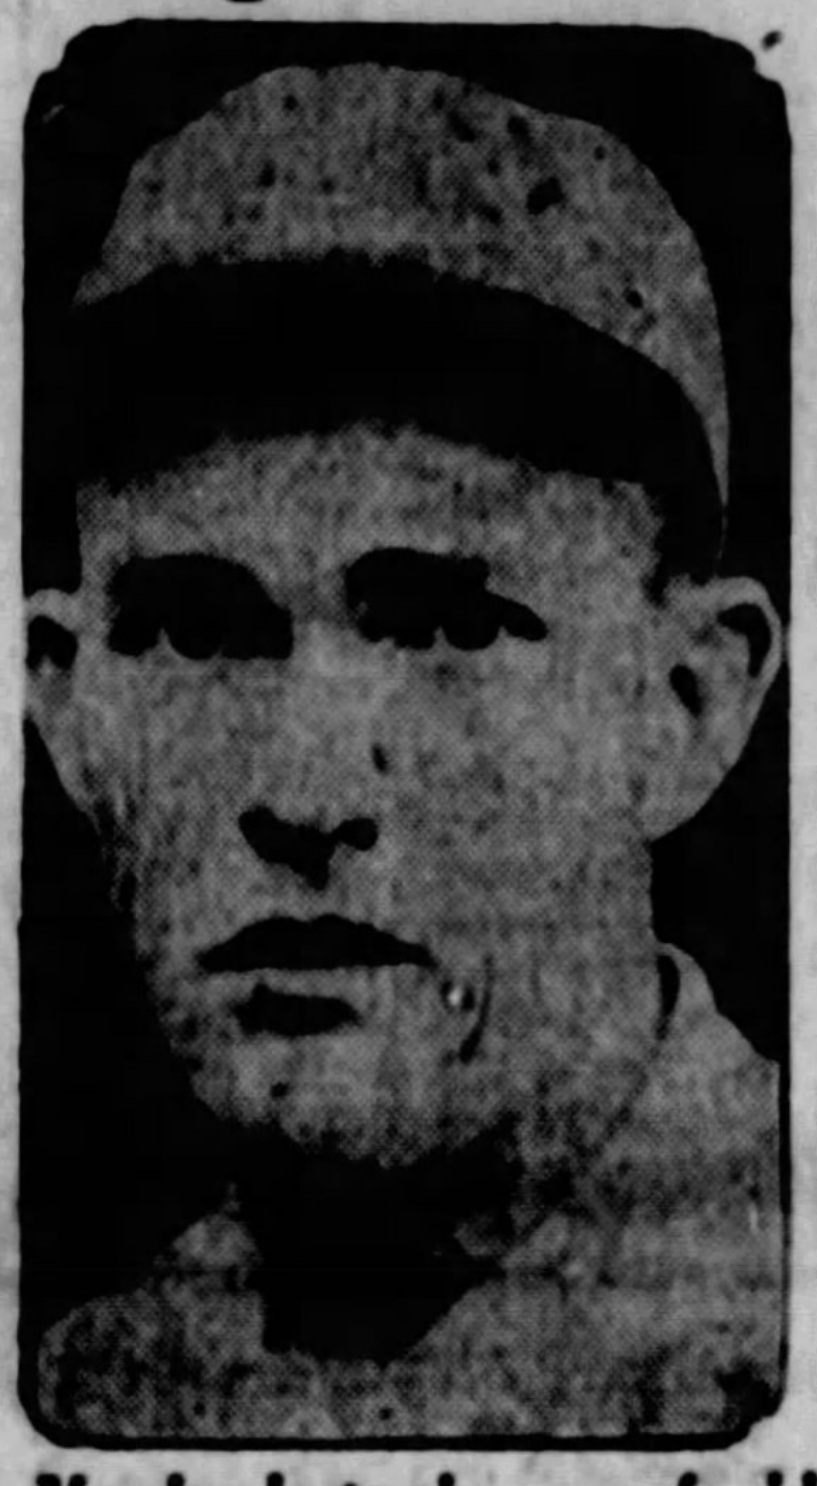
Yanks Will Lead Pirates, Rogers Hornsby Thinks



NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—"I am pulling for the Pirates to beat the Yankees in the world series," said Rogers Hornsby, captain of the New York Giants, "but somehow I don't like the Pittsburgh club against a team which will keep everlastingly at soaking."

The same goes for the entire Giant team who are pulling for the National League winner to beat the Yanks, but who are afraid the power of Huggins' team will crush Pittsburgh.

WOMAN KILLS MATE

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Sept. 28.—Mrs. Ina Whitlatch, 42, a wan, nervous woman, the mother of three children, was charged with the murder of her husband, William R. Whitlatch, 43, before Alderman William E. Marshall today.

Whitlatch died early today in New Castle Hospital, 24 hours after he had slumped to the floor of the Whitlach kitchen, three bullets in his chest.

WIDOW COLLAPSES

"My God!" exclaimed Mrs. Whitlatch as Alderman Marshall read the charge against her. She collapsed into the arms of two deputy sheriffs.

Jealousy was the motive which police advanced for the murder that left William, 12, and Mary Whitlatch, 14, fatherless. Mrs. Whitlatch, married twice, had a son, now 22, by the first marriage.

Whitlatch was a fireman on the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburgh Railroad.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 29.—Donie Bush and his Pirates will have to be content with watching others cavort about the ball orchard in the event that the weather clears up for a ball game in Cincinnati this afternoon. The Cardinals and Reds were to have staged their last meeting of the season yesterday, but they were rained out, so the contest was moved back to this afternoon.

When the Buccos landed here yesterday they figured on getting a work-

REPORT SIGHTING OF OCEAN FLIER'S BODY

HARBOR GRACE, Newfoundland, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The body of a man with a helmet on the head similar to those worn by aviators had been seen floating between Bell Island, in Conception Bay, and this town, on the mainland, according to a report current here today.

The story as told here was that two men had reported that while going from the mainland to Bell Island in a motor boat they had seen the body and had tried to recover it with their boat hook, but that the heavy swell on the ocean surface prevented this.

The rumor immediately started speculation among the residents of Harbor Grace as to whether the body might have been that of one of the airmen lost on the several flights between Newfoundland and Europe this year, which ended in the loss or disappearance of the planes.

While being prodded with a revolver, Richard Meffie, 26, of 4514 Center avenue, a Yellow taxicab driver, early this morning turned over $12 to two highwaymen who had him drive them to a dark spot on Watsonia boulevard before staging the holdup.

The bandits hired Meffie's cab in the lower North Side. After robbing him they instructed him to drive on and disappeared in the opposite direction. Meffie notified police.

Four Plead Guilty To Breaking Boy 'Acrobat's' Arm

"Allez oop," brought a fall and broken arm to Charles Helpert, 13, of 198 Bell avenue, Carnegie. Four playmates in an amateur display of acrobatics September 17 at East Carnegie, faced Judge James R. Macfarlane in Criminal Court tody on a charge of assault and battery. They were: John Medwit, Joseph Ugavick, Stanley Kruger and William Balinski, each 17, and they entered pleas of guilty. They were tossing the Helpert boy in the air and on the fifth toss allowed him to fall to the ground, breaking his arm, it was charged. Sentence was suspended.

Broke, Show Girls See Hope in Reynolds

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—One hundred hungry chorus girls today anxiously awaited the return to New York of Richard J. Reynolds, 21-year-old heir to a fifth of the $50,000,000 Reynolds tobacco fortune.

Reynolds disappeared September 16 and was found Tuesday night in a chop suey restaurant at St. Louis, under the name of Joy K. Fleet.

The chorus girls were in the cast of the musical show, "Half a Widow," which Reynolds was alleged to have backed four weeks. The show floundered at the Waldorf Theater here after a week's run.

After $110,000 had been spent on the show, Conrad S. Layson, of the Wally Gluck Productions, said the play had to close with salaries and bills due aggregating $13,500. The 10 principals as well as the chorus girls were unpaid.

"We don't know whether Mr. Reynolds will sponsor a revival of the show," said Layson, "but several of the needy chorus girls could use the week's salary due and there are the musicians and others on the payroll."

Carter Tiffany, vice president of the Reynolds Airway, Inc., of which Reynolds is president, said he was awaiting the youth's return to discuss the future of the aeronautical concern, in which Reynolds has invested close to $750,000 since he attained his majority last April.

FOSTER MOTHER GIVEN BABE

again last week, asked the court for the return of the child, now that he had a home and a wife.

"It's a good old world after all," Judge Moore said in announcing his decision. "And it is good to see these people wanting this child. Mrs. Rickley has given the child a mother's care and the court feels she should be allowed to continue that care, with visitation periods for the father."

In tears, Mrs. Rickley handed Juanita to her father for a farewell kiss, and when Eugene Layton, 5, brother of the child, and Juanita caressed, Judge Moore and veteran court attaches were deeply moved.

Layton, who broke down while testifying, told of how his young wife had died six days after Juanita had been born. And he told of a baby weighing 22 ounces at birth and being kept in an incubator to keep life in those ounces. He told that he had asked Mrs. Rickley to rear the baby in her modest home in Jack's Run road and he knew, he said, that Juanita had been given "good care."

CYCLONE RIPS UP VILLAGE

12 of the town's 30 residences were blown away, eight other houses were badly damaged and the Frisco Railroad depot and freight house were twisted to pieces.

Twenty children on the second floor of the brick schoolhouse and 40 on the first floor were thrown into a panic when the cyclone struck. As the roof was blown away they rushed for the doors.

Although the walls of the building crumbled around them, all are reported to have escaped safely. The escape is considered miraculous.

Mrs. Sam Graham was severely injured when a rafter at her home struck her on the head. Many other women received minor cuts and bruises.

A passenger train outran the storm and narrowly escaped being wrecked as it passed over a switch which a minute later was a twisted mass of rails and ties.

The railroad operator at Rudy patched his wire and first news of the storm came over the railroad's wires here this afternoon.

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 29. — (AP.) — The conviction of Helen H. Gardener, federal official, author, lecturer and feminist, that there is no inborn mental inferiority in the female sex is upheld by science. Conclusions from an exhaustive study of her brain, completed two years after her death, were published today.

Mrs. Gardener advanced the claim as an equal rights champion and in order to substantiate it she bequeathed her brain to Cornell University for research. She died in 1925.

"In the structure of her own brain Mrs. Gardener has presented abundant evidence that the brain of a woman need not be inferior to that of a man of equal rank," said Dr. J. W. Papez, curator of the Wilder brain collection at the university, who conducted the research. "In its entire organization it reveals a wealth of cortical substance or gray matter that is only equaled, but not exceeded, by the best brains in the Cornell collection, which includes those of a number of doctors, professors, lawyers and naturalists."

Mrs. Gardener's brain was compared with the brains of 20 other men and women. Many of the areas in her brain, particularly those found to "deal chiefly with the functions of vision, learning, language, thought and expression," were of unusual development.

TEX RICKARD ACCUSED

ecutives of the show house, were arrested on similar charges.

Simultaneously warrants were issued for six persons alluded to as "John Doe," and announcement was made that the matter would be laid before the federal grand jury.

Hearing on charges of conspiring to violate the interstate commerce statute, prohibiting the transportation, receipt and display of fight pictures, was set for October 12 by Commissioner Krull.

An investigation was commenced to determine whether Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney are financially interested in the motion pictures taken of the Chicago fight. If they are shown to be connected with the films, the fighters also will be arrested and tried, government agents declared.

That the government means business in its prosecution was indicated in the fact that telegraphic warrants were sent to Chicago and New York immediately after the theater raid, with instructions for Rickard's immediate arrest.

For the first time since the anti-prize fight picture statute was enacted the defendants in this case are facing a felony charge, rather than a misdemeanor complaint.

"MR. RICKARD PRESENTS"

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—An outbreak of motion picture exhibitions showing the Tunney-Dempsey championship fight started government machinery at work up and down the Pacific Coast today in an effort to find out how the films reached the West and to fix responsibility for their being shown. There was a flurry of arrests, investigations, warnings and preliminary skirmishing between exhibitors and government attorneys.

In San Francisco W. P. Gullen, theater manager, and Sol Pincus, publicity agent, were held under bonds of $500 each on charges of "conspiracy to transport, ship and receive." The maximum penalty for the offense is a $10,000 fine and two years in prison. In Los Angeles a dozen theatrical and business men were ordered to appear before the federal grand jury. One clew which the federal officials followed was a poster in front of the show house bearing the significant phrase, "Mr. Rickard presents." Prosecutors said they would ask the arrest of Tunney and Dempsey as well as of Rickard if it could be proved they had had a hand in causing exhibition of the films.

Advices from the office of Tex Rickard in New York yesterday said no warrant had been received. In Mr. Rickard's absence his secretary pointed out that George Getz of Chicago had promoted the fight and said that Mr. Rickard had nothing to do with the pictures.

POST EVICTION APPEAL BONDS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The United Mine Workers today posted bonds totaling $382,500 in appealing eviction cases instituted by the Vesta Coal Company against 515 striking miners occupying houses of the company at its mines in the upper Monongahela Valley. A bond of $750 was required in each case to appeal from the decision of the county court in refusing to strike off the eviction judgments. Pending a decision on the appeal the striking miners continue possession of the houses which the company, a subsidiary of the Jones and Laughlin Steel Corporation, sought for non-union workmen. The action of the miners' union in appealing the eviction suits was the same as taken in thousands of other like suits in various county courts in the Pittsburgh district in fighting efforts of operators to place their mines on a non-union basis.

CONVICT MAN IN WIFE'S MURDER

Albert Leonard Chenowich of Baltimore was found guilty of murder in the second degree in Criminal Court for the killing of Marie Angello, 22, his common law wife, who was slain with a knife at their home in Stowe township, February 12. Chenowich was sentenced to serve from 10 to 20 years in the Western Penitentiary by Judge Richard W. Martin.

MOP MAKERS CALLED TO TRADE CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29. — The Federal Trade Commission has called a trade practice conference of map manufacturers and jobbers with the view of eliminating unfair trade practices, it was announced. LOST AND FOUND

JOSEPHINE KUPTAS

Josephine Kuptas, 3, of 75 South Seventeenth street, wandered away from home yesterday in search for "goodies" at the candy store. 50 ARE FACING AREST

tectives started to serve immediately, were made out for officials in the Second, Third and Twenty-second district of the Fourth Ward and the Ninth, Fifteenth and Seventeenth districts of the Third Ward.

Votes of three independent judicial candidates were raised from 55 to 151 votes each in the official recount of the Sixth district of the Eighth Ward, it was reported. The recount gave Frank Patterson 157 instead of 92; James H. Gray 252 instead of 101, and Frank Gollmar 140 instead of 60.

Similar discrepancies will be found, it was charged, in the tallies of the First, Fourth and Fourteenth districts of the Twenty-first Ward and the First, Second and Third districts of the Fourth Ward, ballot boxes of which were ordered impounded in Common Pleas Court today on petition of attorneys for Controller Charles C. McGovern.

As many as 50 election officials in a score or more of districts may be arrested on criminal informations which will follow these revelations, it was indicated this afternoon by representatives of the Pennsylvania and Allegheny County Elections' Associations, who are checking the counts and furnishing District Attorney Gardner with evidence on which to base informations.

Two election clerks in the Seventh District, Third Ward, surrendered to police today and posted bond for hearings on charges of fraud, false count and misdemeanor sworn to in informations made yesterday by Gardner. They are Lawrence Levanson and Angelo Marino.

Three other officials of the same district were at liberty under $2,500 posted yesterday on similar charges. They are Carmen Bevilacqua, judge; Michael Balestra, inspector, and William Spad, clerk.

A grand jury investigation of election frauds at this time would hamper the efforts now being made to punish violators of the law and to block future attempts to stuff ballot boxes or manipulate the count, representatives of the Allegheny County Election Association stated today.

"The thing to do now is to open the boxes in districts where fraud seems to have been committed, secure a recount and vigorously prosecute those responsible for any violations uncovered," Thomas J. Walker, secretary of the Pennsylvania association, said, adding that the body is satisfied with the co-operation accorded them by the judges of the returning board and District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner in their efforts to get action.

SAFE-CRACKING ORGY SEEN

McKeesport police, having turned prophets, are today preparing for various and sundry safe-cracking jobs which they believe will be executed in the near future. The police predicted the jobs on receipt of a report from the Vang Construction Company, which is building the new Duquesne-McKeesport Bridge, that 75 pounds of dynamite, two cans of rock powder and several feet of electric wire had been stolen from a storehouse at Riverton by thieves who broke the lock to the storehouse door.

Monongahela Valley Business Men Hit

CHARLEROI, Pa., Sept. 29.—The result of the coal strike in the Monongahela valley is felt to serious extent by the business men of this region, according to a survey made by James H. Tasker, editor of an eastern coal trade paper. The mills are working at from 40 to 75 per cent capacity and the public buying power is sorely deficient. Charleroi, Monongahela, Monessen, Donora, Allenport, Brownsville and Elizabeth, on account of the diversity of industry, are said to be weathering the business depression, but in other towns business is paralyzed.

It was learned that from 3,000 to 4,000 miners have emigrated to the non-union fields of West Virginia since the strike and hundreds of other miners have found other jobs. Of the miners who went on the strike, it is declared, comparatively few are idle. The emigration of the union miners is said to be the cause of the stagnation in business.

"Russia," says Mr. Garcia, "is one of the richest countries in the world." It is perhaps the richest potentially of all.

THE War Department controls Lake Michigan's waters and decided that Chicago houses must have water meters, to make them economical, and show how much water they use.

Meters were installed, in the Tenth Ward, but yesterday Mayor Thompson ordered the meters torn out. He feels that he, not the War Department, in peace time, should run Chicago.

COMPLICATIONS may result, of two kinds: First, the War Department has power to deprive Chicago's sanitary district of Lake Michigan's water, by cancelling the existing permit. That would be bad.

Then again, Mayor Thompson's enthusiastic friends say he will be in the White House soon, and able to throw out the Secretary of War.

CONTINUE DRIVE OF SYMPHONY

Enrollment of members for the 1927-28 season of the Pittsburgh Symphony Society continued at the headquarters, 422 Bakewell Building, today following the decision of the society's executive board to extend the membership campaign until October 15.

The extension was made effective primarily to permit enrollment of a large number of group memberships being arranged by various clubs and organizations throughout the city, and, since this was necessary, officials agreed to accept additional associate members.

The major effort of the campaign workers during the remaining period will be directed to securing new contributing members paying dues of $100 or more, now the most vital factor in insuring success and permanency for a city symphony orchestra. Associate members pay dues of $15, $10 or $5 and all members will receive two tickets free to each of the three concerts to be given by the society this season.

Those who were present at the executive board meeting, held at the home of Mrs. William Maclay Hall, 711 Devonshire street, besides Mrs. Hall, president, were: John F. Casey, Mrs. Daniel M. Clemson, Mrs. Harvey Childs, Bert Floersheim, Mrs. Thomas Jones Hilliard, Wilmer Jacoby, William Larimer Jones, Jr., David I. McCahill, Mrs. Edmund W. Mudge, Mrs. Ambrose N. Diehl, Richard S. Rauh and Edward Specter, manager of the society.

See Bridge and Tunnel In Next Bond Issue

Indications that the Ferry street bridge and twin tunnels to the Sawmill Run and Banksville roads will be included in the next bond issue were seen today in the favorable manner in which the county commissioners accepted the formal request of the South Hills and Chartiers Valley Tunnels and Ferry Street Bridge Association.

A large delegation, headed by T. C. Jenkins, president of the Association, and representative of the business, political and domestic life of the southwestern part of the county, made formal pleas for the improvement at a hearing with the commissioners this morning.

Chief among the reasons advanced was that Pittsburgh is in need of a home community and that, because of its inaccessibility, 64 square miles in the Chartiers Valley is unimproved. The building of the bridge and boring of the tunnels, it was said, would open up this vast territory for home and factory use. Subsequent increase in valuations also was cited.

Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong declared the projects probably would have been included in the last bond issue but for the necessity of building new bridges at the Point and at Thirty-first street. He declared the commissioners believed in the project and advised the delegation to stir up more sentiment in its favor.

PHIPPS, STEEL HEIR, TO MARRY

Fiery Cross Set at Home Of Slain Doctor's Widow

CLUE FOUND IN JERSEY MURDER

By International News Service.

SOUTH VINELAND, N. J., Sept. 29—While detectives were searching in Baltimore for Willis Beach, 52-year-old poultry farmer wanted in connection with the murder of Dr. William Lillendahl, 72, retired physician, a spectacular demonstration was staged early today in front of the home of Mrs. Margaret Lillendahl, the slain man's widow, held under guard as a material witness in her husband's shooting.

Shortly after 1 o'clock this morning five unidentified men drove up to the Lillendahl home here and placed a five-foot wooden cross on the lawn. The cross was ignited, and the bright light of the blaze shone into the darkened windows of the house. Mrs. Lillendahl arose, switched on a light in her bedroom, took a brief look at the fiery cross and then extinguished the light.

The state trooper who was assigned last night to guard the home of Mrs. Lillendahl, who is ostensibly free under $25,000 bond as a material witness in the case, did not bother the five men. When the torch had been applied and the cross was blazing fiercely they climbed into the car and drove off.

The Ku Klux Klan is known to have been active for some months past in this section of New Jersey.

"One missing link," according to Prosecutor Louis Repetto, prevents him from presenting the case to the grand jury today. The prosecutor stated he expected to have his chain of evidence completed shortly, however, and would ask the grand jury for indictments as soon as possible.

RISKS LIFE IN CRASH

THEA RASCHE

The German aviatrix, disregarding her own danger, brought her plane down on swampy ground near Quincy, Mass., in order to avoid hitting spectators on the landing field. Miraculously, she was unhurt. The landing wheels stuck, the plane tipped up and the propeller was smashed. Miss Rasch's motor had gone dead 2,000 feet up.

HEIR TO PHIPPS STEEL MILLIONS TO WED

By CHOLLY KNICKERBOCKER,
Universal Service Society Editor.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Today the Phipps family is firmly entrenched in society, and the wealth of the clan can be counted high in the millions.

The story of the social and financial rise of the Phippses is one of the great romances of America's steel aristocracy, the tale of the elevation to fame and fortune of a humble Philadelphia shoemaker's son.

Little did that Quaker City cobbler think, some 80 years ago, that the annoncement of his great grandson's engagement would be heralded as the most interesting bit of New York social news of 1927. Which again proves that truth is stranger than fiction, for the elect thrilled this morning with the very important announcement that John H. Phipps, son of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Phipps, of 1 Sutton place south, and "Westbury House," Westbury, L. I., has asked pretty Elinor Klapp to share his name—and fortune.

John, now in his senior year at old Eli, is a grandson of the venerable Henry Phipps, whose father migrated from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh in the days preceding the Civil War, thus enabling Henry to form a neighborhood friendship with an equally poor boy, "Andy" Carnegie—a friendship that later won millions for the two lads and made them dominant factors in the early era of the steel industry. The betrothal is announced by Elinor's parents, the Eugene Klapps of Park avenue. Elinor was introduced to society two years ago.

If present plans are adhered to, "Jack" and Elinor will not be married until next summer, after he has graduated from Yale.

Kissed Own Wife, Blames Moon Not Liquor

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Sept. 29.—Some old boy got $3,500 damages for kissing his own wife publicly. His defense at the trial was that it was mistaken identity and that the moon drove him to it. Give him credit for one thing. He didn't lay it onto drink.

WILL ROGERS

Seven governors of states are in Denver arguing and fussing over who owns the Colorado River. Mexico, where the river goes to, of its own free will, ain't saying a word.

DRY RAIDERS BAG EIGHT STILLS

Federal prohibition agents today raided a house at 625 Duquesne avenue, East Canonsburg, and reported confiscating a 100-gallon still, 100 gallons of moonshine and 60 barrels of mash. Salvatore Domonic was arrested and held under $1,500 for Washington county authorities. The confiscated material was turned over to the county.

Four men and two women faced hearings here today as a result of a day of intensive activity on the part of federal prohibition agents yesterday.

The agents conducted nine raids, seized seven stills from 50 to 500 gallons capacity, three automobiles, more than 14,000 gallons of mash, 330 gallons of monshine and large quantities of wine and home brew.

The places visited were the Stuttler farm, Frankstown road, where they say a 1,000-gallon distillery was in operation; a house at 601 Poplar way; a garage at 898 Campbells Run road, near Carnegie; a house in Brentwood; a garage at 404 Washington street, Dravosburg; a home brew plant near Dravosburg, and a house at 210 Oakland avenue.

Those under arrest are: Albert C. Wick, 30, Cleveland; Sam Qursimo, 31, of 306 Lexington avenue, Carnegie; Paul Hullenhower, 26, of 210 Fifth avenue, McKeesport; Kate Arthur, 50, and Arletta Forsyth, 32, of Dravosburg; Michael Ridge, 22, of 524 Frazier street.

LOSE $20,000 DAMAGE SUIT OVER BOY'S DEATH

A verdict for the defendants was rendered by a jury in the case of Daniel and Jennie Mastascusa against the borough of Hays and the South Pittsburgh Water Company for the death of their son, John, August 24, 1924. It was alleged that the car in which the boy was riding struck a water plug, overturned into the creek and killed the boy. The plaintiffs had brought suit for $20,000 damages.

FONCK PLANS TRANSATLANTIC AIR-LINE SERVICE

Hopes to Have Fleet Flying in Spring

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Regular passenger and mail service by air between America and Europe, a vision born of the recent transatlantic aerial triumphs, will be routine reality next spring if the plans of Capt. Rene Fonck materialize.

The French war ace said he has unlimited financial backing both in the United States and France for his project, which would put six planes into commercial cross-seas service and obtain added revenue from mail contracts for which he is now negotiating with the United States Government.

Fonck would pilot one of the planes, several of which would be Sikorskys like the one he had planned to use in the abandoned transatlantic and coast-to-coast nonstop flights.

The transatlantic commercial planes would fly between New York and probably Paris, following a southern route with a stop at the Azores, and a northern route with stops at Newfoundland and Ireland. Courses would depend on weather conditions. At first flights would be made without passengers to demonstrate the safety of the project.

The French aviator said he would sail for Paris Saturday and hoped to return here within six weeks and place orders immediately for the building of two more Sikorsky planes.

SOHO BOY GANG SOUGHT AS FIREBUGS

Police are searching for boys of the Soho district who last night made another attempt to fire the store of the Pittsburgh Jobbing and Auction House, at 2139 Fifth avenue. Fire Chief Henry F. Schwartz, who inspected the building, which is a one-story structure filled with paint and other inflammable material, ordered Cohen to keep the aisles of the store clear at night instead of piling his street display material into them after business hours.

SOHO NURSERY ASKS AID

To meet the expense of the nursery, an appeal to the public was made by the Soho Day Nursery, 2408 Fifth avenue, in letters sent throughout the city for subscribers, according to Mrs. George S. Jenks, treasurer of the nursery.

With the enlargement of the field activities, a fund of approximately $4,000 for maintenance is required annually, it is said.

The nursery was organized 17 years ago to provide a place where working mothers in the Soho and other districts could leave their children during working hours.

DOTY PARDONED; MUST SERVE IN FRENCH ARMY

PARIS, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—President Doumergue today signed a pardon for Bennett J. Doty, American, who had served part of an eight-year prison term for desertion from the French Foreign Legion while on active service in Syria last year.

Doty, whose home was in Memphis, Tenn., will be under war ministry orders to rejoin the first regiment of the foreign legion at Sidi-Bel-Abbes, Algeria. He has 49 months yet to serve of his original five-year enlistment under the name, "Gilbert Clare."

It is understood that he left the prison this morning en route to Marseilles whence he will leave on the first available transport for Algeria to begin serving the remainder of his enlistment.

The war ministry, it is reported, felt that while a pardon could be allowed under the circumstances, any release from his enlistment oath would tend to have a bad effect on discipline and that he must fulfill his contract.

WOMAN IS RUN DOWN BY AUTO

Stepping from behind a truck parked in Penn avenue at Lambert street early today, Henry Fruecht, 71, of 504 Kelly avenue, Wilkinsburg, suffered internal injuries when he was struck by a car driven by Herbert Adrion, 22, of 5209 Kincaid street. At Pittsburgh Hospital it was said Fruecht's condition was serious.

Mrs. Julia Smith, 212 Denniston avenue, is in a serious condition in the same hospital from injuries suffered when she was run down by a machine driven by G. A. Little, 17, of 346 East End avenue, at Hamilton avenue and Lambert street, last night.

Struck by an automobile in Bigelow boulevard near Thirty-third street, William Shaw, 40, of 3449 Getty street, was severely injured. He is in West Penn Hospital.

The oldest man in the world still works at 145 years. He was born when George Washington was president. Read about him in the Magazine Section, Sunday Sun-Tele.

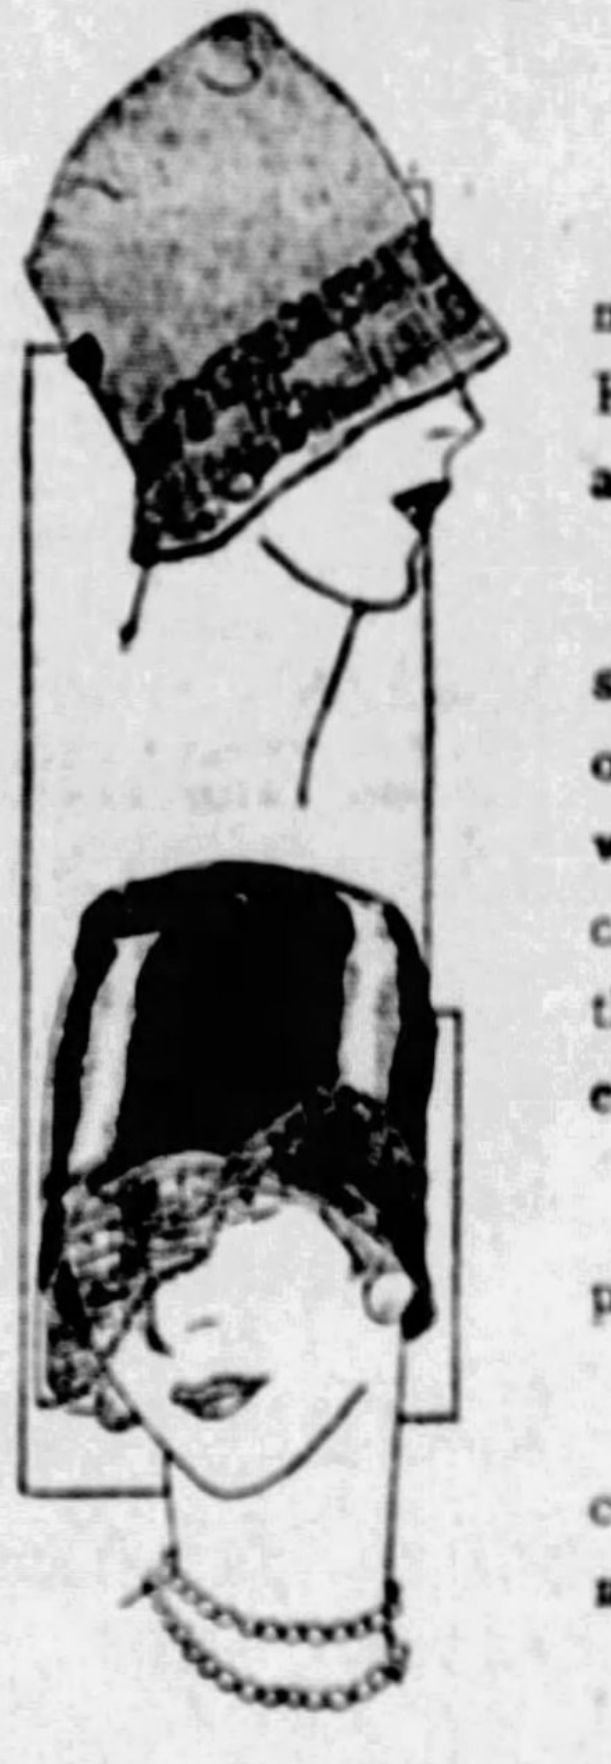
Veiling One's Purpose Is So Chic



The world need not know the full meaning that one's eyes express, for Fashion has brought back the veil as a subtle, shadowy mask.

In the Millinery Salons it is shown on hats of soleil velours and of velvet, in tulle as fine as a cobweb, in net, or in lace with a delicately traced pattern. Sometimes the veil keeps the secret of but one eye, again it shadows them both.

It is seen on hats of the finer type, priced $22.50 to $28.50.

Veils will be attached to hats, according to individual order, by the millinery workrooms.

Formal Coiffures

for Formal Occasions

The approaching social season demands that we forego the nonchalance and informality which has prevailed in dress throughout the vacation season. And the most important dictate of Fashion concerning evening coiffures, is that the smart woman will not appear with bobbed hair at formal functions.

For the woman who does not want to give up her comfortable bob entirely, the "French Part" offers a solution. This is a tiny, thin layer of naturally curly hair, made on no other foundation than a narrow, hand-drawn part. In the shade which exactly matches your own hair, it will blend with the hair around your face, producing an entirely natural hair-line. And it is long enough so that the ends may be gathered into a tiny knot at the back of the head. $40.00 and $50.00.

FUND LACK DELAYS DRY AGENTS' CIVIL SERVICE

Will Hold Jobs Until Congress Acts

By M. L. RAMSAY,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Reorganization of the prohibition bureau to bring its active duty personnel of 2,500 under Civil Service will be delayed for six months, it was learned at the Civil Service Commission.

Except for 132 administrative positions, the commission will be unable to complete the examination until Congress provides funds some time after it assembles in December. Several months will be required after that to give the remaining tests and prepare lists of eligibles.

This assures the present agents, investigators, attorneys and others that they will hold their jobs, without competing for them, until next spring. Although under the reorganization law the merit system was to become effective October 1, all incumbents will on that date automatically become civil service "temporary appointees."

Those who fail to win permanent appointments in the spring may be retained for not more than 30 days after the commission certifies eligibles for their jobs.

Qualified candidates for the 132 administrative posts will be named "late in the fall," the commission announced. The dry high command then will make permanent appointments of 25 prohibition administrators, 50 assistant administrators and 50 deputy administrators, with five field supervisors, a chief supervisor and an assistant chief.

Twenty-two trained men are making rigid character investigations of applicants for these posts, the last step in this part of the commission's work.

DEATH ROLL

William L. Taylor Funeral.

William Leech Taylor, president of Taylor Brothers Furniture Company, Penn avenue, who died yesterday, will be buried tomorrow after funeral services at 2:30 p. m. in the Third United Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Taylor was prominent in church and prohibition circles here.

Born 76 years ago in Finvoy in Northern Ireland, the son of Robert and Mary Leech Taylor, Mr. Taylor, at 17, settled in Parker City, Pa.

In 1880 he entered a partnership with his brother, Robert F. Taylor, in crude oil production. A year later they gave up the oil business, when prices dropped, and entered the shoe business. In 1886 Mr. Taylor invested the firm's capital in a patent washing machine, and when failure again threatened, Mr. Taylor invested his remaining capital in furniture, the field in which he achieved success. After the death of his brother in 1890, Mr. Taylor operated the business alone.

In 1903 Mr. Taylor married Mary Denham, of Wellsville, O., the daughter of Alexander and Mary Denham.

He was an active member of the Third United Presbyterian Church, Shady and Northumberland avenues. He was president of the New Covenant Mission, director of the United Presbyterian Board of Publications, and a member of the Historical Society of Western Pennsylvania.

Mr. Taylor leaves a brother, John L. Taylor, of Seattle, Wash.; a niece, Ellen Connolly, with whom he made his home, and a nephew, S. J. Taylor.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Immekus.

Mrs. Elizabeth W. Immekus, 80, 1109 Bradish street, the olrest voter in the Seventeenth Ward, and better known as "Grandma" to hundreds of residents of the South Side, where she lived 78 years, died at her home yesterday. Mrs. Immekus, who was the mother of Deputy Coroner Frank J. Immekus, missed her first vote in the primary last week because of the first serious illness of her life. She was born in Baltimore, May 17, 1847, the daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth Lucas.

Mrs. Immekus came to Pittsburgh with her parents in 1849. In 1867 she married Frank W. Immekus, a shoemaker, who died in 1921, four years after the celebration of their golden wedding anniversary.

She was the oldest member of St. Michael's Catholic Church, Pius street. She remembered the horrors of cholera in Pittsburgh, and each year she attended the anniversary services in St. Michael's Church.

She leaves six children, Frank, Henry and Fred Immekus, Miss Theresa Immekus, Mrs. Clara Dittman and Mrs. Edward Alberth; 12 grandchildren, 13 great-grandchildren and one brother, the Rev. Ferdinand, C. P., of St. Michael's.

PIMPLES ON FACE AND NECK

Hard and Red. Burned Badly. Cuticura Heals.

"My trouble first started with a few pimples and in about a year my face and neck were covered with them. The pimples were very hard and red and a few of them festered. They burned so badly that I was afraid to wash my face. I lost a good many nights' rest on account of the irritation. The trouble lasted a year and nine months.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in about three months I was completely healed." (Signed) Stephen Komlosi, Jr., 229 Furman St., Trenton, N. J.

"Plays Are Not Written, But Re-Written," Says Mack; "Mix Perspiration With Ink"

By GEORGE SEIBEL

GEORGE SEIBEL

The hardest-working man in all Pittsburgh this week is Willard Mack, playwright. Every day for hours he has been at the Nixon Theater, sitting at a little table front center of the stage, with his back to the curtain which is down, working away at his new play, "Weather Clear, Track Fast."

The playgoer thinks the play is written and that's all of it. Willard Mack and every playwright knows different. As he said the other day, "Plays are not written, but rewritten." Very much like a suit of clothes: It has to be tried on to see whether it fits, and then maybe it has to be altered very considerably. After you wear it and encounter the first rain, it may shrink so that you throw it away.

"There's no mystery about playwriting," said Mr. Mack, who is as affable as he is energetic. "You just take some real people with their troubles, and put them on the stage. Then let them get out of their troubles the best way they can. Help them a little, by shutting them up when they talk too much. Call them back when they want to wander off in some other direction. What they do and say is your play. All the playwright has to do is to write it down."

There was a bit of a twinkle in Mr. Mack's eyes as he gave away this simple formula.

"Yes," he added, "I forgot something. You must use a peculiar sort of ink. It's one-third ink and two-thirds perspiration. If it doesn't work, add some more perspiration."

Mr. Mack has been watching every scene, weighing every word, at rehearsals and during the performances. A cut here, a change there, and the people who saw his comedy Monday may not recognize it Saturday.

Being an actor as well as an author gives Mr. Mack an advantage in dealing with the actors. They will take suggestions and advice from him—they know he knows. But he himself is different from the great majority of writers and actors. He will take advice from anybody and use it if it's good.

"Why," he said, "the ushers are among the best critics in the world. Why shouldn't they be? And the property man—if I was looking around for a good collaborator, I'd take the property man."

"Do actors write better plays than people off the stage?" I asked him.

"That's an embarrassing question to ask of a modest man who is an actor and has written a number of plays," Mr. Mack replied. "But I'll have to defend Shakespeare and Moliere—they were both actors and wrote plays of some merit. On the other hand, there we have Bronson Howard, Gus Thomas and Eugene Walter—they were all reporters. There are no rules. It's all in knowing life and showing it to other people in the audience. If you see it clearly, and can get others to see it clearly, you can write plays worth while. Even then you must have sympathy, a fellow-feeling, if you want to inspire it in the audience."

"Which is your best play, Mr. Mack?"

"I haven't written it yet, and don't think I ever shall. When I do I'll quit, and produce no more. But I suppose I'll die first—from insomnia or writer's cramp."

And he went back to the work of rewriting "Weather Clear, Track Fast," with his back to the lowered curtain.

Shirley Mason Has Three Fathers On Screen

Shirley Mason has three fathers—an Italian, a Jewish and a Scotch one. Not in real life, of course, but in the Columbia special, "Sally in Our Alley," in which she plays the starring role. Her adopted fathers are Paul Panzer, William H. Strauss and Alec B. Francis, who form a triple entente to take care of Sally when her mother dies. With the addition of these three players the cast of "Sally in Our Alley" is completed. Richard Arlen, "loaned" from Paramount, plays the masculine lead and Kathlyn Williams and Florence Turner have the other important roles in the production.

COMING SHOWS ANNOUNCED

"Out of the Night," coming to the Nixon next week is a mystery comedy written by Harold Hutchinson and Margery Williams. James Spottswood has the leading role. The seat sale opened today.

The first scene of "Just Married," the final attraction of the George Sharp Production Stock Company, opening in the Pitt next Monday night, takes place on a pier just before two principal characters embark on their honeymoon. Anne Forrest will be the little bride.

The most arresting thing about "Blossom Time," which returns to the Alvin next Monday night for a final engagement of one week only, is that its true music and its pure love story have prevailed in this jazz day.

In the Davis next week Lew Hearn, assisted by Ethel Grey, will present a humorous skit, "When Men Leave Home." On the screen will be "The Joy Girl," which stars Olive Borden.

"Sliding" Billy Watson, in his new Columbia wheel vehicle, "The Flying Dutchman," will come to the Gayety next week, with Alfaretta Symonds in the leading role.

"High Life," next week's burlesque in the Academy, offers a number of specialties, one of which is a dancing act by the LaMarr sisters.

Next week in the Harris the vaudeville will be topped by Tiny Chita and her Cheaters in a miniature musical comedy skit, "Flaming Youth." The screen presentation will be "The Gingham Girl," with Lois Wilson in the stellar role.

Bert Lytell stars in "Alias the Lone Wolf," which will be shown on the screen in Loew's Aldine beginning Monday. There also will be five vaudeville acts.

Lon Chaney, in "Mockery," his new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer vehicle, comes to the screen in the Penn next week.

Stan Stanley, offering extemporaneous funmaking, one of the features in the Sheridan Square, is making his initial appearance in East Liberty. Screen features for the week will be "The Joy Girl," with Olive Borden and "A Sailor's Sweetheart," with Louise Fazenda and Clyde Cook.

Dorothy Mackaill in "The Crystal Cup," will be on the Grand screen next week.

On the screen in the Olympic next week will be Dolores Costello and John Barrymore in "When a Man Loves." Featured on the Vitaphone will be "The Radio Winners."

BLONDE ENTERTAINER IN FIRST PART ON SCREEN

Lorraine Eddy, blonde recruit from the stage and from a night club in Los Angeles, is making her screen debut as leading woman in "Oh, Mummy," a new Paramount-Christie comedy, starring Jimmie Adams. Al Christie, the comedy producer, observed her dancing and invited her to join his company.

Playgoers of Old Like Today's, Films Find

Back in the days of antient Greece, people came late at the theater, stumbled over their neighbor's feet in the dark and annoyed the actors and the patrons just as they do now. Also, husbands clambered out between the acts to "sneak" a drink against their wife's wishes, and women wore gowns to attract attention and paid less heed to the show than to the glances of those surrounding them.

All this and a great deal more is being incorporated into scenes in the Spartan amphitheater for First National's picturization of "The Private Life of Helen of Troy."

The company is now working in the Grecian amphitheater built for the picture, with several hundred extras participating.

Maria Corda, as the beautiful Helen, Lewis Stone as her tired business man husband who would have stayed home in preference, and Ricardo Cortez as Paris, visiting prince, are the principals in the scenes.

WILLARD MACK

MR. MACK, author of many successful stage dramas, in Pittsburgh in connection with his latest work, says anybody can write plays. That's true, and everybody does, but few of them succeed, whereas winning is a habit with Mr. Mack.

Chicago is trying to cure its criminals. Police are experimenting with strange results. Read about it in the Magazine Section, Sunday Sun-Tele.

Screen Version of Stage Play for Dolores

Warner Bros. have announced the acquisition of the screen rights to Rita Johnson Young's stage play, "Glorious Betsy," which will serve as the next vehicle for Dolores Costello. The picture will be a costume drama of Napoleonic days and will be the first of the series of productions in which Miss Costello will be seen this year. A supplementary announcement of importance is word from Jack L. Warner, in charge of the production, that he has assigned Alan Crosland to be the director of "Glorious Betsy." Crosland was megaphone chief on Miss Costello's most popular picture, "When a Man Loves" and "Old San Francisco."

LONDON'S SEA YARNS TO GO ON SCREEN

Tiffany Productions have selected the following players for their picturization of the Jack London sea story, "The Ghost Ship": Dorothy Sabastian, Montagu Love, Tom Santschi, Pat Harmon, Ray Hallor and Bud Duncan. This is the first of a group of four Jack London sea stories to be delivered by Tiffany Productions for the 1927-1928 season.

SHAKESPEAREAN TALKS ARE TO OPEN TONIGHT

Dr. Edward Howard Griggs will give the first of a series of six Shakespearean lectures in the North Side Carnegie Music Hall tonight, under the auspices of the Phoebe Brashear Club, of which Miss Aida Bishop is president.

Dr. Griggs will open his series with a talk on the humanity of Shakespeare. Other subjects of the course which will be given on each successive Thursday of October will include The Ethical Awakening, "The Merchant of Venice;" The Individual and the State, "Julius Caesar;" The Tragedy of Guilt, "Macbeth;" The Final Attitude, "The Tempest."

Your Smile and Your Teeth
Anna Q. Nilsson

How Movie Stars Get Their Dazzling Teeth

A NEW method in clearing up cloudy teeth, in giving "off-color" teeth an almost dazzling whiteness has been found.

Famous movie stars use this way before going on a scene. That's why movie smiles glisten so. Leading dentists urge it widely. For it protects the teeth and firms tender gums.

It works by removing a dingy film that forms on your teeth, and dulls them by absorbing discolorations from food, smoking, etc. A slippery film you can feel with your tongue; and that invites germ growth, decayed teeth and gum troubles.

Old-type dentifrices failed to remove it successfully. That's why brushing thus far failed you.

Beneath it are the teeth you envy in others. Remove it, for your own sake. One's whole appearance changes as clear, white teeth come.

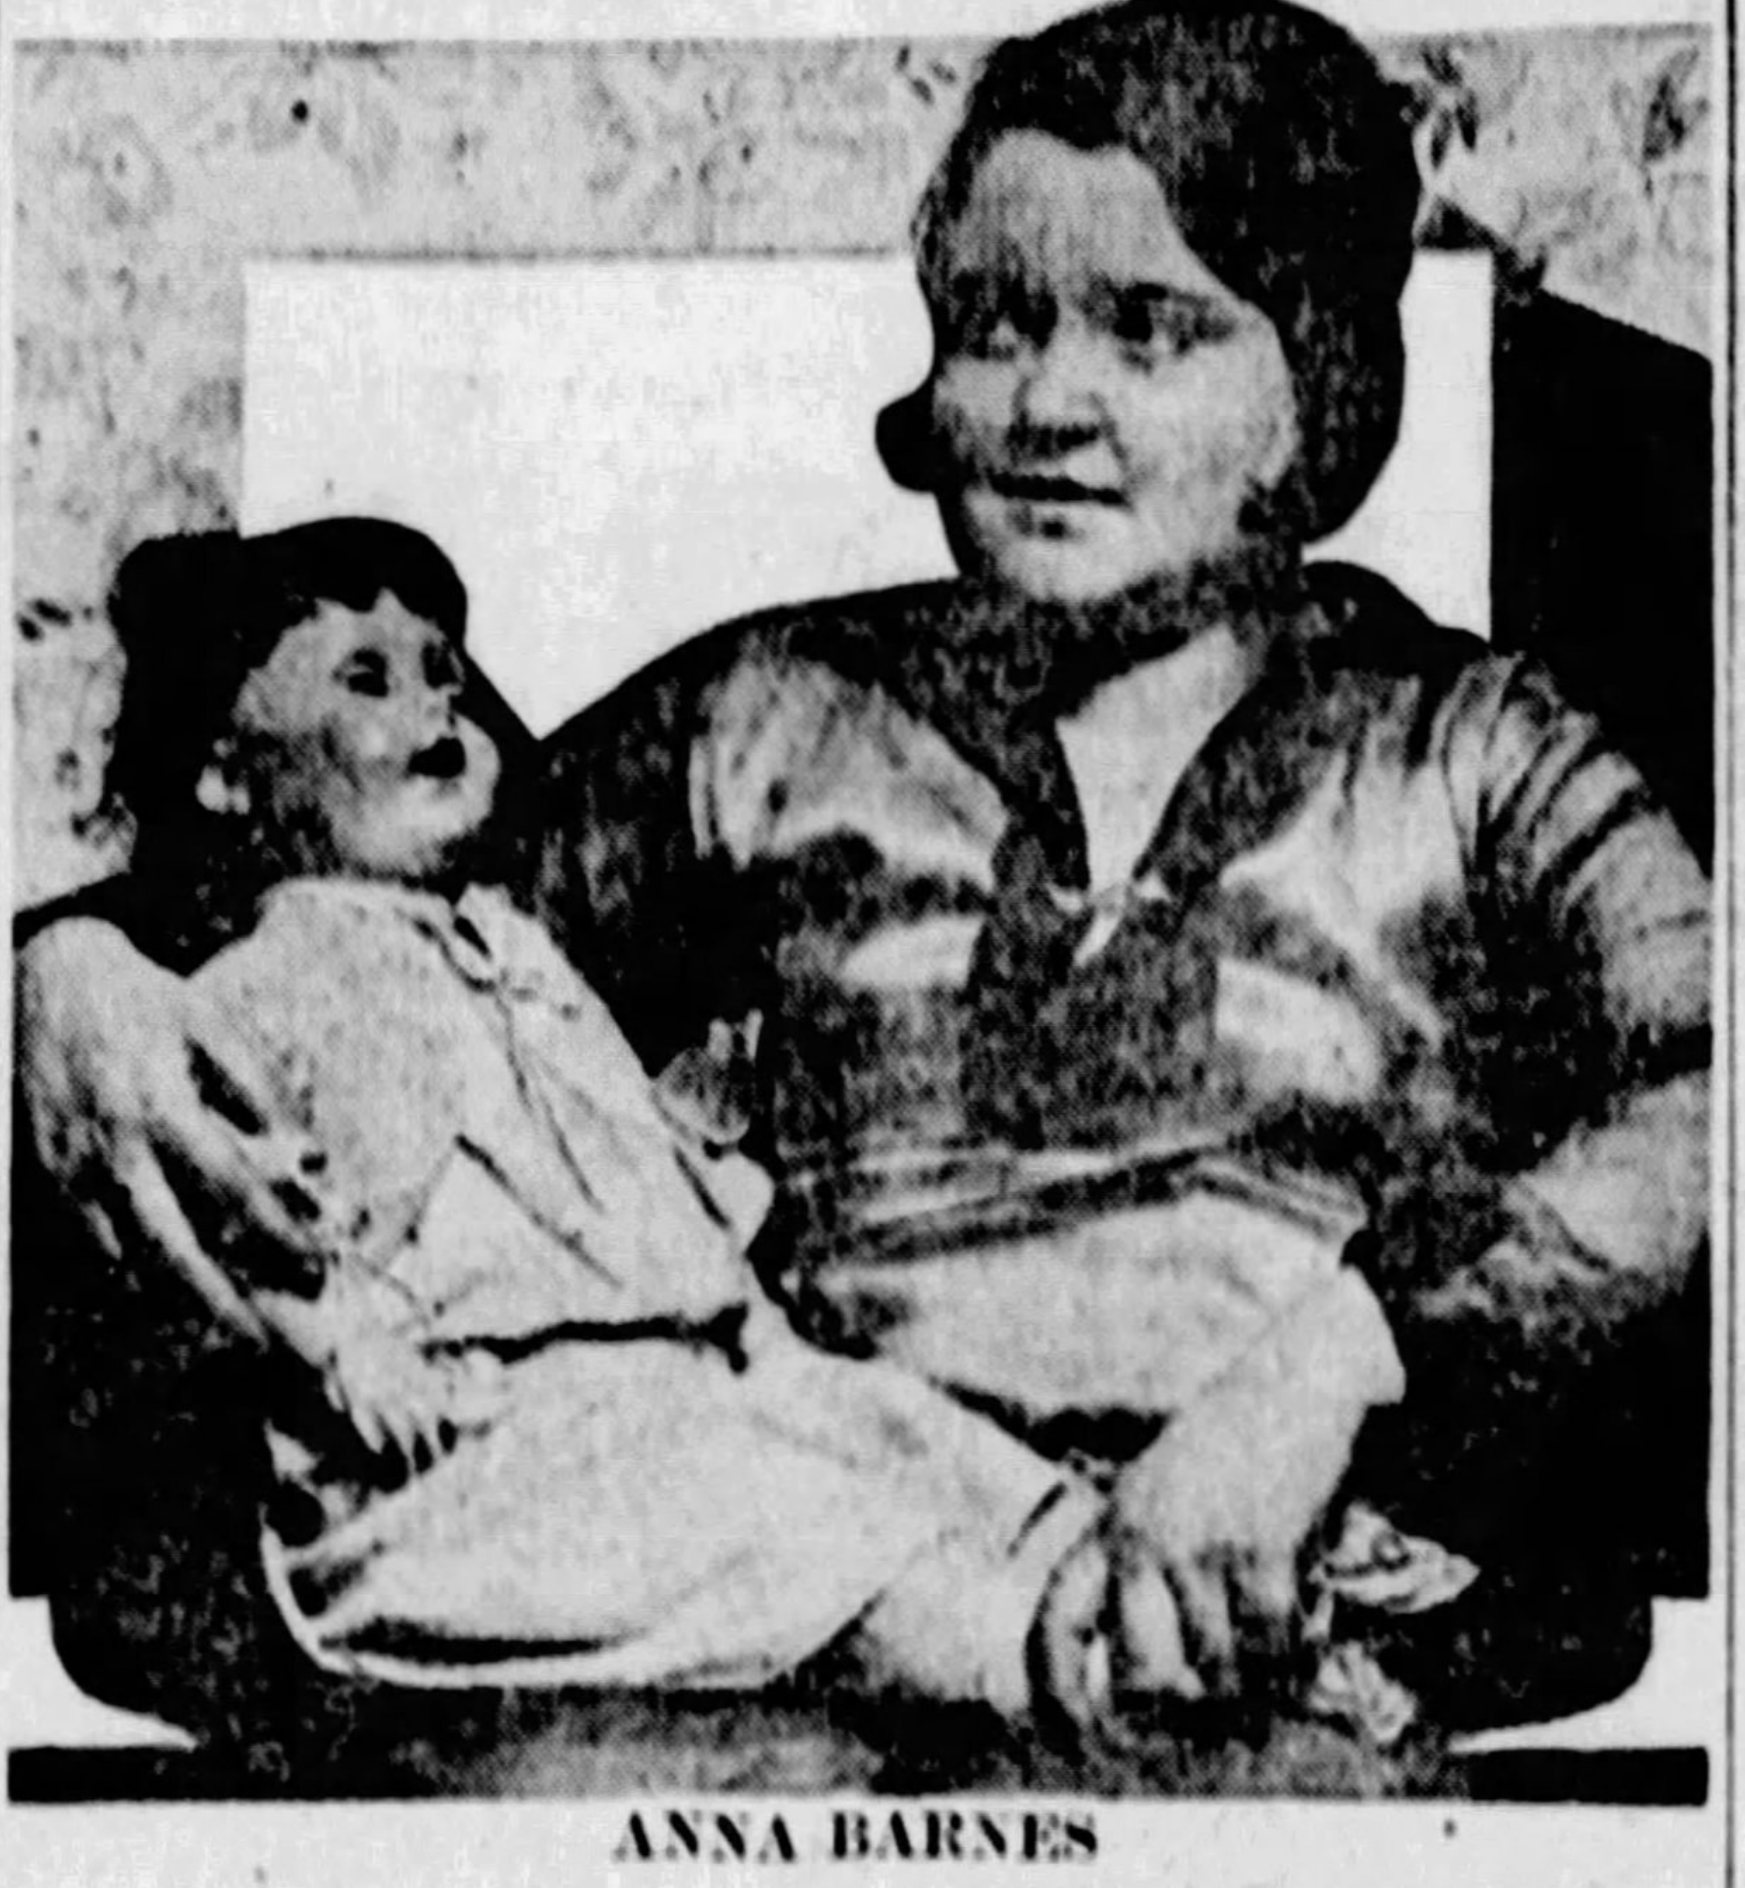
TWO GRID STARS ELECTROCUTED IN SHOWER BATH

PLEADS GUILTY IN STICKUP

Joseph Sweeney, formerly of Pittsburgh, now of Cleveland, entered a plea of guilty to "sticking up" the grocery store of Fred C. Mahler, 616 Beltzhoover avenue, August 20, when arraigned in Criminal Court yesterday, explaining to visiting Judge Donald P. McPherson that he was too intoxicated at the time to know what he was doing.

Sweeney pointed a gun at Mrs. Mary Roether, of 700 Beltzhoover avenue, and two little girls in the store, but left without any loot. Sentence will be imposed tomorrow. John E. Sweeney, of Cleveland, and Edward McTaggart, of McKees Rocks, charged with participating in the crime, were acquitted by direction of the court.

SLUGGER'S VICTIM



ANNA BARNES

Anna Barnes, 13, of 130 Yuba way, was slugged by a Negro near her home and robbed of $20 while on her way to a store for her mother.

THIRD HURLED FROM METAL CABINET

JOHNSONBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—Two members of the local high school football team, Nevin Wallis and John Zilcoski, were electrocuted last night as they stepped into a shower bath following a practice session. Allen Kerr, another member of the team, was shocked and thrown away from the shower.

Finishing their practice members of the squad went to the bath of the Central Hose Company. As the boys stepped into the shower Wallis and Zilcoski were hurled to the floor of the metal cabinet and Kerr was thrown backwards and away from the booth.

Other members of the team summoned help. A rescue team from a mine worked for hours with the boys along with Drs. Warnick and McCabe, but Wallis and Zilcoski were beyond aid.

As a result of the accident the football schedule probably will be abandoned. An investigation is being conducted by the coroner to determine how the metal ceiling of the booth became charged. An electric light wire is said to have passed over the booth.

This test amazed us

On a roof exposed to the mercies of the weather for a year, Devoe Mirrolac Enamel proved its resistance to the effects of water, cold and heat

BUT please don't get the idea that Mirrolac Enamel is merely durable and waterproof. It's the most beautiful enamel we've ever seen—made in 22 lovely, glossy colors. We recommend it especially for outside use on porch furniture, automobiles, bicycles, canoes, toys, etc. And it's just as good inside on walls, woodwork and furniture.

You get this Ever-Ready Razor and 2 Extra Blades free! with a package of 10 Ever-Ready Radio Blades for 69c.
Ever-Ready Safety Razor BLADES
Ever-Ready Radio Steel Safety Razor Blades
If you are not delighted with your shaves—return the package of 10 blades intact and we will refund your money!

AT ALL DEALERS

2 Ever-Ready Blades and Ever-Ready Razor free!

to introduce the greatest blade in the history of edge making

THE new Ever-Ready is a vastly superior blade. If it were not, the offer we are making would be financially impossible. No matter what razor you are using we can prove to you that the new Ever-Ready Blades represent the last word in shaving ease and luxury.

We challenge any other blade to shave as well as the new Ever-Ready. To the great army of men who for years have been enjoying the Ever-Ready Razor and Ever-Ready Blades, this announcement of our new blade with its wonderful shaving qualities is naturally interesting.

For users of razors other than Ever-Ready—we make it doubly easy to try the new Ever-Ready Blades. It would be unfair to ask you to buy a razor to make this test. Just buy a package of 10 Ever-Ready Blades, no matter what razor you now use. Without cost to you, we'll supply the razor—a handsome new triple-nickeled, self-adjusting Ever-Ready Razor with two extra blades. If we do not prove our case, the test costs you nothing.

Our challenge is the boldest and most fearless to which a razor manufacturer could subject his product. At the same time, it is the easiest and fairest to the shaver, because you don't pay if we don't prove.

CHALLENGE OFFER

For a period of two weeks, your dealer will sell you a package of 10 of the new Ever-Ready Blades for 69c.

With it, he will give you the finest standard Ever-Ready Razor, and 2 additional new Ever-Ready Blades FREE. Some people hesitate to return merchandise after they have opened a package; for this reason we have added these two gratis blades so that you will not hesitate to use them first, to prove the superiority of our product.

Then, if in your opinion, we have not proven our case, return the package of 10 blades intact and get the entire purchase price back.

In towns where we have run this remarkable offer, we have converted hundreds and hundreds of men who had been using another brand of razor for years past. These men were so in the habit of buying blades to fit their old razor that it was hard to get them to try a new razor through an out-and-out purchase. Year in and year out these men had been accepting poor blades and poor shaves as a matter of habit because they "never knew that self-shaving could be any better than that which they had experienced." They accepted the Challenge Outfit and convinced themselves.

You, too, may think you are satisfied with your present razor and blades. You, too, may be putting up with bad shaves from force of habit because you imagine you are shaving with the best.

It is just such men as you that we hope to interest in this offer, because we know that we can prove our case 100 per cent. After all, if you don't agree with us, we pay for the trial.

As this challenge offer is for a limited period—take advantage of it at once—now—while you think of it. You will gain a new conception of clean, quick self-shaving.

COLEMAN MAY BE RUNNING MATE OF M'GOVERN

C. L. KELLY ALSO LOOMS AS CANDIDATE

With Controller C. C. McGovern still undecided as to his possible independent candidacy for the minority place on the board of county commissioners, there were rumors that former Congressman William H. Coleman might be his running mate if he should decide to take the field. Former State Representative C. L. Kelly, of McKeesport, also looms as a possibility.

Some elements in the independent ranks want to put candidates in the race for other positions and are looking for an aspirant to fight Robert G. Woodside, Republican nominee for Controller, and Samuel D. Foster, the recorder of deeds nominee. Justice of the Peace George H. Shields, of Wilkinsburg, defeated by S. J. Topley, for the clerk of courts nomination, has been urged by some independents to make another fight for the same post.

Ward Chairman Thomas Flanigan, who apparently defeated Alderman A. M. Maloney in the First Ward aldermanic contest, is facing another fight. Maloney won the Democratic nomination and, according to his friends, is considering continuing the battle after making an effort to purge the registration lists, which, it is charged, are heavily padded. William Scott, anti-administration entry in the Tenth Ward, who won the aldermanic nomination there, also may be faced with an independent opponent, James Ford, supported by Alderman P. J. Sullivan of the Sixth, who is considering another race for the place.

MOTHER OF 11 ACCUSED AS SPEAKEASY OWNER

Mrs. Mary Prosser, 40, mother of 11 children, was arraigned in Morals Court today, along with her husband, William Prosser, on a charge of selling moonshine in their home at 18 South Thirteenth street. Magistrate E. M. Hough reserved decision.

CAR OWNER CATCHES AUTO THIEF IN CHASE

James R. Dodsworth parked his car in front of his home at 324 Fourth avenue. He walked to Fifth and Liberty avenue. He saw his car. It was moving. He jumped to the running board. One George Allen, Dodsworth said, stopped the car and jumped to the street. George ran and James ran. At Market street and Third avenue George became tired. He's in the jailhouse now.

ASKS EXPENSE GUARANTEE TO MOVE SEIZED BALLOTS

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 29—Ballot boxes impounded in the 30 voting districts of Mercer county on order from the United States District Court at Pittsburgh in the Vare-Wilson senatorial election controversy, will not be moved for recount until expenses are guaranteed, according to Prothonotary Virginia Lee Davis. The prothonotary has asked instructions from the Pittsburgh court, but has received no assurance that the county will be reimbursed for expenses involved.

NAME DIRECTORS OF TRADE BODY

Three directors of the Allied Boards of Trade, whose terms will soon expire, were re-elected at a meeting of the organization last night in the Congress of Women's Clubs. They are C. V. Shoup, Robert K. Cochrane and William B. Hodby. Other officers of the body will be selected later by the board of directors.

The West View Board of Trade brought up for discussion the proposed North Side-McKees Rocks Bridge project.

'SKINNY'

Why be called such names when it is now so easy to get fat if you like, or gain what flesh and weight you need this simple, safe way?

If you are skinny or thin, you don't get enough fat-making elements out of the food you now eat. But just begin taking two CODLIFE tablets after your daily meals and watch the fat come—the good solid "pep" flesh you need.

This remarkable tissue-building fat-compound, in pleasant-to-take coated tablets, is guaranteed to increase sturdy flesh, weight, health, strength and power of endurance, or you get back the small cost of the first box you try. Make this test. Take one box and see what you gain in ten days. Some gain several pounds in a month.

CODLIFE tablets are sold by best druggists. You can always get them here at May's stores.

The LIFE AND LETTERS OF WOODROW WILSON

Wilson Turns to Study of Government

Life at Princeton and the Rise And Growth of Wilson's Interest in Politics.

Preceding installments of "The Life and Letters of Woodrow Wilson," the first published in The Sun-Telegraph last Sunday, have told in absorbingly interesting fashion of the mass of material from which the biographer has worked, of the childhood of Woodrow Wilson in the South and the influences which operated to develop the character which distinguished him when he began his course at Princeton.

By RAY STANNARD BAKER.

(Copyright, The Doubleday, Page Co.)

Student Days at Princeton

IN SEPTEMBER, 1875, a tall, thin, somewhat angular young Southerner, from North Carolina, walked into Princeton village carrying a ministerial-looking old black bag that had belonged to his father. He was an entire stranger, but he had in his pocket a letter to James McCosh, the president of the college—which he was too shy to present. He wore—probably—the small round hat with the narrow brim which appears in his first class picture, and he had no overcoat, so that as the term wore along into the Northern autumn he often shivered painfully.

He went to live at a boarding house that stood in Nassau street near the corner of Washington, since removed to make way for college buildings. It was kept by Mrs. Josiah Wright and was listed in "The Bric-a-Brac" as the (W)right Bower. There were 17 roomers in all, mostly freshmen, among them the McCarter brothers and Paul W. Pope. Young Wilson occupied a front room on the second floor. Mrs. Titus, a daughter of Mrs. Wright, is still living in Princeton and remembers young Wilson well. To her and to various classmates the author is indebted for much information concerning those early years.

In those days a young Southerner at a Northern college was likely to feel somewhat self-conscious. Before the war Princeton had swarmed with Southern students; but the broken South, still bitter with its wounds, was only beginning in 1875 to return its young men to this great center of Scotch Presbyterianism. The first man to call upon young Wilson was a Junior from Alabama, Frank P. Glass, later a leading publisher, who took him for his first two weeks to an upper class eating club made up wholly of Southerners. One of his classmates remembers sitting up all night and discussing with Wilson the causes of the Civil War; another tells how, after a similar argument, dealing with the excesses of reconstruction, Wilson's face went white with feeling and he cried out: "You know nothing whatever about it," and turned and left the company. He was so much a Southerner that he had never even heard "The Star-Spangled Banner." But he was never a "fire-eater" like some of the Southerners who came as students at that time.

'How Homely He Was!'

We have various glimpses of young Wilson, the freshman student. One classmate recalls his "cultivated speech, rare among students of that time, and his somewhat aristocratic manner." Several speak of his wit. "How homely he was!" remarks another. He had an "eager mind."

It was a great time at Princeton; it was a great time in the development of higher education in the United States. The demoralization of political life which followed the Civil War—Grant's administration represented about the lowest ebb of American popular government—seems to have turned men's thoughts toward other activities; on the one hand vast industrial and pioneering development, and education on the other. The best minds revolted from politics in disgust.

Dr. McCosh had come to Princeton in 1868 and brought with him a new impulse, a new enthusiasm. Eliot became president at Harvard in 1869. Barnard was at Columbia, Woolsey at Yale. Cornell was a new institution, Johns Hopkins was soon to be organized and Angell to begin the work of bringing the University of Michigan into the forefront of American institutions. Educational problems were in the air; a debate between Dr. McCosh and President Eliot attracted national attention. No thoughtful student with a strong latent interest in education could have found a more stimulating atmosphere than that of Princeton. Wilson seemed always to have had an instinct for the main current, an affinity for that which was most alive.

Dr. McCosh was then at his prime; a leader, a character, a power. Like Wilson's own family, he was Scotch in his origin, equipped with "a rich furniture of fundamental and established principles." He was massive in frame with a noble head, clear-cut intellectual features and a magnificent resonant voice.

Progressive in Religion

Both Dr. Wilson and Prof. Woodrow were profound admirers of President McCosh. They considered him one of the greatest, if not the greatest, progressive religious leader in the nation. To them he represented the forefront of Presbyterianism. In the Darwinian controversy which was then raging Dr. McCosh had dared to take a bold position. He was for truth.

"When a scientific theory is brought before us, our first inquiry is not whether it is consistent with religion, but whether it is true. If it is found to be true, on the principle of the induction of Bacon, it will be found that it is consistent with religion, on the principle of the unity of truth."

Such views as these met the approval of both Dr. Wilson and Prof. Wodrow. Moreover there existed a strong personal friendship and admiration. When President McCosh made a trip South in 1873 he stopped with Dr. Wilson at Columbia and the virtues and possibilities of Princeton were powerfully set forth. Tommy was a shy youth of some 16 years, at home for a vacation from Davidson College, and Dr. McCosh, looking him over with a keenly appraising eye, remarked to Dr. Wilson:

"The boy'll be tomin' to Princeton, no doubt."

The remark made a powerful impression upon the youth, as did Dr. McCosh himself. Here was the kind of man Wilson admired to the depth of his soul, the scholar, the wit, the leader, and he formed for him a kind of youthful adoration that he never lost. He loved always afterwards to talk about Dr. McCosh. He could imitate the Scotch burr of his speech to perfection. Wilson said he was a man "who could be laughed at every day, and never for a moment despised." He liked to emphasize the "Scotchiness" of his character—the lovable intolerance!

A McCosh Mot

"I refer," said Mr. Wilson in an address of later years, "to that occasion when he brought all the strong flavor of his Scotch-Presbyterianism to a meeting of the Evangelical Alliance—one of the early gatherings of that interesting association—when Dr. Huntington arose and proposed that they adopt the Apostles' Creed as a platform upon which all could stand. 'Tut! tut!' said Dr. McCosh in an undertone, to a neighbor, 'I'll not descend into hell with the Episcopalians.' There is in this, gentlemen, the flavor and the definiteness which go with the Scotch character."

He was thinking of Dr. McCosh when he said of Princeton:

". . . the best way to image an institution for yourself it to image it in the terms of a particular life which happens to stand in the history of the institution most conspicuous."

It is of some significance, in view of Wilson's own struggle in later years as president of Princeton, that Dr. McCosh's spirited and successful fight to wipe out secret societies which had flourished sub rosa was still fresh in men's minds when the youthful Wilson entered as a student. One of the first things he was required to do was to sign an agreement not to join a secret society.

Not "Honor Man"

There is no doubt that the youth found his college work, at the beginning, exceedingly difficult. He was asked, in Latin, to read Livy and Horace's Odes, in Greek, Demosthenes and Herodotus, with higher algebra and a stiff course in rhetoric. And he had come poorly prepared. In general reading, in mental acumen and maturity, he was far in advance of the ordinary student, but he was sadly deficient at Greek roots and in mathematics. He could have stood an examination in Lamb's essays, analyzed Webster's oratory, argued the constitutional basis of secession with appropriate historical parallels, proved to his father's satisfaction his belief in justification by faith, and exhibited an astonishing knowledge of English politics, especially the struggles of Gladstone; and he knew shorthand; but these things were of no account to a freshman set face to face with Horace and Herodotus.

While the first year at Princeton was a struggle for young Wilson, and his progress was slow, he found there the stimulating intellectual atmosphere and the generous friendships which he needed to bring him out. He began to grow, to take more and more of a hold upon his classmates, and, while he was never one of the best students in his classes, "every one soon began to look upon him as one of the most original and superior men in the college," says Albert Wylly, a classmate, in a letter to the author.

At the end of the freshman year 21 members of the class were selected as "honor men," but Wilson was not among them. The only thing of importance he seems to have done was to join the famous old Whig Society—a debating club organized by James Madison in 1769. "T. Wilson" is reported in the record to have "performed" for the first time on October 29, 1875. His subject was "Rome Was Not Built in a Day." On that evening the subject debated was this: "Is a lawyer justified in defending a cause which he believes to be morally wrong?" Wherever he was a student "T. Wilson" always gravitated toward the debating society!

Wilson's second year at college was among the most important of his whole life; a turning point. An account has already been given of how the youth "came to himself" in respect of religion—in 1873, at Columbia. He was now to come to himself intellectually. These two awakenings, with the powerful emotional awakening which came later, lie at the foundation of his character. It is rare enough to be able, in any man's life, to discern such processes so plainly; but Wilson's mind, like that of his Uncle James, "had no penumbra." It was "single track" and its processes are clearly perceptible.

All his life he had been a reader; no casual reader, but one of the eager and passionate kind who are not content until they tear out the very heart of a book. This was true not only of romances and poetry as well. When the boy reads Cooper's novels he wishes afterward to act them out; if he reads sea stories he makes pictures of the ships described, and he is not content with Scott's romances until he has found some one—his father was his best resource—with whom he can discuss the characters and incidents. Many of the volumes of his reading remained in his library at his death. They are indicative of his passion to know completely and accurately what the author has to say. Here, for example, are such books as "The Federalist," Green's "Short History of the English People"—and Macaulay and Bagehot—with the pages underscored and marginal notes to the last degree and often written synopses appended to the chapters.

Pursuer of Fate

A classmate, Hiram Woods, recalls finding Wilson, after there had been a discussion of "Macbeth," poring over an encyclopaedia to find out exactly where Birnam Wood was located and what the reference meant.

On a vacation which Wilson spent with Hiram Woods' family at Baltimore a question arose as to the truth of a statement in Macaulay's "History of England" and Wilson insisted upon running it down in two other English histories. His reading was thus never desultory, and because so thorough, never wide. But what he read he knew. In a letter to Ellen Axson, in 1884, he wrote:

"The man who reads everything is like the man who eats everything; he can digest nothing; and the penalty for cramming one's mind with other men's thoughts is to have no thoughts of one's own. Only that which enable one to do his own thinking is of real value, which is my explanation of the fact that there are to be found in history so many great thinkers and great leaders who did little reading of books—if you reckon reading by volumes—but much reading of men and of their own times."

One of his satirical classmates—the class historian, Harold Godwin—declares that on his arrival at college Tommy Wilson rushed to the library and took out Kant's "Critique of Pure Reason!" He did rush to the library, but it was to look into the speeches of Burke and John Bright and the essays of Bagehot. These stimulated him enormously and were to exercise a profound influence upon his later life. He also ran across the bound volumes of "The Gentleman's Magazine" for 1874. He found an article in the April number called "The Orator" which so fired his imagination that he remembered all his life the exact place at the head of the south stairs in the Chancellor Green Library where he read it. It was brilliantly written, the anonymous author being that Henry W. Lucy, "Toby, M. P." who was afterwards to become the bright luminary of "Punch."

A Critic of Orators

In the article on "The Orator" it is set forth that of the 653 members of the House of Commons only three can be classified as orators—Mr. Bright, Mr. Gladstone, and, with reservations, Mr. Fawcet. The writer did not place Mr. Disraeli, the prime minister, in the class of orators. He called him a successful parliamentary speaker, lacking two important qualities of oratory, "earnestness and simple conviction." He called Mr. Bright "the orator par excellence of the House of Commons," being "precisely the moral and political antithesis of Mr. Disraeli." After emphasizing Bright's firm and constant principles he remarks:

"To an orator this atmosphere of sincerity and honest conviction is a mighty power."

He makes charatter the firm foundation of good oratory.

"Mr. Bright's speeches are always oratorical successes and Mr. Gladstone's are not."

This and succeeding articles, including one (in April, 1875) on "The Democratic Party in the United States," young Wilson consumed with fascinated interest. They gave him for the first time a comprehension of the vast drama of popular government, the heroes who moved upon the stage, the entire process by which the will of the people through powerful leadership was translated into sober law. It was not that these articles in themselves were especially remarkable—they were the precipitate that clarified the mind of the eager youth. They discovered to him the field he loved. They made him suddenly aware of his own powers; he could do these very things himself! He could debate, he could lead! Political arrangement, the method of democratic government, became living things to him.

At once he sat down to write to his father at Wilmington, developing with eagerness his new-found enthusiasm. He declared he had found that he had a mind! It was a source of keen disappointment to the family, with its long record in the Presbyterian ministry, that the youth at Princeton seemed to be tending toward another field, especially a field held in such low esteem as politics. It is remembered that Dr. Wilson wrote him urgently advising that he make sure of his interest before coming to any final decision. All his life long Dr. Wilson had moments of regret that his brilliant son had not chosen the ministry. Once after he had listened to the reading of one of Wilson's early essays, the fine old preacher sprang up and kissed his son—they always kissed when they met—and exclaimed, "Oh, my boy, how I wish you had entered the ministry, with all that genius of yours!"

Found Himself at 20

But Wilson was now 20 years old and his intellectual awakening was as definite and vivid as his previous religious awakening had been. In its essence it was a sudden triumph over the doubt, the want of self-confidence, which had so painfully afflicted him during the year at Wilmington. He came to himself, he knew for a certainty what he was good for, what he could do. He knew also that it was not the college curriculum that had achieved the miracle; that it had come from within—a discovery which profoundly affected his own later ideas of education. In "Mere Literature" he wrote years afterward:

"The rule for every man is, not to depend on the education which other men prepare for him—not even to consent to it, but to strive to see things as they are, and to be himself as he is. Defeat lies in self-surrender."

From this moment he "took his education into his own hands." He became known for the confident selection of the work he wanted and the easy indifference to all subjects not directly to his purpose. Such an awakening is not an uncommon phenomenon among youth of vigorous intellect and strong purpose. Woodrow Wilson himself points out a similar incident in the life of Burke:

"He learned a vast deal, indeed, but he did not learn much of it from his nominal masters at Trinity. Apparently Master Shakleton, at Ballytore, had enabled him to find his own mind. His four years at college were years of wide and eager reading, but not years of systematic and disciplinary study. . . . What should arrest our attention is the law of mind disclosed in the habits of such lads. . . . They long for matter to expand themselves upon; they will climb any dizzy height from which an exciting prospect is promised; it is their joy by some means to see the world of men and affairs."

This was Wilson's own eager and ardent spirit, climbing any dizzy height now that he had found his own mind, in order to see the world of men and affairs. Leadership, political life, the machinery of government—and oratory and literary style as functional methods—became his absorbing interest.

Mr. Wilson's interest in politics and debate at Princeton and his early success as a writer for thoughtful magazines will be the subject of tomorrow's installment.

A NEW TURNING POINT IN WILSON'S LIFE

Here is the Alligator Club, a Princeton student organization in 1875, with Woodrow Wilson third from the extreme right. It was not a "secret organization." Dr. James McCosh was then conducting his campaign to eradicate secret societies from the college, and this was recalled in Wilson's similar fight when he was head of Princeton. The 20-year-old Wilson began a new era of his life in the New Jersey college town. Here his cultivated speech, his eager mind and mental acumen stamped him as a leader among his classmates, but he was not a good student in the orthodox sense. His mind turned to government and politics rather than to Greek roots and mathematics. As the first issue of the Princetonian, the mast head of which is shown above bearing Wilson's name, indicates Wilson obtained early recognition as a writer.

"PUPPY LOVE" MARRIAGE BANNED AFTER OCT. 1

Boys and girls under 16 who have their parents' consent to marry have until October 1 to get their licenses. After that they will be unable to get a license without the special sanction of Orphans Court, according to a new state law, which goes into effect Saturday.

The new law makes it impossible to secure a marriage license under 16 except in cases where extreme necessity is shown and then a judge of Orphans Court has the power to authorize a license. Up until this time boys and girls under age were granted licenses upon the consent of their parents.

The law was approved by the Legislature, March 24, 1927, having been prepared by the Child Welfare division of the Public Charities Association of Pennsylvania. It is aimed particularly at young people who enter into hasty marriage contracts, only to repent in later years after they realize it was only a case of "puppy love," it is declared.

WORLD FLIERS MAY TRY NON-STOP HOP HOME

By International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—With their round-the-world plane Pride of Detroit on deck in practical readiness for a new hop, William S. Brock and Edward F. Schlee, who flew from Detroit to Tokio, arrived here today from the Orient on board the Korea Maru.

The plane was swung from the deck of the ocean liner to a waiting barge to be ferried to Crissy Field, where the rudder and tail were to be connected and the plane made ready for flying to Oakland airport. Brock and Schlee were taken to Crissy Field on a launch.

Civic officials boarded the Korea Maru at quarantine to welcome the round-the-world fliers.

Whether a non-stop flight will be attempted to Detroit will be determined this afternoon.

Brock and Schlee will be guests of San Francisco officials at a banquet tonight, and the city of Oakland is planning a demonstration before their departure tomorrow.

They took off from Detroit nearly a month ago in the Pride of Detroit and after refueling at Harbor Grace, N. F., successfully crossed the Atlantic.

They crossed Europe and into Asia with a speed that promised to win for them a new record for a trip around the world. Several delays in Asia threw them off their schedule.

Arriving in Toki, they were determined to attempt the flight across the Pacific with stops at Midway Island and Honolulu, but they abadoned plans for the Pacific flight after their families had radioed them, urging them not to take the risk.

Brock and Schlee then embarked with their plane on the Korea Maru.

Davidson Forces Unwanted Attention On Sally and Meets His Master

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

SALLY JEROME, pretty and clever, is the mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who does not live with her mother. MRS. JEROME enjoys ill health, so Sally does the housework mornings and office work afternoons for Mr. Peevey. BEAU, her brother, and MILLIE, her sister, give little towards the support of the home, and the burden falls on Sally. In the flat below the Jeromes lives TED SLOAN, who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Millie is Nye's secretary, and he is infatuated with her. However, she prefers a bond salesman named DAVIDSON, of whom John is jealous, so he says. John offers Sally a position with him, but she refuses it and goes into the wayside inn business with her AUNT EMILY JEROME, an ex-school teacher. The business does not thrive, although the food is delicious and the place is beautiful and comfortable. The winter passes with Aunt Em and Sally doing all the work themselves, in a grand effort to keep afloat. In the spring Aunt Em hires a jazz band, hoping that that will "pep up" the business. Then "The Lark," a nearby roadhouse, opens and takes away many of their patrons. Ted Sloan takes Sally to see some dancers there, and Sally and he decide to put on a dance act themselves. It is a great hit, and affairs slowly improve at Aunt Em's inn. Sally wears a mask and a costume covered with bells when she dances. Her old one wears out, and she buys an expensive new one, to the annoyance of her mother, who has come, with all the rest of the family, to live at the inn. She tells Sally that she ought to save her money and start housekeeping again.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SALLY, silent with confusion, finished counting her money before she looked up at Davidson.

He was standing just as he had been standing three minutes before, smiling down at her. Evidently Millie's jealous outburst had not disturbed him any more than her command to leave the house had caused him to go.

"Well," he said in an undertone to Sally, "what have you to say about that?"

"I'll say this: Good night!" replied Sally, getting up from her chair with her money in her hands.

She turned toward the little office at the end of the hall, where Aunt Emily had a tiny wall safe for her money.

She did not know that Davidson had followed her there, until she had deposited the money in the little stronghold and closed it.

Then as she turned to go back to the hall, she came face to face with him. He was standing close [illegible] her—so close that when she [illegible] e touched him with one [illegible] sky white shoulders that [illegible] above the soft blue silk of [illegible] acing dress.

[illegible] aid one of his hands on it, [illegible] ing it.

CHAPTER XLVIII.

SALLY did not know just what to do.

It was one thing to smartly smack Ted Sloan across his cheerful, freckled face when he tried to force his love making upon her, as he did nearly every time they were together.

But it was going to be something altogether different to deal with this older man, who was so much more serious and determined than Ted ever had been.

Moreover, Sally was rattled. She looked up at Davidson with astonishment and confusion written in the blue-clear brilliance of her eyes. Her parted lips made no sound. She could think of nothing to say. She felt as if her brain had stopped working, or as if it were whirling—she didn't know which.

Davidson's other hand came down upon her other shoulder, and he drew her body toward him so slowly that the movement was scarcely noticeable. But there was behind it the slow, quiet firmness of a shadow that seems not to move at all, but gradually covers the sun.

"Sweet kid," he said huskily, his head lowered a little as he leaned close to Sally.

The sound of his voice seemed to break the spell that held her, and all at once she knew just how to manage this situation—without making a scene—without making an enemy of Davidson—without even making a disturbing noise in the quiet house.

"Unhand me, Desperate Desmond," she said with a laugh, and if her voice shook a little it was light and careless seeming, too.

She tried to pass him and leave the cubby-hole of an office.

But he stood in the doorway, with his hands on either side of the opening.

"What have you against me, Sally?" he asked, shortly. "I want to know."

"I?" asked Sally, her eyes wider and brighter than usual. "Why, I haven't a thing in the world against you, Davy. Please let me out. I'm tired, and I want you to go."

"I don't want to go. I'm not going," he said. He shook his blond head stubbornly. "I want to talk to you." One of his hands came back to her shoulder and stayed there.

"Well, talk to me then—but leave me alone. You're out of bounds!" answered Sally, and her voice was as sharp as Aunt Emily's voice when she was angry about anything.

She shook her shoulders nervously, and Davidson's hand dropped to his side. He said nothing.

"Well, what's on your mind?" Sally asked after a moment, while he looked intently at her as if he were thinking hard.

"I don't know what to say," he replied awkwardly. "I—" again words failed him.

With a great many men, actions speak much more plainly than words when it comes to love making.

And that was the case with Davy Davidson.

He made another motion to put his arms around Sally's light, slender figure, in its blue dress. But she violently pushed him away from her.

"If you can't move, I can!" she rapped out. "Please get out of my way—and please get out of the house. Coming here to see Millie, and then behaving this way to me!"

Her contempt was profound. She marched past him down the hall, with her head in the air.

"I don't come here because of Millie. I come here because of you!" he defended himself weakly.

"Then," declared Sally coldly, "you're a cad!" Her words were like little chips of stone falling from a chiseled rock.

When he was gone it came to her that he had done the very thing that John Nye had done. He had come there to see Millie—but really to see her.

And John Nye had come there to the restaurant pretending that he wanted to see her—but really to see Millie. At least, so Millie had said, and she was probably right. Millie knew men.

"They're both cads—John and Davidson!" said Sally in her heart.

As she put up her arm to turn off the light above the hall table the front doorbell rang. The sound of it was alarming in the midnight silence of the house, and Sally jumped.

"Probably Davidson coming back for another round of love making!" she thought. Then there came a loud pounding on the panels of the heavy oak door.

No, that wouldn't be Davidson, making a row like that, she reflected.

But who could it be at this hour of the night? . . . She slid back the bolts of the door and swung it open.

Two men stood there in the outer dimness. One of them was Davidson and the other was a messenger boy. In his hand he held a yellow envelope.

"Mrs. C. M. Jerome?" he asked, peering curiously at Sally in her blue gown, all sewn with tiny bells and spangles.

Without a word Sally took the envelope, signed for it, and tore it open as the boy went down the steps and started away on a motorcycle.

"I thought I'd wait to see if it were any kind of bad news," Davy Davidson said, and Sally gave him a grateful glance.

That was nice of him, anyway, she said to herself, as she unfolded the paper. She remembered that she had thought he was a nice sort of man the first time she met him, too. Well, he probably was, in a way.

She read the 10-word message to her mother: "Mr. Jerome very sick. Wants you to come at once.
"Eliza Gleason."

"Now, who's 'Eliza Gleason'?" Sally wondered, turning towards the stairs. Perhaps her mother had been right all along, and there was a woman at the bottom of the trouble in the Jerome family.

"But there's no reason why mother should know about it, just yet," she thought. "Maybe it's just his landlady, or someone like that."

"Do you want me to stay?" asked Davidson's voice from the doorway, and she turned quickly. She had forgotten that he was there.

"I don't think so," she said slowly, and started back to say good night to him. "My father's ill and he's sent for my mother." She stood beside him in the warm breathing darkness of the June night, just outside the front door of the house.

"I imagine there aren't any good trains at this time of night, anyway," she went on quietly. "I'll telephone the railroad station and find out when the next train south goes. Then I'll wake my mother up in plenty of time to get it. There's no use in getting her up now to worry all night, is there?"

She did not expect an answer, and Davidson did not give her one.

"Sally, you're a wonderful little girl," he said solemnly. "You take care of everybody, don't you? And you're so little, and young, and sweet—" And then, as if her littleness and youth and sweetness, combined, were too much for him, he abruptly swept her into his arms and kissed her, holding her so tight that she cried out in fury and pain.

She leaned back in his arms as far as she could, and brought her small, hard fist down upon his face. He turned his head to escape the blow and it caught him neatly upon the cheek bone.

He laughed as he let her go. "Sally, you'll be sorry for that, some day," he told her, his breath coming unevenly. He started down the wide steps that led to the moonlit driveway. "I'll call you up tomorrow morning."

"Don't waste your money and your time, because I won't talk to you!" Sally flung at him as she ran into the house, still trembling with rage and excitement.

For the third time that night she started up the stairs.

There was a light in the upper hall, and at the top of the flight sat Millie, with her little pink nightgown drawn around her knees, and her face bright with malice.

"I heard everything!" she said triumphantly. "You're a fine kind of a sister, aren't you? Doing your best to take Davy Davidson away from me when you know I'm wild about him."

"What did you hear?" asked Sally. "You couldn't have heard much or you'd know that I'm not trying to take him away from you. I just slapped his face for him. Did you hear that?"

Millie got up from the top step and followed her into her bedroom at the back of the house. It was a very plain, neat bedroom, without any of the spilled powder and soiled silk cushions and knick-knacks that made Millie's room "so feminine," as Mrs. Jerome described it.

"If you slapped his face, you did it because you knew it would rouse his interest in you," she said freezingly. "Just as you figured it out that the way to make a home-run with John Nye was to feed him sandwiches and work overtime with him. Miss Kress has told me what a play you made for him when I was sick in the hospital."

Sally felt sea-sick and dizzy as she listened. Had it been so plain, then—her feeling for John Nye—that even the near-sighted Miss Kress had seen it?

"Even Johnny, himself, had to laugh about the things you did," Millie went on, in a voice that was as soft as the sound of a sharp knife cutting through a yard of silk. She turned on her little pink heels and went out, leaving a white-faced, trembling Sally staring at her own shamed reflection in the toilet glass.

Mrs. Jerome's train left the next morning at 10 minutes past 6.

Aunt Em took her to the station in the car, and Sally stayed behind to get breakfast for Millie and Mabel and Beau.

"I'll telegraph as soon as I know how your Papa is," Mrs. Jerome told Sally, who had lost her blooming look and had faint violet marks under her eyes as if she had cried half the night.

Jerry Tells About Miss Lincoln's Interest in Noel Veritzen

AS JERRY finished his roguish warning to Mary that she'd better look out for her beau because the new neighbor, Miss Lincoln, was going to try to get him away from her, he broke into a loud guffaw, which gave Mary a chance to recover from the confusion into which his announcement had thrown her.

"Why, that's very interesting, Jerry," she said, dimpling and laughing, when he had finished his outburst. "Do tell me all about it."

"Now, Miss Graham, you listen," Mrs. Ticer commanded. "This is what I wanted you to know about." I faced a most uncomfortable quandary. The habits of a lifetime bade me tell Jerry to hold his tongue, that I wished to know nothing about my new neighbors. But I knew that such a course would offend Mrs. Ticer beyond pardon, so I kept quiet, although I was uncomfortably conscious that Mary and I were not the only listeners, that from the corner where she was beating up a cake, Katie was all ears and eyes.

"Why, you know this here Miss Lincoln, she's just like a little kid, she wants to see everything and go everywhere, and every time I take the car, or Lady out of the barn, she's possessed to go along, too, if it's only for a load of wood over to the woodlot. And day before yesterday when we were going along the road, who should we see but young Mr. Veritzen walking along by the side of the path.

"He had his hat off carrying it in his hand and when I saw him, I yelled out, 'Hi, Mr. Veritzen,' and he called back and waved his hat. He didn't pay any attention to her at all that I could see, but after we'd passed, she grabbed my arm and pretty near made Lady jump. We were going up that wood road after a load of wood, and she said all earnest like, 'Who's that man, Jerry?'

"I told her it was Mr. Veritzen, a friend of you folks that was staying down here until he got well, that he'd broken his hand and would probably stay down here all summer.

"'But who is he?' she asked, really impatient like. 'I don't mean just his name. What does he do? Where does he come from?'

"'He comes from New York City,' I said, 'and he's a friend of Mr. Graham's. I don't know what his business is'—for I don't"—Jerry cast an injured look at Mary and me as if to reproach us for his lack of information concerning his mother's paying guest—. "'All I know is that he's got a violin and a pile of music with him, and he tries to fiddle with his left hand sometimes.'

"She gave a little screech at that, as if I'd stuck a pin into her arm. 'What's eating you?' I asked her. 'Did a bee sting you?'

"She gave me one of those queer stuck-up looks of hers, as if she could kill you for living, and said some funny word in one of those foreign languages of hers. It was some name she was calling me, I was sure of that, but the next minute she laughed, and patted my arm.

"'Oh, you funny Jerry,' she says. 'I never, never shall get used to you. Yes, a bee did sting me, but it wasn't the kind you mean. It was a bee of memory. Now, I know what Mr. Veritzen does, and who he is.'"

Jerry drew a long breath.

"Now, I ask you," he said largely addressing us all, "what kind of a rigamarole was that for a sensible girl to be handing out. A bee of memory! Ha! ha! That sure was a hot one. But believe me, she's got some case on Mr. Veritzen. She wanted to know if he knew many folks down here, and when I told her you were the only people he went to see, she asked all about you folks, and when I told her, she said: 'La! la! two pretty women, a young married one and a young girl. Now which one, my good Jerry'—that's what she calls me most of the time—'my good Jerry does he come to see? It's one or the other, you know.'"

Mary gave a rippling little laugh which I knew covered her embarrassment.

"That's a good one on you, Auntie Madge," she said. "I hope, Jerry, that you told Miss Lincoln the truth, that it is really Auntie Madge whom Mr. Veritzen comes to see."

This mysterious disorder robs you of the power to think and grasp opportunities. It makes you weak and listless, lacking ambition and power of endurance. Headaches, dizzy spells, nervousness, stomach troubles—various seemingly harmless ills may be the insidious malady trying to invade your system. Check it by taking Partola, before it ruins your health, your business, your bankroll. Prevent its invasion by thoroughly cleansing your bowels of poison wastes. Ordinary laxative pills and waters do not clean out the dangerous bacteria that cause it. Partola is both a laxative and internal antiseptic, that's why doctors recommend it. Its action is mild, its taste delicious; ends constipation. All good druggists sell regular box 30¢, double size 60¢.

Tell Them How You Lost Fat

This is to people who have lost fat in the modern scientific way. And who have gained new beauty, new health and vitality by it. You are everywhere. Tell others the facts, as someone probably told you.

Some two decades ago, scientific men discovered a cause of excess fat. They learned why some are thin and some are fat, regardless of food and exercise. They found a way to fight that cause by supplying the body some elements required in nutrition.

Then came Marmola prescription tablets embodying that new method. They have now been used for 20 years—millions of boxes of them. You can see the results wherever you look. Slenderness prevails. All ideas of beauty, all styles in dress, are based on slender figures.

Users of Marmola are not forced to abnormal exercise or diet, though moderation helps. They simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. And new health and vitality comes with that reduction—in an amazing way.

The formula of Marmola comes in every box. Also the reasons for results. Thus you may know just why the good comes, and have no fear of harm.

People who are over-fat should start Marmola now. Order a box—before you forget. Learn all the facts about it, then watch results. When you gain your desires, tell your friends how to gain them. Don't wait any longer.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

FOR THE LOVELORN

Slow, But Sure

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been a constant reader of your column for over a year, and find it very interesting. I have never written before, but would like to now.

So many girls write to you, saying that if they do not pet the fellow does not ask them for a second or a third date. That is not true. Girls, use tact. By tact I mean can't you get around a fellow and make him not want to pet? Certainly you can. See then if he does not ask you for a second and a third date.

Miss Gale, I am 17 years of age, and I am proud to say that I have never been kissed in my life. I go on dates, but nevertheless I do not take part in the kissing, necking and drinking. But still I am invited out to them. I am as popular as a girl would want to be. Why? Because I know how to refuse a fellow when he wants to kiss me. There are other means than slapping a fellow in the face. I love a good time, as all girls do. Girls, when a fellow insists upon petting, he is not worth bothering with.

Just a word to a "Decent Fellow." I certainly compliment you, "Decent Fellow." I would love to meet you. "Decent Fellow, you claim you do not want a girl that kisses every Tom, Dick and Harry to be the mother of your children, but be sure that you do not kiss everything that wears a skirt. You sure would make an ideal fellow for some of these girls that write to this column. Please comment on this letter, "Decent Fellow."

Don't you think what I have said is true, Miss Gale?

SLOW BUT SURE.

I agree with you perfectly, my dear.

Blue Eyed Sally

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been reading the lovelorn column for some time and find you give wonderful advice. I am a girl 14 years old and am quite popular with both boys and girls. I know the first thing you will say is that I am too young to go with boys, but my mother allows me to. Here is my trouble: I seem to be infatuated with every fellow I see? How may I overcome this? Is it all right to invite a boy to see you? If so, how should you entertain him? I agree with you on all the three questions. Wishing you loads of luck, I remain,

BLUE EYED SALLY.

Your extreme youth is to blame for your susceptibility, my dear. You will grow out of it. It is all right for your older sister to invite a boy to call, but not for you.

Evelyn M.

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have read your answers to many and am coming to you for advice. I am in love with a fellow the same age as I am. I don't think he loves me, but I love him dearly. He lives down the street from me and I see him every day. Some of my friends tell me he likes me. I agree with you on the smoking and drinking subject, but I think kissing will not hurt any girl or fellow. Anxiously waiting, I ask you how I may win him.

EVELYN M.

I am sorry you approve of promiscuous kissing, my dear. You will know better some day.

Every Woman Should Know About This.

It is as much your duty to be attractive as to keep a well-ordered house.

Why shouldn't every girl and woman strive to be attractive? It is not merely vanity; the modest knowledge of pleasant appearance is a mental prop that enhances whatever charms of personality its owner may have.

Let us suggest here, a recently discovered Toilet Accessory known as Mibalm Liquid Vanishing Cream.

Never before has there been offered a toilet preparation which fills such a long-felt want; never have women been so anxious to try a new product and never have they been so well pleased and acknowledged its superior value over the old style, solid vanishing creams.

MIBALM LIQUID VANISHING CREAM is a snow-white lotion, makes an ideal powder base, it is soothing, healing and mildly astringent; you can buy it at all the leading Drug and Department Stores; you can always get it at May's.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN

by HELEN ROWLAND

ON GETTING YOUR MAN

GETTING a husband in these days is a simple matter.

All it requires is the tact of Talleyrand, the technique of Sarah Bernhardt, the genius of Einstein and the self-control of a brass Buddha.

* * *

All you have to do is to appear to be "backing away" when you are really "going after" him.

* * *

To make him think that he is pursuing you when he has merely stopped running and is waiting for you to catch up.

HELEN ROWLAND

To prove to him that he loves you—and then seem surprised and startled when he springs it upon you as his own bright, original idea.

To give him the illusion that he is proposing to you when you are really supplying him with the words and music, and training him to say them over after you.

To let him enjoy the impression that he is "stringing" you, while you are quietly plaiting the string into a noose.

To assure him that while you realize that marriage is woman's highest vocation, you never, never thought of it until he mentioned it to you.

To convince him that you are "just a good little pal"—while you are running your fingers through his hair and planning the wedding decorations.

To make him believe that, while he may enjoy kissing some girls a lot of the time and a lot of girls some of the time, he is going to find it far more thrilling to have to enjoy kissing one girl all of the time.

To prove to him that, although he has taken perfectly good care of himself for twenty or thirty years, he still needs somebody to find his hat, count his laundry, watch his diet and ladle out his tonic.

To make him believe that he is the "hero" of your dreams when you are secretly planning to remodel him in everything, from the shape of his collars and his favorite haircut to his pet habits.

To pretend not to take him seriously when you are planning to take him if it takes a lifetime!

To persuade him that his soul is singing an aria when it is merely his pulse beating ragtime.

To put him through a lot of misery in order to prove that you could make him happy for life.

Oh, yes, getting your first job is a feat—but getting your first husband is a miracle.

* * *

Elinor Glyn Tells The Truth About

Modern Reveling

WHENEVER the state religion among the ancient Greeks became too stereotyped and conventional there always arose a wave—a Dionysic Revival"—which engulfed the most respectable citizens, staid counselors, matrons and maids—who then joined the mad throng of the worshipers whose God, was Dionysus—the God of Wine.

ELINOR GLYN

They beat drums, shrieked and sang—discarded their modest, ample draperies and wore fawn skins and vine leaves and rushed up the Mountain of Parnassus, where they indulged in the wildest dancing and maddest orgies—and when the frenzy was at its height they believed that they then had communion with the Divine. There was method in their madness, in short.

And who knows, in the immortal scheme of evolution there may be some method, too, in this "Dionysic" revival which is going on now. Perhaps it is to teach people who were sane when they began it that if they indulge they will become lower than the savages and throw away all the benefit the race has gained by civilization. Perhaps it may be to teach the rising generation by experience the miseries of immoderate indulgence in anything. Perhaps the lessons of precept are not strong enough to go hand in hand with the rush of motor cars, airplanes, telephones and radios, which has altered all viewpoints—and rendered temptation so much more acute.

Many of the modern young people are too awakened and intelligent to continue drunkenness once they have realized its effects, and those who are not will rot out and die, and not reproduce. Thus, eventually a new race will arise—sober from choice. Not by law—or the subconscious mind's obedience to early teachings. So, all is well!

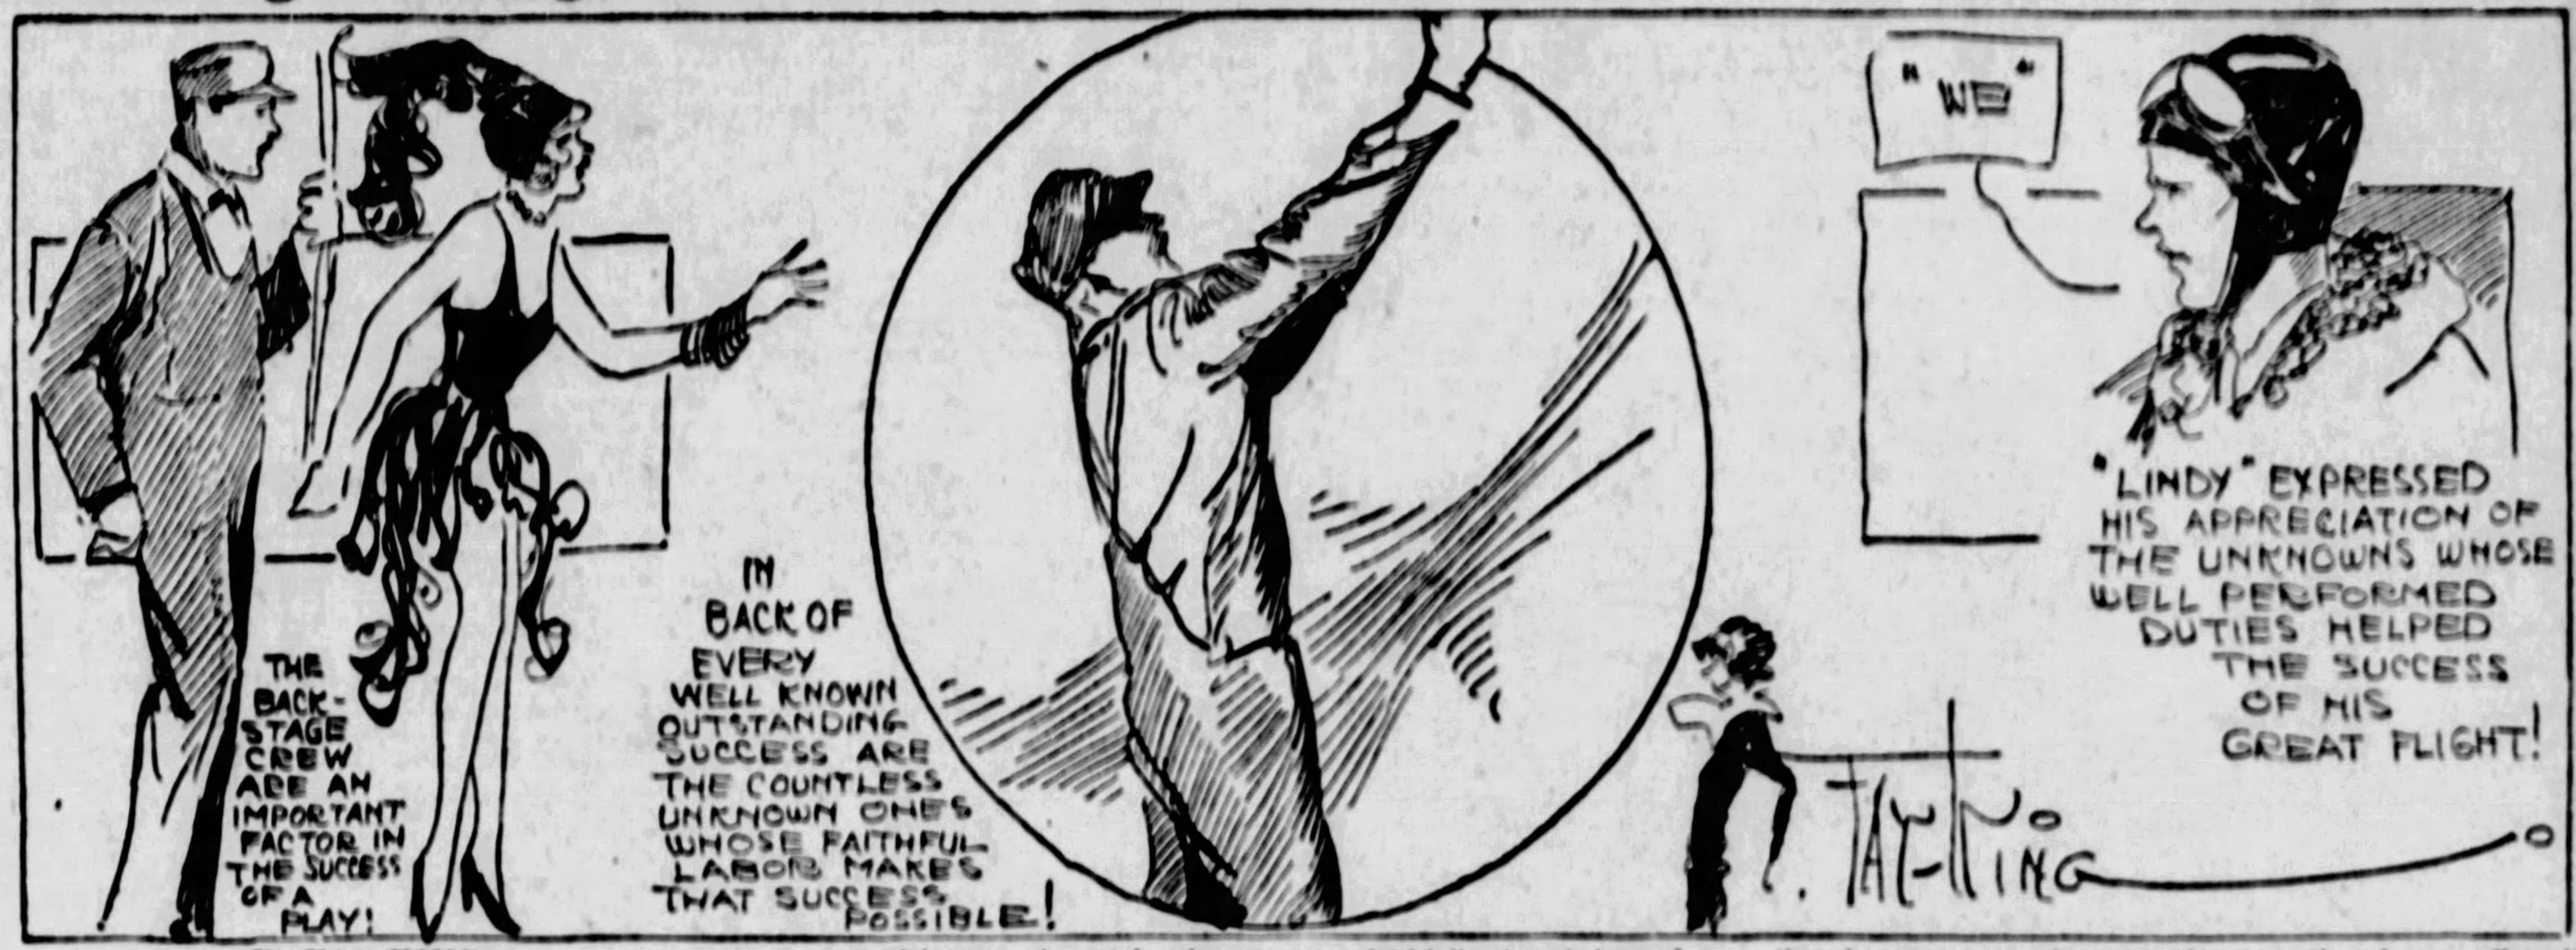
Fay King Gives Credit to Man Behind Scenes



THE BACK-STAGE CREW ARE AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN THE SUCCESS OF A PLAY!
IN BACK OF EVERY WELL KNOWN OUTSTANDING SUCCESS ARE THE COUNTLESS UNKNOWN ONES WHOSE FAITHFUL LABOR MAKES THAT SUCCESS POSSIBLE!

By FAY KING.

WHEN we come to consider any outstanding success, the name of which has become a household word, we must not forget how much of that success is due to the unknown ones.

We know a train by the high speed it makes safely between two great cities. But we do not know the names of the trusted engineers who daily drive the great engines and mighty cargo of human life safely to its destination.

We prefer a great store and praise its well known name and yet the real success of that store is the countless unknown clerks and buyers, who act for the owners so faithfully that their goods and attention have raised that store to a high place in the estimation of its customers.

We stand before a beautiful skyscraper and marvel at its towering stories, yet but for the humble hands that raised it faithful to their trust it might have tottered from its foundation.

No outstanding success stands alone, I don't care in what line of endeavor it may be classified. Whether it is a star or a store, an author or a deep sea diver. Each and everyone is dependent upon the faithful unknowns who contribute their share of duty to that success.

These unknowns do not receive public praise or approval. Often they do not even receive as much pay as they deserve. Yet often much more depends upon the faithful performance of their humbler duty than the final performance.

The poet Lowell paid these faithful one's a fitting tribute when he wrote:

The longer on this earth we live,
And weigh the various qualities of men,
The more we feel the high, stern-featured beauty
Of plain devotedness to duty,
Steadfast and still, nor paid with mortal praise,
But finding amplest recompense
In work done squarely and unwasted days!

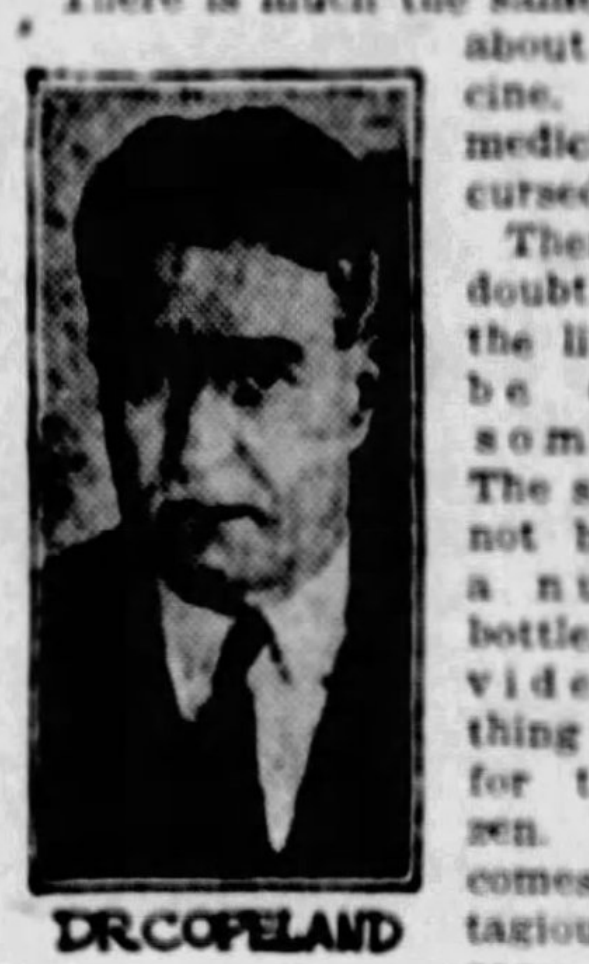
Attention to Teeth That Will Prevent Disease

NOTHING arouses opposition so quickly as any suggestion of a "state church." The popular idea is that men and women should be left free to choose their own religion, to practice religion or to reject it, as they please.



DR COPELAND

There is much the same feeling about medicine. "State medicine" is cursed.

There is no doubt that the line must be drawn somewhere. The state can not be made a nursing bottle, to provide everything in life for the citizen. When it comes to contagious disease the police power must be used if necessary to compel individuals to submit to procedures which are essential to the protection of society. But just where is the limit?

In America we have had many debates over school examinations, but particularly over medical treatment in and through the schools. Just now London is going through the experience of attempting to care for the teeth of its school children.

A few days ago I saw a newspaper dispatch from England. It described the reasons urged by parents who protest against free dental treatment in the London County Council schools. Here is one such objection, written by a mother to the school authorities:

"His father has had toothache all his life, so the child will have to put up with it."

How "fatalistic" we are! Many a person argues that what was good enough for his father is good enough for him! Many of us seem to think we just must go through all the experiences our forefathers had. There are plenty to protest against "new fangled ideas."

Before now I have told you of an uncle of mine, at that time nearly 90. He wanted to know if our baby had a "pork rind to chew on every day"—said that the baby couldn't thrive or amount to anything without it!

Uncle had the pork rind, and I suppose his parents had it when they were little—therefore, all babies should have it. That is the natural way to look at things. So the London woman resented "meddling" with what she appeared to believe is the proper experience of mankind.

"Bad teeth run in the family," said another parent. "On this account there is no hope of attempting to prevent the trouble." Of course, we are not ready to accept this verdict.

The popular idea about dentistry in some quarters is that all bad teeth are "pulled." So one parent in London asked this: "What was our teeth given us for but to eat with? And you want to draw them."

It is hard, too, to impress the importance of preventing disease and pain. Too many wait till trouble has actually arrived. In this spirit a parent wrote: "I'll take her to a proper dentist when her teeth ache."

The time when dentistry is absolutely painless is before the teeth reach the aching stage. It is to prevent pain and disease that early attention is necessary.

But here is the real argument of the sturdy Britisher: "Is the child mine or the London Council's?" That is the reason why it requires great tact to put over a program of general health practices. There is resentment of the invasion of the home and the home rights.

It is only by education of the public to the necessity for the prevention of disease that such efforts as London is making can succeed. When parents learn that a large percentage of disease and of failure in life can be traced to bad teeth, then there will be ready agreement to a health program.

Every parent is ambitious for the child. When the parent knows that the chance of success in life is multiplied many fold by having solid teeth, then there will be applause for the efforts of public health officials.

Smug snugness is what makes silken-clad knees appear most shapely. The latest glove-silk bloomers are knicker-tights, that are snug-fitting above the knee but cut with generous fullness across the seat. Infantile Paralysis

MOTHERS!

Learn how to guard your dear little ones against this terrible disease

Nobody knows where infantile paralysis comes from. It seems to spring from nowhere, and it marks out for its victims little children who are unable to defend themselves. Right now newspapers are reporting increasing epidemics of infantile paralysis throughout the nation. It is a germ disease, and the germs, in some manner, are spread from one child to another.

The favorite place for germs to enter the system is through the mouth. So the place to destroy the germs is while they are in the mouth. Nothing destroys germs so quickly as GERM-ORAL. Thousands use it daily—finding it the only absolute protection against disease. It maintains a constant condition of cleanness and sweetness of the mouth, besides preserving the health of throat, gums and teeth.

GERM-ORAL is the most powerful mouth antiseptic known to Medical Science, yet it is absolutely safe and pleasant for the tender mouths of little children. It leaves a cool, refreshing, pleasant taste.

Isn't it wiser to use GERM-ORAL than to have your children run the risk of catching disease? Go today to your druggist and get a bottle of GERM-ORAL. Just a simple swabbing of children's mouths night and morning with this scientific mouth antiseptic avoids disease dangers and relieves you of worry. GERM-ORAL is extremely economical. Just a few drops to a half glass of hot water is sufficient. If inconvenient to buy at the drug store, send 75c to Hollander Bros. Drug Co., Rankin, Pa., Dept. 56-T.

Are canned vegetables sometimes more nutritious than fresh? Are they really healthful? The Institute's timely article "What's in a Can of Vegetables" holds good news for women who hesitate to use canned foods.

Has "YELLOW MASK" made you despair of beauty?

Dental science has a new, quick way of erasing that unfashionable yellowish tinge—just try it!

Don't resign yourself to the idea that your teeth are naturally yellow. Or that glistening white teeth are for others—not for you. All teeth are a beautiful ivory white, yours included. Only a glassy yellow mask obscures the dazzling whiteness.

Here's where that unlovely yellowish tinge comes from and here's how to dispel it. In your saliva is a "liquid cement." It glues to your teeth—then hardens. Foods, coffee and tobacco stain this mask, for it is also an absorbent.

To rid enamel of this mask your dentist uses a precious substance known as "Tri-Calcium Phosphate." But only now has dental science found a way to embody this famous cleaning agent in a pleasant, tasty tooth paste. That is why, until now, you have never been able to dislodge that yellow mask.

LOOK FOR THIS! Note the "brush cling" when you use ORPHOS—also the utter absence of that nauseating foam.

The name of this new and marvelous dentifrice is ORPHOS Tooth Paste. Often it does in one brushing what others have failed to do over a period of years. The effects are truly amazing. Yet ORPHOS contains nothing that could do the slightest harm to the softest enamel—no grit, no acids.

CLUB PRESIDENTS DISCUSS PROBLEMS AT CONFERENCE

While they could scarcely be called benefits, the two meetings yesterday at the Congress of Clubs were certainly beneficial and productive of results. In the morning the Outlook Alliance room was filled with presidents who had come to discuss their mutual problems, problems relating to General Federation dues, to methods of work, to difficulty in finding the right thing for the right woman to do, getting out the attendance, and to procuring entertainers, all of which received much interesting and helpful discussion. Music was furnished by a vocal quartet from the Dormont New Century Club—Mrs. Miles S. Sutton, Mrs. H. A. Heineman, Mrs. H. F. Hanks and Mrs. Clarence Sloan, and by Mrs. Helen Hunt Allen, violinist. Mrs. Harold G. Ewens was accompanist for the singers and Mrs. Charles H. Bayha for Mrs. Allen. The various department chairmen told something of Congress work also.

Mrs. Carl E. Cosolowsky, Congress president, presided both morning and afternoon, but the morning program was in the hands of Mrs. W. C. McClure, while in the afternoon Mrs. E. B. Heyser was in charge. The afternoon session, which was conducted at the luncheon tables, also was well attended and to it were brought the problems of the press chairmen. How to gather news, how and when to get it to the newspapers and how not to handle it were a few of the questions put to and answered by the club editors of the daily papers. Miss Gertrude Gordon told some intensely interesting experiences of her newspaper career and gave her impressions of famous people whom she had interviewed. Mrs. J. Charles Wilson read, appropriately choosing the club woman parody on Kipling's "If" and the press woman parody on "A Fool There Was." The music consisted of soprano solos by Mrs. Mary Berkes Kennedy, with Mrs. J. D. Boydston at the piano.

The music for the thirty-second annual convention of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women will be an interesting feature of the five convention days, October 10-14. In addition to the assembly singing, which will feature several of the sessions, there will be solo numbers by well-known local artists. On Tuesday night's program in Carnegie Music Hall, Arthur B. Jennings, Jr., will give an organ solo; he and Mrs. Christine Haskell will give an organ and piano duet, Mrs. Haskell also offering a piano solo, and Cass Ward Whitney, baritone, will sing. Previous to the Tuesday and Wednesday afternoon programs there will be 15-minute organ recitals, Tuesday's by Charles Heinroth, and Wednesday's by Mr. Jennings. A particularly fine program has been arranged for Thursday night. The KDKA Little Symphony Orchestra, which probably has been heard on the air by every woman who will be at the convention, will play under the baton of its director and organizer, Victor Saudek. The orchestra will also accompany Mrs. Martha Eaton Brickman, soprano, and Mrs. Anne Hagmeier Woestehoff, contralto, in solos and duets. Charles Riley, violinist, with Oscar Helfenbein at the piano, will be the soloist at the Wednesday afternoon session.

Next Tuesday in the Congress clubhouse a reception and tea will be given by the Woman's Club of the City of Pittsburgh for its new president, Mrs. Joseph B. Drake. The program will be given by Mrs. J. Charles Wilson, reader; Mrs. Francess Schreiner Lane, soprano; Mrs. William L. Stone, contralto, and Mrs. Bertha Gross King, piano.

The presidents of all affiliated clubs of the Congress of Clubs, with their executive boards, delegates and alternates, will be the honor guests at the musical tea to be given Friday at the clubhouse under the auspices of the membership committee. Mrs. Helene Wickersham will present Mrs. Jean Wickersham Zimmerman, violinist; Miss Angelina Casale, soprano, and Miss Cecile Spargo, violinist.

Mrs. John H. Phillips, chairman of the membership committee, will be assisted by Mrs. C. A. Brooks, social chairman, Mrs. Sylvester Snee, chairman of hospitality, and Mrs. James C. Mace, chairman of the house committee. The campaign glee club will sing several songs composed for the occasion. Mrs. Thomas J. Carroll is chairman and director of the glee club.

"Our National Shrines" is the subject which the West View Forum will follow at its semi-monthly meetings this season, which will begin next Monday night with a dinner in the Congress of Clubs. The club's new officers, Mrs. R. W. Hill, president; Mrs. P. A. Maxwell, vice president; Miss Wilda Irvine, recording secretary; Mrs. G. F. Schuler, corresponding secretary; Mrs. G. F. Fincke, treasurer, and Mrs. G. C. Dean, parliamentarian, will receive. Mrs. A. H. Wilt will be toastmistress.

* * *

The Women's Club of Carnegie Institute of Technology will begin another year next Wednesday afternoon when president's day will be held in the Faculty Club rooms. In addition to the reception of new members, the program will include selections by Miss Lucile Hough, soprano; Miss Virginia Clovis, contralto; Miss Helen Soster, violin; and Miss Catherine Rickert, violin. As the theme for her inaugural address yesterday, Mrs. J. A. Gettig, president of the Braddock Woman's Club, took "The Importance of Today," commenting on the tendency to curb self-expression in order to conform to a standard. The meeting, which took place in the home of Mrs. W. T. Morgan, La Clair place, Regent Square, was marked by a particularly fine musical program. Mrs. Martha Eaton Brickman, soprano, sang; Mrs. Gertrude Martin Rohrer played several of her own piano compositions, and Mrs. W. S. McCrady, contralto, contributed selections. At roll-call vacation memories were given.

SERIES TOSSUP--PHILLIPPE

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

'BREAKS' TO DECIDE CHAMP

PIRATE PITCHING STAR OF 1903 BATTLES EXPECTS STRUGGLE TO GO LIMIT OF SEVEN GAMES—SAYS DING-DONG FIGHT DOWN TO THE FINISH IN NATIONAL LEAGUE RACE MAY FIND CORSAIRS BETTER PRIMED FOR FRAY THAN YANKEES, WHO HAVE BEEN ABLE TO LET DOWN WITH FLAG CLINCHED.

CHARLES (DEACON) PHILLIPPE, in his day one of the best pitchers in the U. S. A., has not forgotten how much the breaks mean in baseball, even though he has not pitched a game in years.

For that reason he says that the prospective world series between the Pirates and Yankees will be decided by the breaks. He thinks the clubs are so evenly matched that it is practically a toss-up as to which will win.

He says he will not be surprised if the series goes the limit of seven games, and believes that victory in the end will rest on the banner of the team that gets the breaks.

The former slab ace of the Pirates, who himself holds a place among the world series heroes of the past, still realizes the uncertainty of a short string of games like the post-season competition.

IN 1903 when the first of the modern world series was played between Pittsburgh and the Boston Americans, the big right-hander approached the peak of diamond fame by almost winning the series single-handed. He beat the Hubites in three of the first four games by scores of 7 to 3, 4 to 2, and 5 to 4.

The series was best five out of nine games that year, and with the fine start given to them by Phillippe the Pirates looked like sure winners.

But owing to the loss of Eddie Doheny's services the Bucs had really only one pitcher. Leever and Vail had to be used in the second game of the series and it was lost. Kennedy and Thompson were pressed into service in the fifth engagement and another defeat was suffered. Leever was sent back in the sixth game and once again the Corsairs were beaten.

THIS left the series tied at three victories for each club and with no other pitchers available Pittsburgh had no other course open than to send in Phillippe again for the seventh game here on October 10, and the eighth game in Boston on October 13. It was too much to ask of one man, and "Phil" lost the seventh game to Cy Young, 7 to 3, and the eighth to Bill Dineen, 3 to 0.

But at least he established a record of pitching five complete games in one world series, adding, even in defeat, another chapter to one of the most brilliant pitching records of all time, a record which, by the way, also included a no-hit, no-run game hurled against the Giants while the Deacon was toiling for the Louisville National League club on May 25, 1899.

Phillippe also pitched in two games for Pittsburgh against Detroit in the world series of 1909, but he was then nearing the end of his career and was used only as a relief man.

BUT to return to Phillippe's views of the 1927 world series. The veteran, now connected with a Pittsburgh advertising concern, does not think there is a doubt in the world that the Pirates are going to win the National League pennant.

"Why, certainly they're going to win it," he said. When asked where he got the "certainly" he replied: "Well, just because they are. They are the best club in the league, beyond a doubt, and why shouldn't they win, inasmuch as they are in first place, and the chances surely favor the leading club when the season has only a few days to go. The Pirates have just as good a chance to win two of their remaining three games as their rivals have of winning all of theirs. If the Bucs lose a game, so may their pursuers.

"AS TO picking the winner of the world series," continued the Deacon, "well, it just can't be done unless you are gifted with second sight and can thus see which club is going to get the breaks. In my opinion the outcome will be a toss-up. The series will be a meeting of two evenly-matched teams and it would not surprise me a bit if it were to go the full seven games, with the breaks deciding the argument.

"I do not agree with those who think the Yankees are sure winners and should be big favorites. Our club is just as good as theirs, and will have just as good a chance to win.

"Certainly the Pirates showed during the season that they deserve such a rating, for they were sadly crippled at times, and it is a tribute to their gameness and fighting spirit that they are winning out in spite of such severe handicaps and after such a tough fight, while the Yankees had practically a walkaway.

"BUT perhaps, that hard fight at the finish may work out to the advantage of the Pirates. The Yanks clinched the flag some time ago and naturally have let down to a slower pace since—just loafing along, you might say. It may not be easy after such a let-down for a club to get going in its best form again as soon as the series begins.

On the other hand, the Pirates will be hustling right up to the last, and will consequently be able to enter the series while still going at top speed. All of our players are in good shape and going well, and the pitchers in particular I believe are in their best form of the season.

"The Yankees are touted as a great hitting club, but really the only dangerous men I see in the lineup are Ruth and Gehrig. I think the Pirates are equally as good a hitting out today, as two days of complete relaxation was not to be desired altogether. But they will have to accept the matter as it comes, which means there will be no workout.

BUCS SET FOR RED SERIES

The Pirates are scheduled to open their last series of the season tomorrow afternoon on Redland Field. Three games with the Reds on successive afternoons will wind up the playing card for the year.

These three contests, as everybody knows, are heavy with importance. If the Pirates could feel sure that the Cardinals and Giants would lose a game, they would not be so keen about winning at least two of the struggles with the Reds. The Cardinals, in particular, have been hard to shake off and they are within two games of the top with each of the three contenders still to play three games.

NEED TWO WINS

In the event that the Pirates should lose two games, the Cardinals could force a deadlock at the finish of the race by winning all three of their remaining contests. A tie between two leaders would necessitate an extra battle after the close of the regular season to determine the winner. Of course, the Pirates think that such an eventuality will not come to pass, and they will go far to prevent any such happening.

The Giants are still three games from the Pirates; therefore, they would have to win their three closing games to deadlock even if the Pirates do not score a success in Cincinnati. So it is the Redbirds that the Buccos view with alarm. The Cards have two games with the Cubs on the home lot after they leave here. The Giants have two games left with the Dodgers and one with the Phillies.

All in all it has been a great race and one that deserves to be ranked with the competition of 1908, when the Pirates, the Giants and the Cubs went right down to the last day. That was the year Merkle forgot to touch first. An extra game between the Giants and Cubs was played to decide the title, the Cubs winning.

DEMPSEY PAYS LEO $75,000

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The services of Leo P. Flynn, who managed Jack Dempsey in his fights with Jack Sharkey and Gene Tunney, were worth $75,000 to the former champion over a 90-day period. Dempsey has given Flynn a check for that amount under a blank contract in which the Manassa Mauler was allowed to stipulate the sum at the expiration of the agreement.

Flynn said at the outset he was willing to accept what Dempsey considered he was worth.

Next to Flynn, the biggest check paid by Dempsey was that to Jerry Luvadis, known as "Jerry the Greek." While the exact amount was not revealed, it is understood to be $25,000.

Definite information regarding the payment by Tunney for the services of his manager, Billy Gibson, was lacking, but it was estimated at $100,000 to $250,000. Lou Fink, the champion's trainer, was scheduled to receive a bonus of $20,000. Bill McCabe and Eddie Eagan, two of Tunney's close friends, also were to share in the titleholder's Chicago earnings of approximately $1,000,000.

JACK TO "ROUGH IT"

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—With his bankroll decreased by $100,000, Jack Dempsey will leave tonight for Wilmington, Del., with his wife, the former Estelle Taylor. After visiting his wife's parents in Wilmington for a few days, he plans to spend a month in California and then rough it in Colorado for another month before resuming his ring activities.

Heidelberg Game With Rovers Off

CHAMPS GET RIGHT TO CHOOSE SPOT

By TOM BIRKS.

THE first round preliminary game between Heidelberg and the Pittsburgh Rovers, scheduled for Sunday at Heidelberg, is off, the Rovers, through Manager McClurg having withdrawn from the competition last evening, following a telegram from New York to Commissioner Fairfield giving the United States amateur champions the right to the date and venue according to the draw.

While both clubs will lose quite a little good U. S. A. shekels, the withdrawal from the tournament of the Lawrenceville aggregation has removed quite a chance for a storm in a tieup. The Strip aggregation figured that it might effect a home game in the luck of the draw, but it was not to be.

One has to admire the stand of the McClurg club. Never in all its years of successful soccer has it broke its rule not to play Sunday football. But since Sunday football has become the vogue in this district, and it is the Sunday games that draw the crowds, most of the cup ties are played on that day.

If Heidelberg had to pay its expenses on Saturday games, the club would go broke. Saturday games will not draw enough to pay the referee. Whereas the Sunday crowd will bring a $200 crowd. But the Rovers have seen fit to withdraw, and that ends the discussion.

It seems as if the ban is still on the Washington County League. The president of the local governing body has had plenty of correspondence with the national office, and the local man seems to have the edge and is standing pat. But the ban on the players is lifted and that is what counts.

Jock Sutherland Says:

JOCK SUTHERLAND,
Pitt Football Coach.

THE football situation, so far as the Tri-State district is concerned, will take on a big league aspect Saturday when all of the teams in the territory swing into action.

Tech, Geneva, W. & J., Bethany, Waynesburg, Pitt, Westminster and Thiel all got started last week, but Grove City and Allegheny will complete the lineup when they open the season Saturday afternoon. Grove City, by the way, will start things off here in Pittsburgh with Pitt. I am not taking the game lightly, in spite of the reports issuing out of Grove City and having to do with rumors that the Grovers are not as strong as in years past.

W. & J. and Geneva are the teams that will face tests. Western Maryland is going to give the Presidents a tough battle, you can count on that, and I think that the Geneva-Bucknell contest will be one of the best in the East.

Pittsburgh is going to be primarily interested in Duquesne, opening the home season with Broaddus and employing a new system taught by a new coach, Elmer Layden, former Notre Dame star. I hope the Dukes have a successful year, and that they get off on the right foot Saturday and defeat Broaddus.

Allegheny tackles St. Bonaventure, and as the New York state school downed Duquesne last week we will be able to get somewhat of a line on the Methodists, who I hear, have a powerful eleven.

Carnegie Tech will get to try to beat the score we piled up on Thiel. The Tartans had a hard game with Westminster last week and have a number of regulars on the crippled list. I think Tommy Holleran's team will give a mighty good account of itself against the Tartans.

MELLOW-LAGREY TOP CARD TONIGHT

McKEESPORT boxing fans will be treated to their third weekly show of the indoor season at the Palisades Roller Rink this evening, when Johnny Mellow, of Detroit, and Joey LaGrey, of Johnstown, will furnish the 10-round main bout. Both are hard hitters, and the cash customers anticipate a real slugging bee. Both also are favorites with the patrons of the club by reason of good showings they have made in previous appearances.

A strong preliminary card has been arranged for the show.

Harry Taylor of the North Side and Teddy Welch of McKeesport will box the semi-final. The second bout will be between Joey Katkish of Lawrenceville, former national amateur bantamweight champion, and Jackie Rodgers, flashy Negro of the North Side, while two heavyweights, Pete Lamb and Dick Gibbons, both of McKeesport, will meet in the opening bout.

The South Side Market House probably will be remodeled inside before the Keystone Club resumes staging show there late next month. It is said a balcony will be added to the present seating arrangements.

The Duquesne Garden management also is considering putting on bouts, so that, with Motor Square Garden also in operation, there should be plenty of fistic activity in the city shortly.

Reed Brown has his featherweight, Patsy Gallagher, of the South Side primed for a busy season. Patsy was on the sidelines most of last season because of a dislocated finger.

Tex Rickard fires the opening gun of his new heavyweight elimination series tomorrow night when he tosses Jim Maloney back into the ring with Tom Heeney, the Australian, in his Madison Square Garden arena, New York. Benny Touchstone meets Harold Mays and Jack Derval engages Farmer Joe Smith in other feature battles on the card.

Sid Terris, New York's favorite candidate for the lightweight title, boxes Hilario Martine at the Queensboro Club, New York, tonight.

Rudy Ceder, Tarentum welterweight, meets Freddie Washington, Negro boxer of Cresson and Philadelphia, in the main bout of a card at the Ebensburg Fair Grounds next Monday night. Harry Taylor, of the North Side, and K. O. Ferry, of McKeesport, box the semi-final, and U. S. Carpentier and Art De Champlain will appear in one of the six-round prelims.

Tiger Flowers To Come Here With Lawson

Tiger Flowers, former middleweight champion, and the man who won the title from the late Harry Greb, of Pittsburgh, will make his first appearance in this city next Monday night, when he will help to second his stablemate, Bob Lawson, against Yale Okun in the 10-round wind-up at Motor Square Garden. Flowers boxes Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, at Wilkes-Barre tomorrow night and will come direct from there to Pittsburg, along with his and Lawson's manager, Walk Miller.

Flowers may meet Chuck Wiggins, of Indianapolis, Gene Tunney's chief sparring partner, at Chicago, in the windup of the second show at Motor Square, a week from Monday. Negotiations for the match now are under way.

Champion Tunney himself may be here for the Motor Square opener. He plans to attend the opening games of the world series here Wednesday and Thursday and will come on a few days ahead if he is able to shape up his affairs in New York in time.

"Little Series" Opener Again Postponed

TOLEDO, O., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The first game of the "little world series" was again postponed today, when rain began about 1 o'clock and fell so steadily that play was declared impossible. Another effort will be made to play the opening game here tomorrow, but in any event the Toledo champions of the American Association will leave with the Buffalo pennant winners of the International League for Buffalo Friday night to play there Saturday and Sunday.

Bobby Jones Enters Second Year of Law

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Bobby Jones, Atlanta golfer, has entered his second year of law school at Emory University here.

After Bobby finished the freshman course at Emory in June in the runner-up position, rumors were current that he might scratch his entry this fall to complete his study in his father's law office here.

Andy Kerr to Coach Eastern All-Stars

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 29.—Andy Kerr, coach of Washington and Jefferson College, will select and coach the all-star Eastern team to meet the Western team here December 26, it was announced. Babe Hollingsbery, Washington State coach, has been selected to head the Western all-stars.

TERRIS IS FAVORITE OVER MARTINEZ TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Sid Terris is a 7 to 5 favorite to beat Hilario Martinez, hard-hitting Spanish lightweight, in their 10-round bout tonight. New York's East Side favorite has a return battle coming up with Phil McGraw, of Detroit, and was anxious to secure an indefinite postponement of the Martinez engagement, but later agreed to go through with his contract.

Terris, who has been floored in his last three fights, only to get the decision in each, is favored by many to drop the Spaniard before the tenth round.

Martinez is angling for a chance at Sammy Mandell's lightweight title and a victory over Terris would help his cause greatly.

FOUR STARS RELEASED BY POTTSVILLE PROS

POTTSVILLE, Sept. 29.—The management of the Pottsville Maroons has announced the release of four players. They are Stemme and Farina, centers; Charles, a backfield man, and Underwood, an end. Two others are to be released during the week.

Herb Stein, former Pitt center, is still dickering with the local management and may be signed up. The Maroons journey to Chicago on Sunday to contest with Guy Chamberlin's Cards.

Dukes to Surprise Fans On Saturday

NEW STYLE TO BE ON DISPLAY

By JESS CARVER.

KEEP a weather eye peeled for the 1927 Duquesne University gridiron varsity as it takes the field Saturday afternoon against dear old Broaddus. The new Duke team is going to be a revelation, and to tell the truth, will hardly look at home up on the Bluff, even in the setting of new stands.

The decision on the part of Duquesne University athletic powers to stage all the Dukes' home games on Saturday afternoons this season was a good move. It is entirely in line with the new athletic policy of the school, designed to put the Dukes on a plane with other colleges in this section.

Heretofore, or during the past three or four years, the Dukes have been playing on Friday afternoon, when other college teams were resting up for their Saturday games. Playing on Friday gave some folks the idea that the Dukes were backing down before other schools that played their games on Saturday, and amounted to a practical acknowledgement that the Dukes couldn't keep pace with some of their rivals.

Duquesne has a great enough following to insure a fine attendance at Saturday games. If the student body alone will turn out for games, there should be at least 5,000 in the stands watching the Dukes perform.

NEW SYSTEM USED

This year, with a new coach and a new system, the inaugural game here on Saturday with Broaddus should "pack 'em in." It was Broaddus that gave Duquesne a new lease on life four years ago, when under Hal Ballin, the Dukes scored their first victory in three years and their first touchdown in two.

COACHES IGNORE LATERAL PASS RULE

THE football coaches are not taking advantage of the change in the rules which protects lateral and backward passing by eliminating the loss of the ball on fumbles as the rules committee figured they would when the change was made in the hope that it would help to open up the game more.

Coach Walter P. Steffen, of Carnegie Tech, recently voiced the general sentiment of the mentors when he said that the best way to take advantage of the new rule is not to work on perfecting the play, but to develop a defense against it. The defense is to ignore the man with the ball and concentrate on smashing his interference. Thus gains are prevented, and, in the event of failure to complete the pass, the grounded ball is put back in play at the point where it strikes the ground, and this must necessarily mean a loss to the attacking side.

Pop Warner was a believer in the lateral pass, especially a short basketball chuck, when he was in charge of Pitt's teams. Other teams did not go in for the play to any great extent at the time and few were on the lookout for it and the Panthers thus were able to make some spectacular gains. Pitt several times used the lateral or backward pass as a surprise play in running back the kickoff and almost invariably caught the opposition napping.

The play sounds good and looks good on paper, but it is doubtful if it will gain a wide vogue as the season progresses.

BILL PEET SENDS MASON A BOXER

BILL PEET, former sports editor of the old Pittsburgh Dispatch and later with the Pittsburgh Post, cannot easily forget his old friends back in this town. In a letter to this department from Honolulu, where he is sports editor of the Honolulu Advertiser, Bill writes that he is sending on a new fighter for the stable of James (Red) Mason. The ringster is Jess Hoak, a welterweight, whose parents reside in McKeesport.

Jess is a welterweight, who has been starring in bouts in the Navy. He is fast and a good puncher. He is about 24 years old and has been an enlisted man for five years. He should fill the shoes of Rudy Ceder, the Tarentum thumper, who no longer is with Mason.

Hoak is expected along any day now. Like Lindbergh, he carries a letter of introduction.

STEVE SWETONIC MAKES GOOD

STEVE SWETONIC is back home from Indianapolis, where he won eight and lost seven games for the American Association club of that city. Most of the work of the former University of Pittsburgh and local sandlot mound star was in the role of relief man. The club finished sixth in the race, so that Steve had a very successful season, considering that it was his first year in organized baseball, and his prospects are very bright.

* * *

Steve is a great booster for Bruno Betzel, who was serving his first season as manager of the Hoosier club, and says the team would have finished much higher but for injuries and other bad breaks early in the season. Betzel succeeded Donie Bush when the latter left Indianapolis to become manager of the Pirates.

HERB STEIN TO HAVE PRO TEAM

HERB STEIN, all-America center at Pitt back in 1919, and one of the greatest players in Panther history, will not be back with the Frankford Yellow Jackets of the National Professional League this fall, but instead will manage a professional team of his own, and it promises to be a strong one. Herb is back in his home town, Niles, O., and the team will represent that town. He is figuring on a schedule of 10 games with the best teams available. Jess Brown, crack halfback and punter of the Panthers of a few seasons ago, who played with Herb for Frankford last year, will be one of the members of the squad and so will Marsh Johnson, crack Pitt center of four seasons ago, and Zeke

HAVEY BOYLE

THE sole topic of discussion among sporting fans in this section is how the Pirates will fare in the world series against the Yankees, and you could have included this writer in the great number of fans who are wondering with great expectancy about the ultimate series winner, until yesterday when this writer gazed upon Frank Pauly, a giant guard of the Washington and Jefferson football team.

Havey Boyle.

Writing about football with a world series on tap may not be entirely sound, but there is precedent. About 1905 a reporter named Irvin Cobb was sent to Portsmouth to "cover" peace treaty negotiations between, if my history is correct, Russia and Japan, presided over by the United States. Mr. Cobb, upon discovering that there were a great many reporters available for handling the details of the negotiations, logically began writing of other matters entirely.

Of course, he was an unusual reporter. I might digress a little further to say that Mr. Cobb got his first job in New York City—as a reporter—by writing letters to every paper, and exactly five answered his unusual letter to offer him a job.

So if a Cobb could write of trifles during a great negotiation, then a less worthy man might write of Frank Pauly, Washington and Jefferson guard, with a world series just around the next bend, because Pauly is no trifle.

PAULY weighs 267 pounds and stands well above 6 feet. Once, in a very hard game on a very wet field Pauly, due to rain and mud, moved off the field weighing 45 pounds more than his normal weight. He carried that much water and mud off the field—45 pounds. There must be some fat mixed up in the 267 pounds he now lugs around, but a close observation failed to reveal much of it. Most of the 267 pounds is well conditioned flesh and muscle. They say that he tires but little during a game and that even at running interference, when some speed is necessary, he is not unlike the well-known bearcat.

WHAT amazes this writer, after having seen Pauly on the practice field in Washington, Pa., is that the town is not filled with posters about this great giant, and what astounds further is that the various and capable Mr. Days, mixed up prominently in Washington journalistic circles, and Mr. Lawrence Stewart, did not buttonhole this writer at once to dance circles while they excitedly and in strange tongues spoke of Pauly.

YOU will see Pauly when Wash-Jeff plays Carnegie Tech, and you will see him again when Wash-Jeff later plays the Pitt Panthers. This is a safe prediction. If you don't see Pauly the best advice is to consult with your favorite oculist.

The chances are when you see Pauly dash out onto the field you will say: "Well, there go two husky linemen," at which time you will be corrected by a proud Washingtonian, who will say: "Oh, no, that's our Pauly."

THERE were plenty of stalwart, handsome and superb athletes working out yesterday under the capable direction of Andy Kerr, but all through their various training didoes Pauly stood out as prominently as a tum-berry on the nose of a man who is trying to abstain for a month or so.

PAULY need do little more than fall forward, and the hole made such a gesture is large enough for a five-ton truck to run through.

Pauly is not new at Washington and Jefferson, but it was not until yesterday that this reporter got close enough to realize the quality of his dimensions.

There was a curiosity, after sizing him up, as to what special preparations are made by the transportation committee when the Wash-Jeff team and Pauly have to pull out of Washington for a game. A lower berth would certainly groan in misery at the entrance of Pauly, and one parlor car chair would just about take care of one-half of him.

THE pleasant part of the report is that with his wonderful bulk he moves around as fast as less heavier men. He is a good charger, can make a tackle, and when he runs interference the boys who are struck look up at the sky and murmur: "That was the 9:15 that struck me. It couldn't have been the 8:55 because it is always on time."

ALEX FOX and John Roberts of Pitt, the guards who, no doubt, will bump into Pauly, should start eating an extra steak or so to be prepared when Pauly comes to town. Perhaps a pretty good way would be to play tandem guard, so that while the one guard is under Pauly the fellow behind can start in to do whatever a guard is supposed to do.

Babe Pressed For Time In Homer Race

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(UP.)—Three games to play and two home runs shy of his 1921 record of 59, Babe Ruth must hit three in three games to establish a new record.

Ruth says he can.

He has his heart set on it and is ready to make his last supreme effort in the three-game series opening today with the Washington Senators.

City League to Be Opened

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

THE gridiron will call for the whole-hearted attention of virtually every high school in the district beginning tomorrow for another couple of days. The City League gets under way in two sections; with Perry back in Section II, that schedule will go through as carded, although it is not anticipated the North Siders will have a particularly strong machine. The W. P. I. A. L. race also gets under way.

Tomorrow's games will see Allegheny's eleven stacking up against Carrick's warriors and the Langley stalwarts moving against Oliver in Section II, with Schenley battling with South in the only Section I tilt. Peabody, a Section I member, will be on a "foreign" field in Steubenville. Perry was slated to play the formidable South Hills crew, but, inasmuch as it has hardly had a chance to get prepped up, the tilt has been changed to October 28.

A couple of good games should ensue when Dormont invades Bellevue's grounds, and Aspinwall locks horns with Ben Avon. In the same sector, Coraopolis will be meeting Avalon.

Millvale will be entertained by Etna at home, while Clairton is paying a visit to Homestead.

The Little Washington championship may be at stake when Trinity tackles the W. P. I. A. L. championship Washington machine of Hank Day.

Monongahela should give Duquesne a real battle on the latter's grounds. Crafton goes to Sewickley and Cecil to Carnegie.

LANGLEY AT OLIVER

Coach James (Red) Dennis has his squad in fairly good shape for his opening battle with Langley on the Oliver High School field tomorrow afternoon. Dennis has had to contend with a weak line, and his backfield, he says, is not exceptional, although much stronger in comparison. He has been working with a squad of about 45 men and feels that his team is going to do a lot of good this year, although it won't be a world beater. The sophomores who make up the line likely will be used to better advantage next year.

ALLEGHENY AT CARRICK

Coach Teddy Lyons, of Carrick, has his team as fit as a fiddle and eager for tomorrow's battle on the home grounds against the invading Allegheny High School forces of Coach H. M. Springer. Lyons is fairly well pleased with his first-string outfit, and anticipates a great season for them. One of the finest things evident about Carrick's squad is its fine fighting spirit and steady sizzling of enthusiasm. Springer has a green squad this year, made up of juniors for the most part, and does not think it will get very far unless a great change comes over it. He has some dandy material at that for next year after it has had a little experience.

ASPINWALL AT BEN AVON

Coach Arthur McCombs has been drilling Aspinwall's machine steadily in preparation for tomorrow's contest at Ben Avon. The squad has had to get down to hard work—and is showing real results. On the other hand, Coach Mathes, at Ben Avon, is confident that his team will make a better showing than it did in its first two encounters.

PEABODY AT STEUBENVILLE

Coaches Vedder and Myers have Peabody's eleven in the best of trim for the East Enders' game at Steubenville tomorrow. The locals are quite confident of returning with victory.

Avalon High School's coaches are quite proud of the fine showing their proteges made against Wilkinsburg last week even though beaten. Tomorrow Avalon meets another strong foe in Coraopolis on its home field, and a merry battle is anticipated. Coraopolis, in turn, is quite prepared for a terrific onslaught.

VOCATIONAL PREPS

Coach A. L. Walsh is endeavoring to mould some sort of a combination out of green material in his first year as mentor at Allegheny Vocational. Virtually all of the players are inexperienced, although he has some good heavy boys. Vocational only will play second local teams and smaller high schools in the outlying districts this year until it gets started. Walsh hopes to take in a larger field next year once he is organized.

MON VALLEY

Monongahela valley W. P. I. A. L. football squads here settled down to their final period of intensive drill preparatory to Saturday's opening. Although the teams of Charleroi, Donora, Monessen, Monongahela, California, Washington and Scottdale do not open until October 1, all of the teams have games scheduled with "trial horses" for this Saturday.

The big four in the valley—Monongahela, Charleroi, Donora and Monessen—have championship hopes this year. Scouting has become an active pastime and school spirit is running higher than for years.

Washington High has been feared by some of the Union valley schools but Monongahela High has Coach Day's men on their schedule at an early date.

Scarcely any of the teams in that district have escaped without some heartbreaking pre-season reversal. Illness, injury and failure to return to school have taken their toll.

SPORT COMMENT

club. Certainly they have a greater number of good hitters.

"OUR pitchers are as good as New York's, if not better. Kremer towers over anyone on the Yankee staff. He is the best pitcher in the National League, and I look for him to beat the American Leaguers. Kremer is a pitcher who always has something in reserve. When a pinch comes he can let out as much extra stuff as is necessary, whereas the average pitcher has nothing extra left when he gets in a jam, as he has been doing his best from the start.

"Kremer and Hill make a pair that the Yanks cannot equal. There is another boy whom I'd like to see in there, too. That boy is Miljus. I like the way he works. He looks like a real pitcher.

"Aldridge may win a game, too, with his fine curve ball, to which the Yanks are not accustomed, but Vic works so hard in a game that he is about all in at the finish and it takes him longer than the others to come back at his best.

"Meadows 'knows how,' but he has been pitching for a long time and cannot be expected to do as much as some of the younger fellows. If we had another pitcher as good as Kremer I would predict Pittsburgh would win the series.

"I DO not think the reported New York plan of working Pennock and Shoether overtime in the hope of stopping Pittsburgh's left-hand hitters will be a success. The Waners hit left-handers as well as right-handers and so does Grantham on many occasions.

"I believe that a pitcher with a good curve or a good change of pace can stop the hitting of Ruth and Gehrig.

"But they are both strong hitting clubs, and I shall not be surprised if some of the games end in big scores, such as 8 to 7. It will be a hard fight all the way and may go the limit. The team that gets the breaks will win, I think. Aside from the breaks Pittsburgh has an even chance to win, with better catchers, pitchers as good or better, at least as good an infield, and an outfield that is superior to New York's.

"Do I think the strain and excitement of the important games with the big crowds looking on will affect the work of the Waner brothers? Not by a jugful. The strain of the series will not feaze those kids a bit. They'll play the same kind of ball every day. The title struggles will be just ordinary ball games to them."

TOMOSKY AND RYAN ON PHILADELPHIA CARD

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 29.—(INS.)—Pittsburgh glovemen will feature the final and semi-final bouts at the Cambria Club here tomorrow night, when Johnny Burns holds his weekly fistic seance. Bricky Ryan will fight in the windup, and he has no bargain in Johnny Harko, while Andy Tomosky is the Pittsburgh entry in the semi-final. Tomosky meets Matty White, who had pretentions to the flyweight crown.

BREAKS COURSE RECORD

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Miller B. Stevinson of the Columbia Country Club broke the Indian Spring course record yesterday with a 67, four under par, to lead in the District of Columbia amateur golf championship now held by George Voigt. Stevinson did 36 holes in 145, Voigt in 148.

KECK TALKS TO MONARCHS

The second talk of a series of talks on the Dempsey-Tunney bout was given by Harry Keck, sports editor of the Sun-Telegraph, at luncheon of the Monarch Club in Kaufmann's at noon today.

LOCAL IZAAK WALTONS' TOURNEY DAY SATURDAY

The annual tournament day of the Allegheny county chapters of the Izaak Walton League will be held Saturday at Saunders' Triangle, on the William Penn highway, one mile beyond Burke's Glen. The program is to include traps, rifle and revolver shooting, bait and fly casting and novelty events and entertainment.

INDIANA NORMAL MEETS ST. VINCENT'S SATURDAY

Due to the fact that pre-school training is not the vogue at the Beatty institution as yet, Coach Clem Crowe was forced to go at top speed to get his boys in shape for the formidable Indiana Normal eleven. The boys from Indiana will be the opening attraction Saturday.

With many of last year's squad back, Coach Crowe did not experience much trouble in bringing the squad into shape. Capt. Boots Butala, the reliable wing man, will again lead the team.

WOOSTER GRIDDERS OPEN SEASON SATURDAY

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 29.—The 1927 football season gets under way here Saturday with Wooster playing the strong non-conference Ashland eleven. Owing to the inexperience of his squad, Coach Boles declared that he would not decide on a starting lineup until tomorrow. At least five of the men who will start for Wooster will be playing their first game of college football.

Boles put in the early sessions of the week with hard scrimmages. This was done to perfect the offense to some degree for the opening game and to develop a defense to the overhead style of play Ashland is expected to use.

The Wooster grid mentor has given his team many of the plays which he learned last season while in California. He is not expected to allow the team to use them against Ashland, but will save them for the Ohio Conference games which come later.

A late shift in Wooster's lineup has placed Pierson, an end candidate, at tackle. This was forced by the injuries to Stoll and Naylor and the continued absence of Bishop, a tackle from the 1926 frosh.

YOUNG HARRY WILLS DROPS BOUT ON FOUL

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 29.—Young Harry Wills, of San Diego, was disqualified for fouling Young Dick Hoppe, of Glendale, in the third round of the main event of Promoter Tommy Simpson's card here last night.

The battle was a hammer and tongs affair up to the time the referee stopped the fight and gave the decision to Hoppe.

In the semi-windup Dynamite Murphy, of Sacramento, was given the decision over Angel De La Cruze, the fighting Filipino.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

DAMON RUNYON.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—In the confusion that followed the battle of the lazy count in Chicago, a young stranger from San Francisco missed the attention of the infuriated clients to which he was justly entitled.

I have reference to one Armand Emanuel, a slender, graceful young Hebrew, who boxed George LaRocco, of New York, in one of the preliminaries following the main event, while the folks were still jabbering about the muddled arithmetic of the referee and the timekeeper.

Here is the greatest pugilistic prospect these old eyes have beheld in many a day. You have often seen the name of Armand Emanuel in this column in the past, but I was speaking of his ability mainly on what my trusted operatives on the West Coast had told me. Now I have seen for myself. He is a lily, as we say at the club. He is everything my operatives said, and 100 per cent more.

Armand Emanuel is about 20 years old. He comes of a good family in San Francisco, and is just completing a law course. He weighs around 175 pounds just now, but will probably go to 190 when he is fully matured. Bar his own indiscretions, or bad management, he cannot fail to be among the heavyweight title contenders a year or so from this date.

I believe he is a product of the famous Olympic Club of San Francisco, one of the greatest organizations of the kind in the world, which turned out James J. Corbett in the long ago.

My operatives had been telling me that Emanuel was the fastest, cleverest big man developed on the Pacific Coast since Corbett's day. And I can well believe it. He has a great pair of legs, and good feet. He moves like a streak of light, and he has a marvelous left hand—a left that can split a hair.

They told me that Emanuel's one fault was that he couldn't hit. I saw him drop La Rocco, one of the best of the young heavyweights in the East, for a good count. He made George look as if he had never had on a pair of boxing gloves before until the last round, when La Rocco began coming on.

But Emanuel was about seven lengths in front of George by the end of the sixth round, and at the final bell La Rocco gazed at the young man from the West Coast with an expression of amazement.

"How do you think Emanuel would go with some of these Eastern heavyweights?" someone asked La Rocco's manager, Tommy Fahy, yesterday.

"How would he go?" said Tommy. "I don't know of any of them that could even hit him."

THE young Hebrew did a lot of boxing on the West Coast before he turned professional, and he was a remarkable amateur. He has had about 14 battles as a professional, and I am told he has yet to lose a decision.

I always like to see these young fellows tagged a few times before I pass judgment on them. But my operatives tell me that Senor Don Antonio Fuentes, the Mexican jumping bean, once had Emanuel on the carpet, and that Armand got up like a good fellow and won the struggle.

A scattering of San Francisco ringworms were whooping for Armand in Chicago and were highly elated over his victory, but I doubt if they realized just how good a man the young fellow whipped. I rate La Rocco very high among the youngsters of the period.

The west coast wonder is managed by his father, as I understand it, with the line of gents who would like to do his managing forming on the left. You can't blame them when you figure that a few years of effort with a youngster of Emanuel's promise might gather one of those $1,000,000 purses that Mr. Tunney snagged the other day.

I am told that even the astute Mr. George Tex Rickard opened his innocent eyes in astonishment as he viewed Emanuel, and implored Armand's parent to be very, very careful with the lad from now on. Mr. Rickard can see a vein of pugilistic promise as far as the next man.

SOME time ago in rating the pugilistic prospects of the country, I included the name of Armand Emanuel in my list as representing the Pacific coast. The others were Wyoming Warner of Cheyenne, representing the Rocky Mountain west; Big Ben Pound of Florida, Ernie Schaaf of New Jersey and Roy Hoot Burger of Kansas.

I believe that Roy Hoot has so far failed to advance beyond his early promise and Schaaf, the ex-sailor, is doing just so-so. But Emanuel, Warner and Pound are moving ahead. The Wyoming youngster, in four battles, has advanced to the top of a Philadelphia card next month against Pete Latzo, the former welterweight champion, who has suddenly blown up into a light heavy.

Warner is apparently the greatest hitter of the younger bunch with the most sensational style, but Emanuel's grace and science make him sensational, too, especially against fighters. I have never seen a better left hand on any man. Pound, they tell me, is more of a slugger than anything else.

Oddly enough, none of the eastern battlers on the Chicago card, except Tunney, did very well. Yale Okun, Johnny Grosso and La Rocco, who are among the best of the younger crop, lost their battles. Billy Vidabeck, one of Tunney's sparring partners, grabbed a decision over one Jack McCann, of St. Paul, but did not fight up to his usual standard.

They all seemed somewhat dazed by the crowd, and Emanuel's assurance under the same conditions made him all the more impressive.

Huggins Set On Starters

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—The big four of the Yankee twirling staff for the world series battle probably will consist of Waite Hoyt, Herb Pennock, Urban Shocker and Wiley Moore, the "sinker ball" expert.

This is the expectation of Miller Huggins, diminutive pilot of the American League champions, but he hasn't determined in what order he will work his hurlers, nor is he likely to commit himself to any set program.

"That's the way it looks," Huggins explained, "but neither you nor I can say what the play will develop. The first game might upset my whole program. I haven't decided on a starting pitcher."

Experts, speculating on probabilities, regard Pennock, the veteran southpaw, or Hoyt, as the likely opening game choice.

VETS IN BACKGROUND

The selection of Wiley Moore to shoulder a regular share in the mound burden shoves Dutch Ruether and Bob Shawkey, two veterans of world series combat, into the background. Unless there are unexpected developments, they are likely to remain in the reserve corps, along with George Pipgras and Myles Thompson.

Moore is one of Huggins' 1927 developments. The South Carolina recruit, excelling most of the season in relief roles, has been taking a regular turn in the box and displaying excellent form.

Keeping his pitching staff in shape is one of Huggins' biggest tasks between now and the start of the series next Wednesday in the stronghold of the National League pennant winner.

"I plan to give them all a few innings' work in the three remaining games with Washington here today, tomorrow and Saturday," Huggins said.

FEARS RAY KREMER

The Yankee manager hasn't had any first hand opportunity to study the Pirate flingers, who are expected to be the opposing corps, but he expects Ray Kremer to give his sluggers perhaps the most trouble.

"Kremer is big, strong and has a lot of stuff, as well as speed, they tell me," Huggins remarked.

Baseball men agree with Huggins on this score. Kremer, out with a bad knee for two months, has been flashing brilliant form since taking his regular turn again. He has been working oftener than a regular would require, in fact, and thriving on the extra work. The big Californian won two games against Washington in 1925, besides pitching part of a third contest. He is likely to be Pittsburgh's starting choice and, if the series battle is prolonged, figure in three games.

Meadows, Aldridge and Hill round out the Pirate big four. The first two figured in the 1925 series, but this will be Hill's baptism in the big show.

ROYSTON C. P. A. GOLF TOURNAMENT VICTOR

Bill Royston won the sixth annual Certified Public Accountant golf tournament held at the Longue Vue Country Club yesterday. Royston turned in a low net card of 83 to win the Spencer cup, emblematic of the accountant championship. A. S. Banks with a net 91 was the runner-up.

In the low net division, Frank Williams with a score of 75 was the winner, while George Rossetter with a 76 was second. The best gross score for nine holes was turned in by E. A. Ford Barnes with a card of 44, while the best net for nine holes was made by Henry J. Jumonville with a 35.

Royston had the most par holes with four, while he tied with H. J. Miller for the most birdies with one each. The kickers' handicap event ended in a tie between Gordon M. Hill and Leo J. Stephens, each having a card of 97.

George W. Rossetter won the sweepstakes event with a 76, A. S. Banks finishing second, while A. C. Zacharias and A. C. Upleger were tied for third honors. In the second division of the same event, H. J. Jumonville with a card of 75 was the winner, Ernest Crowther finishing second and H. B. Scott, third.

"Martin Johnson is right
—Luckies give the greatest enjoyment"

Said Elmer Wood to Frank Stone while on a hunting trip in the Canadian Rockies.

Martin Johnson,
Famous African Explorer,
writes:

"While trailing big game in Africa, I have never been without my Lucky Strike Cigarette. Once on the Abyssinian border my shipment of them from America missed us, and I was miserable until the natives followed our tracks across the Kaisout desert to Nairobi with my precious cargo of Luckies. After 4 years of smoking Luckies in wildest Africa, I find my voice in perfect condition for my lecture tour in America."

Martin Johnson

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"
No Throat Irritation-No Cough.

STATE TO CLAIM "FORGOTTEN" DEPOSITS

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is paging John Thompson, whose last address was given as 4520 Forbes street, and who has $269 awaiting him at the Union Savings Bank. If John Thompson does not respond before October 30 the state will take the money through proceedings begun in court yesterday by Deputy Attorney General David Glick.

Likewise the state is paging several hundred others who apparently have forgotten their accounts in three Pittsburgh banks. These accounts, running for 14 years, amount to $1,673. They are in the Union Savings Bank, the Union Trust Company of Pittsburgh and the Braddock Trust Company of Braddock. Claimants are urged to examine lists now in charge of the prothonotary.

PITTSBURGHERS FLYING HERE

Three Pittsburgh aviators left Denver, Col., yesterday for Rodgers Field, flying new Eaglerock airplanes. They are due at the local airport tomorrow afternoon.

Lieut. Jack Morris is in command of the "squadron" and will use his plane for passenger and instruction work on arrival here. Frank Ambrose is piloting another belonging to Robert D. Fox of 5554½ St. James street, who is traveling as passenger. The third is owned by George E. Outland of 611 Murray street, Sewickley.

The party left Pittsburgh for Denver last Friday.

LAY HOSPITAL CORNERSTONE

The cornerstone for the new Montefiore Hospital, Fifth avenue, Oakland, will be laid Monday at 2:30 p. m., it has been announced by Raymond F. Kaufmann, chairman of the committee of arrangements. The speakers will include Albert C. Lehman, president of the hospital; Abe Seder, Dr. Edwin Zugsmith and Dr. W. J. Holland. Isaac W. Frank will be master of ceremonies and Nathaniel Speer will place the records in the stone. Rabbi Herman Hailperin will offer the invocation and Dr. S. H. Goldenson will close with a blessing.

10 Feet Over Line Saves Still Owner

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—A matter of 10 feet saved Andy Klem, 36, from being charged with a felony. Klem, police say, is responsible for much of the moonshine available in the Scotts' Run mining section of West Virginia. He was arrested in Dunkard township, Greene county, where a large still was operating less than 10 feet from the West Virginia line. In West Virginia this offense is a felony; in Pennsylvania, a misdemeanor.

ELLWOOD CITY TEACHERS ELECT C. L. PATTERSON

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Sept. 29.—The Ellwood City branch, Pennsylvania State Educational Association has elected the following officers: President C. L. Patterson; vice president, Miss Mary Humphrey; secretary, Miss Marie Christley; treasurer, Richard Hawke. A. K. Thompson was elected delegate and Miss Erma Blyte, alternate, to the state convention in Lancaster. The teachers voted to take membership in the National Education Association and the Parent-Teachers' Association.

NONUNION MINERS FINED $1 FOR STRIKE FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 29.—Declaring that the law is not an instrument of oppression, Judge Erwin Cummins fined Cecil Armstrout and B. J. Johnson, only $1 and costs, when they appeared before him to plead guilty to assault. They admitted fighting with George Dechinitz, who, they said, had repeatedly urged them to join the ranks of striking union coal miners. The two men are employed as nonunion miners.

MONONGAHELA VALLEY HUNTING PYROMANIAC

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Sept. 29.—Belief that a pyromaniac is operating in this district has spread since the destruction of a large barn on the farm of Robert Martin near Wylandville with a loss of $10,000. Several other barns in the Monongahela valley have been destroyed by fire of undetermined cause recently.

DOCTOR NIPS FINGER; INFECTION DEVELOPS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 29.—Dr. O. T. McDonough is in the Washington Hospital here suffering from an infection which followed the pricking of his finger with an instrument with which he performed a minor operation on a patient in his office recently.

MITE BURGLAR BLAMED FOR 5TH THEFT IN WEEK

DOVER, O., Sept. 29.—A small child or dwarf was pushed through a window of George B. Beardorff & Son's hardware store to open a door for confederates who took $25 from a cash register. The shattered window barely admits a man's head, police said, commenting on Dover's fifth burglary this week.

POISON IN HIS SOUP, SAYS, SUING

What constitutes "cruel and barbarous treatment" in the modern divorce suit was enumerated in the libel filed by Matthew W. Frank, a pharmacist, of Crafton Heights, against Grace Mahler Frank, heard in court yesterday by Judge Joseph M. Swearingen.

They were married in 1920 at Camp Grant, Ill., while Frank was in the Army and receiving a pay of $75 a month. Mrs. Frank wanted one of the latest models of the new-fangled sedans of that period, he said, and when he was unable to buy it their domestic troubles started, the suit alleges.

Some of the examples of cruelty, as alleged by the husband, were:

Walloped with an electric skillet—arm in a sling six weeks.

Compelled to dodge a flying butcher's knife, which stuck in door.

Strychnine was sifted into his soup.

Second attempt was made at poisoning.

Ducked a flying chair flung by his wife. The missile struck their 4-year-old son and broke his nose. Arrests followed and wife paid the costs. This was the last straw. The child was sent to the mother's parents at Baraboo, Wis., and Mrs. Frank disappeared. The suit is not contested.

MARK GRAVE OF GEN. BOOTH

BELINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 29.—Unmarked since his death, March 14, 1854, the grave of Gen. Isaac Booth, veteran of the War of 1812, on Reservoir Hill, was designated yesterday when a bronze tablet was dedicated. He was born in Beverly in 1776 and served Randolph county in the Virginia Legislature from the close of the War of 1812 until his death. He was buried in uniform. Vandals a few years ago opened the tomb to steal the gold hilt of his sword.

BOULEVARD TO BE CLOSED

There's Bee Under Old Gen. Green's Bonnet

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—There's a bee in the bonnet of good old Gen. Nathaniel Greene, famous Revolutionary War hero, for whom this county is named.

Actually there's a whole swarm of them and here's a pretty how-de-do.

Some bee, with no sense at all of what looks this and what looks that, took up abode in the hollow hat on Greene's statue atop the courthouse cupola. His compatriots followed and now the hat's a beehive.

TWO GIRLS HIT BY AUTO AS THEY ALIGHT FROM BUS

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 29.—Mildred Ross, 6, and her sister, Pauline Ross, 12, Franklin township, were severely injured when struck by an automobile driven by John Pettit, near Waynesburg. The children had alighted from a bus transporting them to the West Waynesburg School.

WASHINGTON NOMINEES FAR AHEAD IN BIG FIELD

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 29.—Complete tabulations of Washington's primary vote reveal that J. Elmer Johnston and James W. Walker, renominated for County Commissioners on the Republican ticket, each polled about twice as many votes as their nearest opponents, although the field was split with seven candidates.

Stomach Acid Makes Weaklings!

Says Well Known Authority

Stomach troubles such as sourness, gas, belching, bloating, heartburn and indigestion come from acid stomach.

Sufferers sooner or later become weak, nervous, anaemic and run-down in vital energy. Physical and mental unfitness follows. Men become weaklings, women useless, while both often become addicts to stimulants or "dope." To avoid such a misfortune, stop the development of stomach acid by taking Dr. Ward's Milked-Magnesia Tablets. They neutralize the acid quickly, stop food fermentation, and stomach troubles disappear, almost as if by magic!

People who keep a box of these pleasant tablets handy seldom have any stomach disorders. They are delicious to chew and swallow—like eating bon-bons! Ask your doctor or druggist. Be sure of the name.

DR. WARD'S
MILKED-MAGNESIA TABLETS

Sold in this city by all good druggists. You can always get them at May's.

Oil Men for, Utility Men Against Federal Policy

By B. C. FORBES

ARE American business men consistent?

The public cannot be blamed if it thinks they are not.

For what are we witnessing in our business leaders' behavior regarding government regulation of industry?

DIDN'T you have the idea that business was strongly opposed to more government "interference"? Yet you have seen lately quite an agitation to have the Federal government take a new and drastic step towards regulating the oil industry. One gathers that Uncle Sam is being urged to become a sort of all-powerful policeman over oil companies operating in the richest fields and to stop owners of properties from bringing up the oil as they see fit.

NOW, this movement may or may not be wise—that point is not being analyzed here and now. But indisputably the adoption of the plan would mean "move government in business."

And isn't that exactly what we have been led to believe business was solidly, resolutely, uncomprisingly against?

TURN now from oil to public utilities, especially to electric power and light.

Utility leaders have been hearing rumblings which have disturbed them. Bluntly, they learn that certain elements in Congress are determined to probe the whole public utility industry in this country with a view to having the Federal government inaugurate a policy of rigid regulation.

THE public has already had indications that the utility people are not in love with the idea of having a new body of regulators—super-regulators —imposed upon them, seeing that they are already under state supervision and regulation. They are as much against having Uncle Sam elect himself a policeman wielding a big stick over their heads as oil leaders—at least a number of them—are in favor of such an innovation.

THIS subject of Federal action looking to the regulation of utilities promises to come prominently before the public and before Congress in coming months. Recent gigantic mergers, the widespread linking-up of transmission lines by companies operating in different states, the huge amount of new capital going into the industry, the spectacular rise in the shares of various utility corporations, the increasingly important part played by electric power in the life of the nation—all this has served to attract attention to the rapidly-growing utility giant. Hence the prospective activities of Federal lawmakers. Hence, too, the readiness of utility leaders to gain the ear of the public.

THE attitude of the industry, and its reasons therefor, are pithily summed up by President A. W. Thompson of the United Gas Improvement, Philadelphia, thus:

"While groupings, mergers and consolidations are being made generally throughout the country of independently operated electric and gas properties into large units brought about by the insistent demand for increased facilities and better and more dependable service, these great utility properties are essentially local enterprises. They serve the interests of local communities in each state in which they operate, and are subject to the regulatory powers of the state commissions and their policies are at all times responsive to local public opinion. Notwithstanding the rapid development of interconnection between electrical systems about which so much is being said, it is still a fact that less than 5 per cent of the electrical energy generated throughout the United States is transmitted across state lines.

"What, then, could a central regulatory agency at Washington accomplish which the various state commissions representative of the local public could not better accomplish with the support of sound public opinion? There is a growing uneasiness throughout the whole field of American business over the increasing part which the Federal government is coming to play in our social and business life. It is a departure from our theory of government. We feel that the province of government is political and not economic. It is not more regulation, whether Federal or state, in the electrical and gas business which is needed at this time, but greater self-regulation by the business leaders in these industries.

"It is estimated that there are over five million holders of public utility securities in this country. The time is come when these stockkholders should come to the aid of their management in helping to inform the public opinion of America, not only of the dangers to the public utility industry resulting from the government engaging in business, but of the serious effect upon the whole structure of our government."

ALL of which leaves the public guessing as to which is wiser, the oil industry which is inviting Federal attention, or the utility industry which seeks to avoid it.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Sept. 29.—Unlooked for setbacks in Liverpool quotations, together with Australian and Argentine reports of rain, gave an early downward trend today to the wheat market here. Corn also displayed weakness notwithstanding persistent unwelcome moisture over the corn belt. Opening ⅛@¾c off, wheat rallied, but then sagged lower than before. Corn started at ⅛c decline to ⅜c advance and subsequently underwent a material drop. Oats were easier. Provisions likewise turned weak.

At noon wheat was 1c to 1¼c net lower and corn ⅜c to 1¼c down.

For the first time since the World War, Liverpool wheat today was quoted at a discount for nearby deliveries as compared with deferred months. Such a discount attracted much notice here as being significant of a return to normalcy. For a long time hand-to-mouth buying abroad had kept nearby wheat prices at a premium in order to stimulate sufficiency of supplies afloat for Europe.

Southern hemisphere rains, favorable for wheat crops both in Australia and Argentina were an immediate bear influence today. In some quarters doubt was expressed as to whether the Australian rains were in time to do much good. Argentine cables, however, said downpours over the entire country had put young seeding in general excellent condition.

Oil Price Advanced.

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has advanced the price of kerosene for export, one-half cent a gallon. New quotations are 17.15 cents for Standard white in cases, and 18.15 cents for water white.

Explains R. C. A.

Radio Corporation of America, in addition to its communication interests, will remain a development and sales organization, vitally concerned also with research and manufacture, says David Sarnoff, vice president and general manager, in explanation of current misconceptions relating to licensing agreements. Present plans call for greatly increased programs of research and production.

Canadian Steel Gains.

Directors of the Steel Company of Canada report the year's volume of business to date ahead of the corresponding period last year, although prices are lower. About $2,000,000 will be spent on the plant this year out of cash resources.

Safety Razor Earnings Lower.

American Safety Razor and subsidiaries earned $1.53 a share in the first half of 1927, in contrast to $3 a share in the first half of 1926.

Metal Prices Easier.

Sales of non-ferrous metals have been meager and prices for all the more important ones are easier than a week ago. Though most of the economic surveys indicate a satisfactory rate of industrial activity for the fall months, the metal manufacturing industries apparently are receiving a disappointing volume of orders, Engineering and Mining Journal reports. The excellent buying of copper last week has been followed by a wave of lassitude.

Plan Paige Stock Increase.

Directors of Paige-Detroit Motor Company propose an increase in authorized common stock from 1,500,000 shares to 2,000,000 shares, of which 300,000 shares will be offered at $10 a share to holders of common and convertible preferred stocks on a pro rata basis.

97,000 Own Steel Stock.

Holders of common stock of the United States Steel Corporation totaled 97,00 when the books were closed for the September cash dividend, the largest since June, 1924, and compare with 98,269 when the books were closed last June. Preferred stockholders totaled 71,201 when August dividend books were closed, against 71,919 three months before.

Nickel Plate Income Larger.

August operating income of the New York, Chicago and St. Louis (Nickel Plate) was $80,350 larger than in August last year and for the eight months this year $107,002 more than the corresponding 1926 period.

Equitable Profit Gains.

The Equitable Office Building Corporation, which operates the largest office structure in New York, had net profit of $470,920 for the quarter ended July 31, against $462,517 in the corresponding three months last year.

Grain Marketing Large.

Winnipeg dispatches say 2,000 cars of grain are being marketed daily on the prairies, which would be exceeded in the next 10 days should dry weather continue.

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—The cotton market opened steady today at a decline of 14 to 31 points under realizing by recent buyers and southern or local selling, inspired by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of warmer weather in the southwest.

December sold off to 21.70c and March to 22.08c, net declines of about 25 to 30 points on active positions, but the forecast for showers in the eastern belt brought in buying at the lower prices and a good part of the losses was recovered in early trading.

Private cables said that some end-month trade calling in Liverpool had been supplied by continental and Bombay selling, but reported larger clearances of cotton goods at better prices at the Manchester auctions.

The early rally extended to 21.95c for December and 22.25 for March or back to nearly yesterday's closing quotations. This bulge met some further Southern hedging or realizing, however, and fluctuations later in the morning were rather irregular with trading comparatively quiet. At mid-day December selling around 21.85c, with the general market showing net declines of 8 to 15 points.

STOCK MARKET MOVEMENTS NERVOUS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Extremely nervous trading characterized today's stock market, which witnessed frequent shifts in speculative sentiment. Efforts of "bear" traders to bring about a further reaction in the pivotal industrials disclosed good support, but on the other hand the resumption of bullish operations in some of the recent strong spots encountered large offerings.

Banks called about $10,000,000 in loans, following the marking up of the call money renewal rate to 4 per cent, bringing to the fore again the subject of brokers' loans, the weekly figures on which will be published after the close of the market today. The expulsion of a stock exchange member for violation of the rules apparently had no effect.

Special buying of the Van Sweringen rails, particularly the Erie issues and Chesapeake and Ohio, attracted widespread attention. Texas and Pacific and Pittsburgh and Western Virginia also recorded good gains.

Bullish demonstrations were most effective in the specialties. Houston Oil was bid up 7 points, but weakness developed in Transcontinental Oil. Abitibi Power soared more than 7 points to a new high record, National Tea jumped 5½ and G. W. Helme, 4. Selling pressure was renewed against Texas Gulf Sulphur and Willys-Overland common sank to a new low level for the year.

NARROW CHANGES IN SECURITY QUOTATIONS HERE

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Quiet again ruled the bond market today as offerings tapered off. Prices in the main were firm, hovering close to the year's peaks in many instances. The prospect of continued easy money was the chief sustaining influence, and high grade railroad issues were again in the role of leaders.

Erie D 4s, on which the privilege of converting into common stock expires tomorrow night, were freely absorbed at rising prices, but other convertible issues attracted little attention. Such railway liens as Missouri Pacific 5s, New York, Ontario and Western 4s, and Erie refunding 5s were in demand close to their best prices of the year.

Public utility mortgages continued to give good accounts of themselves particularly Consolidated Gas 5½s and North American Edison 5s, but industrials attracted little attention.

Foreign bonds were dull, with prices clinging close to yesterday's close. Federal government securities were steady and inactive.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

TODD EXPELLED FROM STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—Expulsion of Gordon B. Todd was announced from the rostrum of the New York Stock Exchange.

The substance of the charge against Mr. Todd was that he made a practice of pledging more of the securities carried for the account of certain customers than was fair and reasonable, in view of the indebtedness of the customers to his firm.

Another charge against Mr. Todd was that he made a misstatement on a material point to the committee on business conduct.

Mr. Todd was admitted to the stock exchange November 5, 1925, and is floor member of Gordon B. Todd & Co. of 25 Broad street.

Due to the expulsion, the firm of Gordon B. Todd & Co. has retired as clearing members. Barbour & Co. will assume the open exchange contracts of the firm and security balance orders through the day branch of the clearing house.

"We are solvent, entirely," declared C. J. Todd of Gordon B. Todd & Co. "We have no other comment to make on the action of the stock exchange in expelling Gordon B. Todd."

NEWS AND VIEWS

Fishers on Baldwin Board.

Baldwin Locomotive directors today voted to increase the board from 12 to 15 members and invited Fred J. Fisher and Clarence B. Bitting to become directors as soon as necessary legal procedure may be completed. In the interim the directors have invited Mr. Fisher and Mr. Bitting to sit with them at all the board meetings and Mr. Bitting to sit with the finance committee. President Vauclain made the announcement. The Fisher brothers, of Detroit, and Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, were reported months ago to have obtained a large volume of Baldwin in the open market, their buying being credited with putting the stock up about 150 points to its present level around 260.

Sheet Structure Weakening.

All signs point to the fact that the price advance made by leading sheet companies on and subsequent to April 29 in an effort to meet the demoralized price structure, is apparently breaking down. This forecast is made by Daily Metal Trade, which says: "A price of 4.15 cents, base Pittsburgh, or $2 a ton less than the quotations which has prevailed since last spring very likely will apply to full finished sheets purchased by automotive interests for fall production schedules. Practically no business is being placed and the $2-a-ton cut is failing to stimulate inquiries."

Ford Finally Orders Sheets.

Ford Motor Company is reported to have finally ordered steel sheets and it is understood the Otis Steel Company of Cleveland will roll 400 to 1,000 tons of sheet bars made at the Ford steel plant at Fordson, Mich. Efforts of Ford to arrange with northern and eastern Ohio sheet mills for rolling these sheet bars have been watched closely and some of the leading sheet mills considered it undesirable because it did not contribute anything to the activity of their open-hearths.

Imperial Oil Stock Sold.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has issued the following statement: "About 10 days ago, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey arranged to sell a block of 10,000-odd shares of Imperial Oil Company stock to the Sun Life Insurance Company of Canada. This transaction was entered into in pursuance of the company's policy to have strong Canada institutions interested in the Imperial's business." Although the Imperial Oil Company does not publish an income account or balance sheet, it is believed in financial quarters that its net income for 1927 will approximate $6 a share on its 4,514,241 shares outstanding. It is understood Sun Life paid $55 a share for the stock.

Safety Razor Earned $1.58.

American Safety Razor Corporation for six months ended June 30 reports net income was $326,454 after charges, or $1.58 a share on 206,000 shares, as against $401,499 or $2 a share on the 200,000 shares in the like period a year ago.

Seminole crude oil production in 24 hours ended 7 a. m. September 28 was 443,047 barrels, an increase of 2,047 barrels over September 27.

Mexico Oil Curtailment.

Tampico dispatches say that on October 1 the oil companies operating in that district of Mexico will dismiss 75 per cent of their workers and will confine operations to production from the wells already drilled.

More Steel Common Holders.

There were 97,000 common stockholders of the United States Steel Corporation to whom dividends were sent during the third quarter, an increase of 6,721 over the previous quarter. Preferred stockholders at the end of August numbered 71,301, a decrease of 469 from the preceding quarter. Common stockholders at the end of the third quarter were the largest since June, 1924.

Continental Can Reports Gain.

Continental Can Company reports for seven months to July 31 net income of $2,491,270 after reserves for depreciation and federal taxes, as against $2,343,412 for the same period last year. The seven months' net income is equal, after preferred dividends, to $1.55 a share on 1,101,594 common shares issued, against $4.32 a share in the 1926 period.

Equipment Buying Negligible.

In point of new railway equipment business, September was one of the dullest months on record. Up to September 28 new business placed, according to Railway Age, consisted of six locomotives, of which five were ordered from Baldwin and one from American Locomotive, while Carnegie Steel ordered 40 freight cars from American Car and Foundry, the latter being the only freight car order reported. A total of 19 passenger cars were reported as ordered. It is reported the Pere Marquette is considering placing an inquiry for from 1,500 to 2,000 cars.

Net Loss for Seaboard.

Seaboard Air Line Railroad shows August net loss of $57,279 after fixed charges but before adjustment and bond interest, a decrease from August, 1926, of $155,434. For eight months the road reported net income amounted to $1,310,658 available for adjustment bonds, a decrease of $1,228,935 from the 1926 period.

DuPont to Build New Plant.

E. I. DuPont De Nemours & Co. will build an artificial silk plant to cost several million dollars about three miles from Richmond, Va. When completed the plant will employ several thousand people.

Marine's "Terrific" Deficit.

In answer to a question by a stockholder requesting information as to why the company could not go on with its present capitalization, President Franklin, of International Mercantile Marine Company, said: "The company at present time has a terrific deficit on its books. It is an endless situation and 71½ per cent dividend accumulations exist on the preferred stock. On that basis there would be no way to get earnings to stockholders. Under the plan of capital readjustment we can at least see daylight and it brings things near." President Franklin stated that he believes the plan a fair one and that no better one has ever been submitted.

Soft Coal Production.

The total production of bituminous coal in the United States during the week ended September 24, estimated by the National Coal Association from preliminary car loading reports, was about 9,500,000 net tons. Revised reports covering loadings of soft coal during the week ended September 17 proved the total tonnage to be lower than was expected from the original figures received. The total output for that week, as reported by the United States Bureau of Mines, was 9,648,000 net tons. For the week ended September 10 figures from the same source show a total of 8,550,000 net tons.

Public Service, New Jersey.

Public Service Corporation of New Jersey had surplus of $6,545 for August after charges, against $109,886 in August last year and for the year ended August 31 $12,559,157, against $12,847,888 the year before.

Aggregate Rail Net Off.

Additional railroad earnings reports for August show improvement over earlier statements, net operating income of 55 carriers aggregating $100,417,000 against $111,716,000 for the same number in August last year, a decrease of .95 per cent. These systems in July had net of $70,766,000 against $97,467,000 in July, 1926, a decline of 27.5 per cent.

Sees Investment Expansion.

Pliny Jewell of Boston, president of the Association of Investment Bankers of America, yesterday predicted that the coming year will set a new record for investments in the United States. He expects a total for the fiscal year ending in October, 1928, of $10,000,000,000. Mr. Jewell also predicted continued prosperity for some time to come.

Tire Sales Expand.

Despite unusual weather conditions during 1927, the car-owning public is buying more automobile tires this year than in any year in the history of the country, according to P. W. Litchfield, president of Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company. Indications are that tire sales will total 61,000,000 this year, as compared with 60,000,000 in 1926 and 57,000,000 in 1925, he stated. This growth in consumption reflects the rising automobile registration in this country and the increased number of miles driven by car owners yearly with the further development and perfecting of good roads.

Westinghouse Electric Order.

United Electric Light and Power Company of New York has placed an order with the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company for a 161,000 kw. turbine generator unit and two surface condenser equipments with the necessary auxiliaries. The new generator unit will be installed in the Hell Gate power station at New York.

Aggregate Telephone Earnings.

Earnings of 73 telephone companies as reported to Interstate Commerce Commission for July and seven months compare as follows:

	1927	1926
July gross	$ 77,655,048	$ 73,274,932
Oper. income	17,339,190	16,261,762
7 months gross	543,925,712	503,194,244
Oper. income	124,755,011	119,617,936

Wabash Loadings Down.

Wabash Railway handled 17,914 cars of revenue freight in week ended September 24 against 21,595 in same week last year.

Great Northern's Outlook.

"The share earnings for 1927 probably will not exceed the figure for 1926 and may be somewhat lower," said Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railway, to Dow, Jones & Co. "The gross and net for September and October will probably not be above last year. There will be an increase in revenue from grain and other agricultural products but a decrease in some other commodities, principally lumber and iron ore," he said. "The ore movement for 1927 will not equal that of 1926. It is estimated at about 12,000,000 tons compared with 14,600,000 tons in 1926. Depending of course, on the prosperity of the steel business, there is otherwise no reason why iron ore shipments will not continue in volume for many years to come."

Silk and Wool Trade.

Commerce Department reports imports of raw silk during August totaled $46,242,145, against $33,756,529 for the same month last year. For the eight months ended with August total was $267,811,000, against $239,434,000 for the corresponding period last year. Exports of wool manufactures during August totaled $337,147, against $494,239 for the same month last year, the department announces. For the eight months ended with August the total was $2,569,202, against $2,579,482 last year. Exports of silk manufactures during August totaled $1,413,621, against 1,277,244 last year and for the eight months were $10,019,667, against $12,317,365.

Brockway Motor Truck.

Brockway Motor Truck Corporation reports for eight months ended August 31, 1927, profit of $681,761 aftr depreciation, but before taxes. Company also reports orders coming in faster than its ability to ship, and with September business well ahead of September, 1926.

English Bank Rate Unchanged.

The minimum rate of discount of the Bank of England remained at 4½ per cent today.

Florida Gasoline Raised.

Standard Oil of Kentucky has advanced tank wagon and service station prices of gasoline 3 cents a gallon throughout Florida.

Cast Iron Pipe Market Weak.

The eastern cast iron pipe market reflects continued weakness. Bids recently opened on 4,250 tons of 6, 8 and 12-inch pipe and about 400 tons of fittings and manhole castings for the New York department of water supply, gas and electricity reflected this. The market generally is termed quiet, although several fair-sized tonnages are pending.

Home Products Earned $1.75.

American Home Products Corporation reports for six months ended June 30, 1927, net income after depreciation and federal income taxes equal to $1.75 a share on 343,000 shares issued, as against $1.47 a share on the 300,000 shares in the 126 period.

Money Supply Ample.

We again reiterate that the present supply of money is ample and while there might be further flurry in call money before week is over we feel practically certain that 4½ per cent call money is the highest that can be expected, say a New York stock exchange firm today. Money surprised everyone yesterday by dropping to 3½ per cent in the face of month-end requirements and the shouting about expected increase in broker loans, which will be known after the close today. The call rate was 4 per cent all day today.

St. Paul Controversy Ending.

The closing chapter of the greatest receivership of modern history was entered into today when counsel representing security holders of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad appeared before the Interstate Commerce Commission and asked government sanction of the company's reorganization plans. This is the last of a long series of complicated legal steps in which the road has been involved since it was thrown into receivership in 1925. The controversy ended with today's oral argument and there now remains only the final formal decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission, which is expected before the end of the year.

Sloan on GMO Earnings.

The New York offices of General Motors Corporation have been in communication with President Sloan in Detroit and have obtained from him a correction of part of his statement of yesterday. The correct part of his statement reads: "If the balance of 1927 continues along our forecast we ought to do as well in the last six months this year as in the last six months of 1926, and I am in hopes a little better." Mr. Sloan's correction brings his latest estimate much closer into line with expectations of many followers of the company who have been predicting a substantial gain in earnings this year over 1926. In the last half of 1926 the company earned over $92,000,000. On a basis of a like volume of earnings for the current six months the aggregate net income for the full 12 months of 1927 will be upwards of $222,000,000 or equivalent to $12.50 per share on the 17,400,000 shares of new $25 par common.

Local Market Quiet Prices Steady

Dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today disclosed no noticeable change from the general character of the trading during the earlier sessions this week. Scattered transactions in industrial issues marked the initial transactions and there was no evidence of concentrated activity in any particular issue. Among the high-grade industrials, Standard Sanitary displayed a firm tone, while Westinghouse Air Brake reflected a little selling, probably resulting from the lowering tendency of prices in New York the past few days.

Oil and gas stocks were rather dull early and prices were practically unchanged. Lone Star Gas came into the market at 48, unchanged from Wednesday's close and Oklahoma Gas certificates were handled again at 21⅛, the price at which the issue appears to be pegged.

American Window Glass Machine common appeared on the board at 20, the new current low to which the stock sank early this week when, according to brokers, a market order to sell 50 "at the market" forced the stock out at 20 as compared with the preceding price of 25.

The market remained quiet throughout the afternoon session, with quotations showing only small fractional changes from the morning's figures. Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt, which dropped 1½ points Wednesday to 52½, sold again at that price, while Standard Sanitary improved a small fraction over the early selling price. Later sales of Lone Star Gas were also recorded slightly above the morning quotation.

Fireproofing preferred sagged off under a moderate volume of selling in the last hour, but there was no news in the Street to account for its weakness. Dividend on the stock was declared just recently and is payable to holders of record October 1. The company issued $3,000,000 of bonds during the summer, part of which was for refunding purposes.

COKE OUTPUT SAGS AGAIN

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., Sept. 29.—The Courier says: If expectation was indulged that the production of beehive coke in the Connellsville region had reached its lowest level when, in the week ended September 14, it touched the 62,510-ton mark, the persons who held that view have been mistaken.

The estimated production of coke during the week ended Saturday, September 24, was 59,320 tons, divided between the two districts in the following proportions: Connellsville, 24,050, a decrease of 1,060 tons; Lower Connellsville, 35,270, a decrease of 1,520 tons, or a total decrease of 2,180 tons, as compared with a net decrease of 2,530 tons during the immediately preceding week.

Spot furnace .... $3.00@$3.25
Spot foundry .... $4.00@$4.75

We Give Estates Continuous Care

The Carnegie Corporation in a report said:

"The funds of a great endowment can be kept intact only by a systematic revision month by month of all the securities of the endowment and by a continuous process of sale and exchange as circumstances may affect the financial soundness of this or that security."

This same practical plan is applied here in handling estates left in trust. Only by this constant vigilance can a trustee fulfill all its obligation to conserve and increase estates. Ask for our free book on Wills.

Pirates Can Win, Tie, Lose; So Can Rivals

By Associated Press

Clinging to their almost negligible hope of getting a tie for first place in the National League standing, the New York Giants were in a slightly better attacking position today, the result of a 5-4 victory in 10 innings over Philadelphia while the Pittsburgh Pirates and the St. Louis Cardinals were idle yesterday.

Still two full games in the lead, Pittsburgh needs only one more victory out of three games scheduled with Cincinnati to insure at least a tie.

There are several possibilities left in the National League race. Pittsburgh can clinch the pennant by winning two out of three. St. Louis can win the flag if Pittsburgh loses all three games while the Cards win their three remaining contests. The Pirates and Cardinals would end up in a tie for the lead if St. Louis won three and the Pirates took only one out of three. The Giants' chance for a tie rests in Pittsburgh losing three games while New York wins three. A triple tie would exist if the Pirates lost three while the Giants won three and St. Louis won two out of three.

The possibilities appear to be far from probability. The Pirates ought to win at least two out of three from Cincinnati, baseball men argue. Pittsburgh, idle today, will enter the final series with plenty of rest.

New York trailed Philadelphia up until the eighth inning yesterday, when a two-run rally tied the score. The Giants stepped out in front in the ninth by putting over a run, but Philadelphia knotted the count again in the home half. In the tenth Hornsby bunted safely, was sacrificed to second and scored on a single by Devormer.

Washington closed its season series with the Boston Red Sox by taking both ends of a double-header. Hadley pitched the Senators to a 2-1 verdict to start the bargain attraction. He allowed only six hits, fanned five batters and collected two hits in three attempts. Boston drove Fred Marberry from the box in the second game, but Garland Braxton stepped in and held them scoreless from the fifth on, Washington winning 6-4. Washington won 13 out of 22 games with Boston this year.

Other American League teams were idle.

NATS GET SAM JONES OVER WAIVER ROUTE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—(UP.)—"Sad Sam" Jones, veteran pitcher, will wear his fifth American League uniform next year, when he joins the Washington Senators.

Acquisition of Jones on waivers from the St. Louis Browns has been announced by President Clark Griffith of the Senators.

Jones has played with the Indians, Red Sox, Yankees and Browns. He played with the Yankees in the world series in 1922, 1923 and 1926. He pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the Athletics on September 4, 1923.

DUKES

Weibel, refuse absolutely to divulge the sort of game they are drilling into the Dukes, and it looks very much as though you will have to play "lay it on the line" if you want to see the Notre Dame system working in Pittsburgh. For that is the sort of ball the Dukes are bound to play.

Outside of the fact that Freshman Hood of the University of Pittsburgh threw a couple footballs from the practice field to "somewhere in East Liberty" and Elmer Layden spoke eleven words in a row up on the Bluff, where he was working his Dubious Dukes, the college football situation was quiet in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Hood was tossing passes for the freshman eleven, working under the guidance of Skipper Gougler, Freshman Coach Doc Cravat Carlson and Zonar Wissinger. He can throw a football as far as most of us can sling a baseball, and with a lot more accuracy. He is going to make the grid world forget its Mullers and Freidmans when he starts playing varsity ball next fall.

VARSITY GETS REST

Coach Sutherland put his varsity charges through a none too strenuous signal drill, and only his first string backs in action for a short while. Too much work right now might be bad for the Pitt team, inasmuch as the game Saturday with Grove City is not exactly a "crucial one."

Carnegie Tech, with Thiel to look forward to for an opponent on Saturday, is working pretty hard, smoothing over a few formations and paying some attention to an aerial game.

The Tech-Thiel game, by the way, is to be played on the Tartan Bowl, as Forbes Field is being reserved for the world's series. Workmen are erecting temporary stands and the gridiron itself is being whipped into shape.

LEWIS WINS MATCH

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 29.—(AP.)—Ed (Strangler) Lewis, heavyweight wrestling title claimant, last night won from Joe Malcewicz, of Utica, N. Y., in straight falls. Lewis took the first fall in one hour and 12 minutes, and the second in two minutes.

That's quite a nucleus and Herb shouldn't have much trouble winning games with his outfit. First news of the aggregation comes to us through Dode Thomas, himself a Pitt star back in the days of Stein here.

PHIL GOLDSTEIN GOES BACK EAST

PHIL GOLDSTEIN, local boxer, who now is a lightweight, leaves tonight to return to New York after a visit of more than a week with his folks. He boxes in Boston next Monday night on a card to be headlined by a 10-round bout between Al Mello of Boston and Myer Cohen of Holyoke, Mass., for the New England welterweight championship. Goldstein says Tommy Crowley, South Sider, who nosed him out in a thrilling battle for the local featherweight title at Motor Square Garden last Christmas afternoon, has refused a return bout with him at McKeesport, but he hopes to meet Tommy again soon, likely in the same ring in which they boxed before. This is a natural return bout and should have been arranged shortly after their hectic meeting.

Sandy Seifert, North Side heavyweight and stablemate of Goldstein, returned home with Phil and will remain here a little longer. Sandy looks forward to a big season during the coming winter. He was to have been on the Dempsey-Tunney card at Chicago, but lost the match when the card was rearranged.

SOCCER

by TOM BIRKS

At the meeting of the West Penn the Keystone club of the Westmoreland League was called in to explain its open defiance of the local mandate. The governing body allowed the miners' club to still retain the trophy, but there is sure to be an aftermath of the whole thing. Clubs cannot get away with that stuff in organized soccer.

Now that the Heidelburg game is off all roads should lead to Garfield Park on Sunday, when the Pittsburgh International hooks up with the Lafayettes in the national open cup preliminary. It is understood that the Ekequist aggregation is going to be strengthened for this game. Well from its showing in past games a little bracing will be needed if the club wishes to continue in the race.

There seems to be a rift between the Chartiers Valley League and the local referees' association. Apparently the rift in the lute hinges upon the fees which the knights of the whistle will get for the games. Well, conditions are admittedly bad around the mining districts, but a little get together between all concerned should straighten out matters.

It was announced by the officials of the American League last evening that there will not be any league game arranged for Heidelberg on Sunday to fill the gap occasioned by the calling off of the cup ties. There is not a team available to meet the Green and Gold cracks, so the Balsarini aggregation will face another idle week.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Baltimore—Buster Brown defeated Joey Goodman, 10 rounds.

At Ocean Park, Cal.—Johnny Gerarden defeated Sammy Bruce, 8 rounds.

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD OF HELEN JACOBS

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A secret explaining sudden and surprising lapses in the play of Miss Helen Jacobs in the women's national tennis championship was revealed today by Fred Hawthorne in the New York Herald Tribune.

Several weeks before the tournament began at Forest Hills, the California star's mother, confided, Hawthorne writes, that her daughter was suffering from appendicitis, and that physicians had advised an immediate operation.

The operation, performed last week, released the writer from his obligation of secrecy.

Surgeons in charge of Miss Jacobs' case said her condition during the tournament lowered her vitality and weakened her powers of resistance to a considerable degree. In spite of her defeats Miss Jacobs, with her splendid sporting spirit, refused to explain why she could not hold to her best form.

MEET PLEASANT VALLEY

The Ryan gridders will open their season at home on Sunday, having the Pleasant Valley outfit at Rand Field as the attraction. The Ryan club played and defeated most of the leading contenders for the crown last season. The Ryans will only book the best attractions in the tri-state district for Sunday games at Hays. Sunday's game starts at 2:30 p. m.

FRED HERSCHE WEDS

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 29.—Fred C. Hersche of Parker's Landing, former star in the Franklin-Oil City two-team league of 1919-20, is a benedict. Word came from Sheboygan, Wis., today that he had married Miss Esther Pape, society editor of the Sheboygan Press, last week. They are now on their wedding trip. Hugo played ball in Sheboygan this season.

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of my beloved son, Carrell M. Hunzeker who died "Over There," September 29, 1918.

Dearer to my memory than words can tell,
Are thoughts of my soldier boy I loved so well.
My loss was great, the blow was hard,
Cover him gently with autumn leaves,
Be careful to rustle low.
Whisper to him of one who grieves
In silence and misses him so.

Sadly missed by his heart-broken mother, BLANCHE M. HUNZEKER.

REPORT SHOWS FARMERS MORE PROSPEROUS

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 29.—Farmers are more prosperous than they were a year ago, the Department of Agriculture reports.

Improvement in the agricultural situation as compared with a year ago is shown in the October 1 report of the Bureau of Agricultural Economics which places the general index of purchasing power of farm products at 88, compared with 83 a year ago. The 1909-14 average was issued as representing 100.

Summing up the season's apparent production and returns, the bureau says "it can probably be called an average year for the South; for the wheat belt a good year in the north and a fair year in the south; for the corn belt a fair year in the West and a poor year in the East; for the far west a good year in the range states and Pacific northwest."

THE PRODUCE MARKET

A fairly active market for all lines of fruit and vegetables opened this morning at the local wholesale produce district. Little change in the prices of vegetables was made. The poultry market was firm and the demand was good. No changes were made in the quotations and the supplies were moderate.

BUGS BAER Says

MR. MAGRUDER is demonstrating what happens when a rear admiral comes to the front.

His first broadside carried away Mr. Dawes' pipe and sunk three cruising peace delegates.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

His second salute of sixteen royal squawks discantled the heavy coast ink wells and left our Atlantic fortifications at the mercy of appropriation committees.

Mr. Magruder's fountain pen got overheated last week. Knowing the danger from Spencerian sparks, the Rear Admiral flooded a magazine with constructive criticism.

Instead of tempering the wind to the shorn lamb, he bobbed the lamb and turned on a gale.

The Admiral wishes to compliment Congress on its seaworthy extravagance and cites them for meritorious misconduct of expenses during times of peril to admirals.

Mr. Admiral Magruder seems to know what he is talking about. Which is another good reason in Washington for keeping quiet.

Heavy blue pencils are projecting at all angles from the turrets of the U. S. S. Magruder.

But the Congressional Appropriation Committee is going to fight to the last moan. That mob hasn't given up a ship since Lawrence told them not to on Lake Erie in 1812.

It looks as if Magruder is dropping his depth bombs in a waste basket. The best he can do is to stir up canceled business.

The Navy is simply something to talk about any time the farmers ask for a subsidy.

When Wyoming wants another mountain postoffice then the subject is switched back to the Navy.

Epaulets and braid are Magruder's idea of very damp ammunition. He says the Navy is over-officered and that most of our admirals should be sunk on pensions.

Ever since the Geneva naval limitation conference was turned into a beauty contest the Admiral has been steaming up until he developed a trial speed of thirty accusing fingers an hour.

Mr. Magruder's morose opinions of our glorious Navy are not without supporters.

The Army agrees with Mr. Magruder.

On "LIGHT-HEADED WOMEN."

Some WOMEN
Are like toy BALLOONS:
They are flat,
Colorless and LIMP until Someone comes along and PUFFS them up
With COMPLIMENTS.
Then when they are
All puffed up
With the HOT AIR of Flattery, they Become COLORFUL,
And for the MOMENT are Often ALLURING and AMUSING.
Some can even BLOW
Themselves up.
These often GATHER
Together at some PUBLIC
Place, and like a BUNCH of BALLOONS held
In the hand of FATE,
Await SELECTION.
VAIN and empty
WOMEN are at the mercy
Of DESTINY.
While PRETTY they get tossed
From hand to hand,
But EVENTUALLY
They EXHAUST themselves,
And others. They are SO
Light-headed.

Citizens Probing Vote Are Worthy of Support

A branch of the Pennsylvania Elections Association is being established here. Its purpose is to act as a watchdog of the ballot box, and it already has begun to show its teeth. Its investigators are at work on returns of the recent primary about which there is suspicion.

The sponsors of this movement are not disappointed office seekers. They are not trying to make nuisances of themselves. They are earnestly sincere citizens who are determined that pollution of the ballot box shall cease.

Grant Curry, Mrs. Mary Flinn Lawrence, Francis S. Guthrie, State Senator Cadwallader M. Barr, Hill Burgwin, A. O. Fording, J. D. Hailman, A. Marshall Thompson, dean of the School of Law, University of Pittsburgh—these are names of some who are prominent in the new movement.

Thomas J. Walker, who is here as secretary of the state association, to get things going locally, says the branch is to be permanent and that its activities will not be confined to sporadic activity just at election time, but will continue all the time.

It is a good movement, and it will be supported. Citizens of Allegheny county are upright in the overwhelming majority. Some of us have been deluded, perhaps, by a false conception of fealty to political bosses, but at heart we are all good Americans.

As Secretary Walker points out, some of us do not understand that most political bosses do not seek leadership in order to be of service to the public. They want it so they may profit through bootlegging, vice and graft. More and more citizens are realizing this.

Results of the last primary indicate that the bosses have lost a great deal of their grip. An aroused community will toss them aside entirely.

Salvation Army Appeals: Pittsburgh Will Respond

The Salvation Army needs $105,500 to carry on its great and good work for the year which will end September 30, 1928. To obtain this fund it will conduct a campaign from October 1 to October 15. The record of the Salvation Army and the merit of its appeal to "the heart of Pittsburgh" are the assurance that Pittsburgh and Allegheny county in general will respond with their usual open-handed generosity.

The drive for humanity's money begins with a dinner tonight. Among those prominently active in the effort are Judge Joseph Buffington, George E. Alter, Lieut. Col. Joseph Atkinson, divisional commander of the Salvation Army here, and Alexander Dunbar, treasurer of the home service fund, for which $67,700 of the total amount to be raised is appropriated in the year's budget.

Those familiar with the welfare work of the Salvation Army need not be told of the extent of the relief given to the needy. They know that it is very great and that assistance given always is to those who most require help—families in want, unfortunate women, sickly children and "down, but never out" men.

"Charity," to quote another Army slogan, "is love in motion." That is a thought for all. It is a new definition of the greatest of virtues. Let us put love in motion with a good will, remembering that he gives twice who gives quickly.

The Nation Should Stop Insensate Waste of Oil

Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work, in a statement to the Hearst newspapers, emphasized the desperate situation of the oil industry, whose wasteful methods of production the President intended to curb by his Federal Oil Conservation Board, appointed in December, 1924. Secretary Work is chairman of the President's board.

The Secretary of the Interior points out that a year ago the Federal Oil Conservation Board in its report urged the industry to adopt remedial measures. In particular, it was suggested that the oil lawyers should aid in devising legislation which would enable oil operators to halt the present overproduction. Secretary Work now says:

"A year has now passed, the peak of production of oil is endangering the health of the industry—indeed the very life of the smaller and weaker companies. Yet no constructive move has been made towards relieving the pressure of competition which now bears so heavily upon the thousands of units in the business which the country cannot afford to see go down and out. Are we to indulge in this watchful waiting for disaster?"

A year ago, September, 1926, Secretary Work's Federal Oil Conservation Board reported a shocking instance of waste in oil production. Bear in mind that his instance covers the waste in a single field, Santa Fe Springs, in Southern California:

"In this small but highly productive field, 45 operating companies competed, drilling more wells than necessary, letting loose an unneeded flood of oil on the market, with resultant disaster to the price structure, and creating conditions of increasing operating costs.

"The total losses attributed to this competitive struggle in a single field are estimated as in excess of $200,000,000. But even greater perhaps than this economic waste involving a loss of the industry, is the loss to the country involved in the dissipation of gas pressure, leaving in the upper sands oil that might well have been recovered to an amount equal to that actually taken out under the rush methods of competitive drilling and producing."

The President's board means that, if sane accepted engineering methods had been applied, TWICE AS MUCH OIL would have been recovered from Santa Fe Springs as was actually recovered. If this is not waste, what is waste?

The oil industry is not only wasting its own property. In a peculiar sense oil is the nation's property. It is the most indispensable material in modern war. For the oil industry to waste and lose half of our limited oil supply, is to cripple the nation's ability for self-defense in the future.

Is the Federal government impotent to intervene? Henry L. Doherty, president of the Cities Service Company and one of the most brilliant men in the oil industry, says no. He says that the Federal government has the power and the duty to step in and see that this national resource is handled with regard for the national welfare. He says his lawyers have advised him that "to assume that the war power is so limited that we are compelled to see our most important munition of war ruthlessly wasted, is nothing less than absurd; and that any lawyer or group of lawyers who so contend simply make the legal profession look ridiculous."

In the next Congress a law will be introduced providing for a regulatory commission to enforce practical conservation of oil, to allow reasonable reduction of drilling and production, and to protect the public against any price extortion that might result from restricted output. It will be for the benefit of the oil industry, and for the benefit of consumers, just as in the case of Federal regulation of railroads.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

To Be An Astronomer

"I wish to know if you have to go to high school, college or university to study astronomy. How many years will it take?—G. L. P."

IF YOU are looking forward to a career as working astronomer you should at least go through high school, in order to obtain the elements of science necessary for a thorough understanding of astronomy. You should then seek experience in the use of astronomical instruments and the making of astronomical calculations, which could best be accomplished by associating yourself with an observatory as pupil or assistant.

The things you particularly need to study in order to become an astronomer are mathematics, physics and chemistry, especially the first two. The total time required, if you took a college course after high school and then special instruction in astronomical work, would probably be from four to six years.

But perhaps your ambition does not aim at your becoming a professional astronomer, but you wish simply to know the chief facts and to understand the main principles of the subject. For this purpose even a high school education is not strictly necessary. But you should have a good knowledge of what is taught in the common schools, supplemented by reading of popular works on astronomy, and by personal study of the stars, constellations, moon, sun and planets. Here you may need the aid that can be derived from association with others interested in the same subject.

A popular astronomical club or society ought to exist in every town of a thousand inhabitants, as surely as a church or a library. It should have a small telescope and a collection of astronomical books and periodicals. Astronomy is the greatest liberator of the mind, the greatest dispeller of superstition, the greatest promoter of mental peace. I do not pretend to explain the marvelous soothing and uplifting effect produced by the simple contemplation of the stars, but it is something that probably few human beings have not experienced in some degree, at one time or another.

If you wish, while not making of yourself a professional astronomer, to do, nevertheless, some useful work in the science, you may prepare for that without any great expenditure of time or effort. There are fields for astronomical exploration lying open to everybody who will take the trouble to watch the heavens with a certain regularity, and to record carefully what he sees. Or join the American Association of Variable Star Observers, whose headquarters are at Harvard College Observatory, and help collect statistics about the behavior of distant suns whose peculiarities may contain a key to valuable knowledge concerning our own sun.

Work for Yours

MOST of your many dreams of youth have not come true.

In all, you pictured yourself at middle age as possessed of considerable money and social position.

But in none did you see the necessity for hard work.

Somehow you were to get what you wished for without study or work.

Your dreams have in a large measure guided you in your effort or your lack of effort.

Perhaps you have worked long enough to satisfy comparatively small demands, but somehow you never got down to serious, concentrated action.

You have put in very little application but you think because you have worked for a living something good should come your way.

But you never put into your every day efforts half the energy and earnest endeavor of which you are capable.

Your own convenience, your own enjoyment, came first.

And now you blame your luck for not realizing the dreams of your youth, when you were not willing to put all of self into the effort.

Gratitude

MISSIONARIES are accustomed to receive some strange letters from natives. Here is a letter of gratitude which arrived a short time ago at a well-known medical mission hospital in India:

"Dear and Fair Madam—I have much pleasure to inform you that my dearly unfortunate wife will be no longer under your care, she having left this world for the next on the night of the twenty-seventh ult. For your help in this matter I shall ever remain grateful.—Yours reverently."

Emergency Stop

THE train came to an abrupt standstill. Someone had pulled the communication cord. The guard ran along the line until he saw a young man leaning out of a first-class compartment.

"Did you pull the cord, sir?" he asked.

"That's right," smiled the traveler.

"Well, what's wrong?" demanded the official.

"Nothing very much, old boy," came the bland answer. "I merely wondered if you would care to come in and make up a four at bridge. We've only got three in here."—London Tit-Bits.

AND WE had come,

SO CLOSE to it.

THAT THE buildings hid it.

FROM FURTHER view.

AND THEN all at once,

* * *

AND ALL about us.

FROM EVERYWHERE.

CAME SHRIEKING whistles.

AND FIRE wagons.

AND THE taxi driver.

YELLED BACK at me.

"IT'S A fire all right!"

AND PULLED in to the curb.

TO AVOID being hit.

AND I jumped out.

AND PAID him off.

AND WE both ran around.

AND WATCHED the fire.

AND JUST as I lost him.

I HEARD him say.

* * *

I THANK you.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

What makes old age so sad is not that our joys but that our hopes cease.
—Richter.

O. O. McINTYRE

In California

CORONADO, Sept. 29.—This is the smart residential section of San Diego, situated across the Bay and reached by ferry. Coronado is a peninsula connected with the mainland by the "Silver Strand" beach, a narrow strip curving southwards to the Mexican line, but in effect comprising an island separating ocean and bay. (I got that off a folder.)

The Hotel del Coronado is one of those rambling old wooden structures where old ladies, who have outlived two husbands and three poodles, rock on verandahs and young lovers whisper sweet nothings in the most gorgeous inside courtyard I ever beheld.

Servants have grown white-haired in service and many aged remittance ladies have not been outside the hotel grounds in 20 years. The "bell hop" who carried our luggage was silver-haired and past 50. He has been answering the call of "Front" 27 years.

It is the last of the old American plan hotels with menus featuring every mentionable dish three times a day. One walks around the patio, splotched with colorful foliage, to see children dining with their nurses, retired business men receiving market reports, gouty gentlemen who blow their noses with resounding blasts, middle-aged folk playing bridge and youngsters dancing. Work seems far away.

Bed and living rooms are screened in porch affairs and at night patrons are lulled to sleep by the rythmic swish of the Pacific. Along the beach children gallop on ponies as they do at Atlantic City and older folk go in for aquaplaning, sailing and canoeing.

People live sanely. There is no rattle of the cocktail shaker around 5 o'clock in the afternoon. Gossip about the noonday temperature is of greater import than the hoodwinking of a millionaire by the reigning cutie of a girl show.

In the lobbies after dinner you see lavender and old lace ladies reading Ivanhoe and men of ripe years discussing their bad day at golf. (I have never yet heard a golfer who had a good day.) By 10 o'clock at night everybody seems to be abed.

Coronado has a Tent City, containing several hundred tent houses and palm cottages near the ocean. There are tent schools for the children and many of the residents never wear anything but bathing suits. They even boast of derelict beach combers.

* * *

On the boat crossing San Diego Bay a ferryman chanced to see a luggage tag with a New York address. He was raised on Canal street and worked for years around West street docks. His attitude was one of pity. "The best I got out of New York was a hall bedroom," he said, "and out here I have a home and garden." And he showed us a pocket picture of a neat bungalow with the wife and children grouped on the front porch. People away from New York pity those left behind, but somehow they want to go back themselves.

On the other hand a dining room waitress who came from One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, Harlem, talked longingly of her native city. "I have been here two years," she said, "and it is like spending two years in the suburbs of Glen Falls. I'm fed up on oranges, flowers and climate and I'll exchange them for a little snowstorm and a tune from a barrel organ."

* * *

It is not unusual for a newcomer to arrive in San Diego at 10 in the morning and own a home before dinner. And as likely as not the "For Sale" sign will remain on it until the next occupant arrives. People buy homes here as casually as a hotel patron rents a room.

* * *

Before breakfast from a window one sees bronzed young men and woman with canoe paddles going down to the bay. Others are swinging off with tennis rackets. The languid notion of coffee and rolls in bed we know in the East is unknown here. People work up an appetite for breakfast with as much enthusiasm as most people work up an appetite for dinner.

Diabetes

By DR. FRANK CRANE

The old text book used to say that diabetes was an incurable disease.

It was so listed in the Encyclopedia Brittanica, and when people got this trouble they threw up their hands and gave in.

It is an insidious malady and marks all kinds of people for its own.

Insulin is not a cure for diabetes, as insulin merely takes the sugar from the blood. The body keeps on making sugar and the blood fills up again with it. Insulin, therefore, is only a temporary relief of the most conspicuous symtoms of diabetes.

The cure for diabetes is much advertised by quacks. There is a herb from Mexico that has been exploited as a remedy, makers of electric belts say they can cure it and a number of other cures are on the market.

The trouble is that none of them have been able to stand the scrutiny of the cold eyes of medical science. So far, a diet more or less strict is the only way to control this trouble.

It is not so fatal to older people as to younger. Its cause seems to be in deficient metabolism, that is, something wrong with the apparatus that transforms our food into human tissues.

Recently a mysterious substance called myrtillin, made by extracting the juices from huckleberry leaves, was announced by Frederick M. Allen of Morristown, N. J., before a meeting of the federation of American socities for experimental biology, as a probable cure for the trouble.

He says cautiously: "It is a mysterious substance that is obtained from the leaves of huckleberries. What it is we do not know. There is a possibility that it is a vitamin. Our experiments so far show that in selected diabetes cases it is effective."

This is a gleam of hope, for Dr. Allen is about the most respectable expert on the treatment of diabetes that there is in the country.

He warns against too much hopefulness, but tells of experiments carried out with much success.

If he succeeds in producing a cure that will stand the test of the medical profession for this trying malady, he will be indeed one of the benefactors of the human race.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Reward

WHAT have you gained when your task is done, what is the payment for toil-filled days? Handful of silver at set of sun, smile of a loved one or word of praise? Many a worker who earns such pay takes it with thankfulness, well-content, heedless that with it he day by day reaps rarer coin that cannot be spent. For with each task that is ably done something of power has the toiler gained; greatest of gifts that by work is won, strength for new labor is thus attained. Duty to duty and task to task, so winds the pathway, still up and on: vaster reward could no worker ask than this, the fruit of past toil well done.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

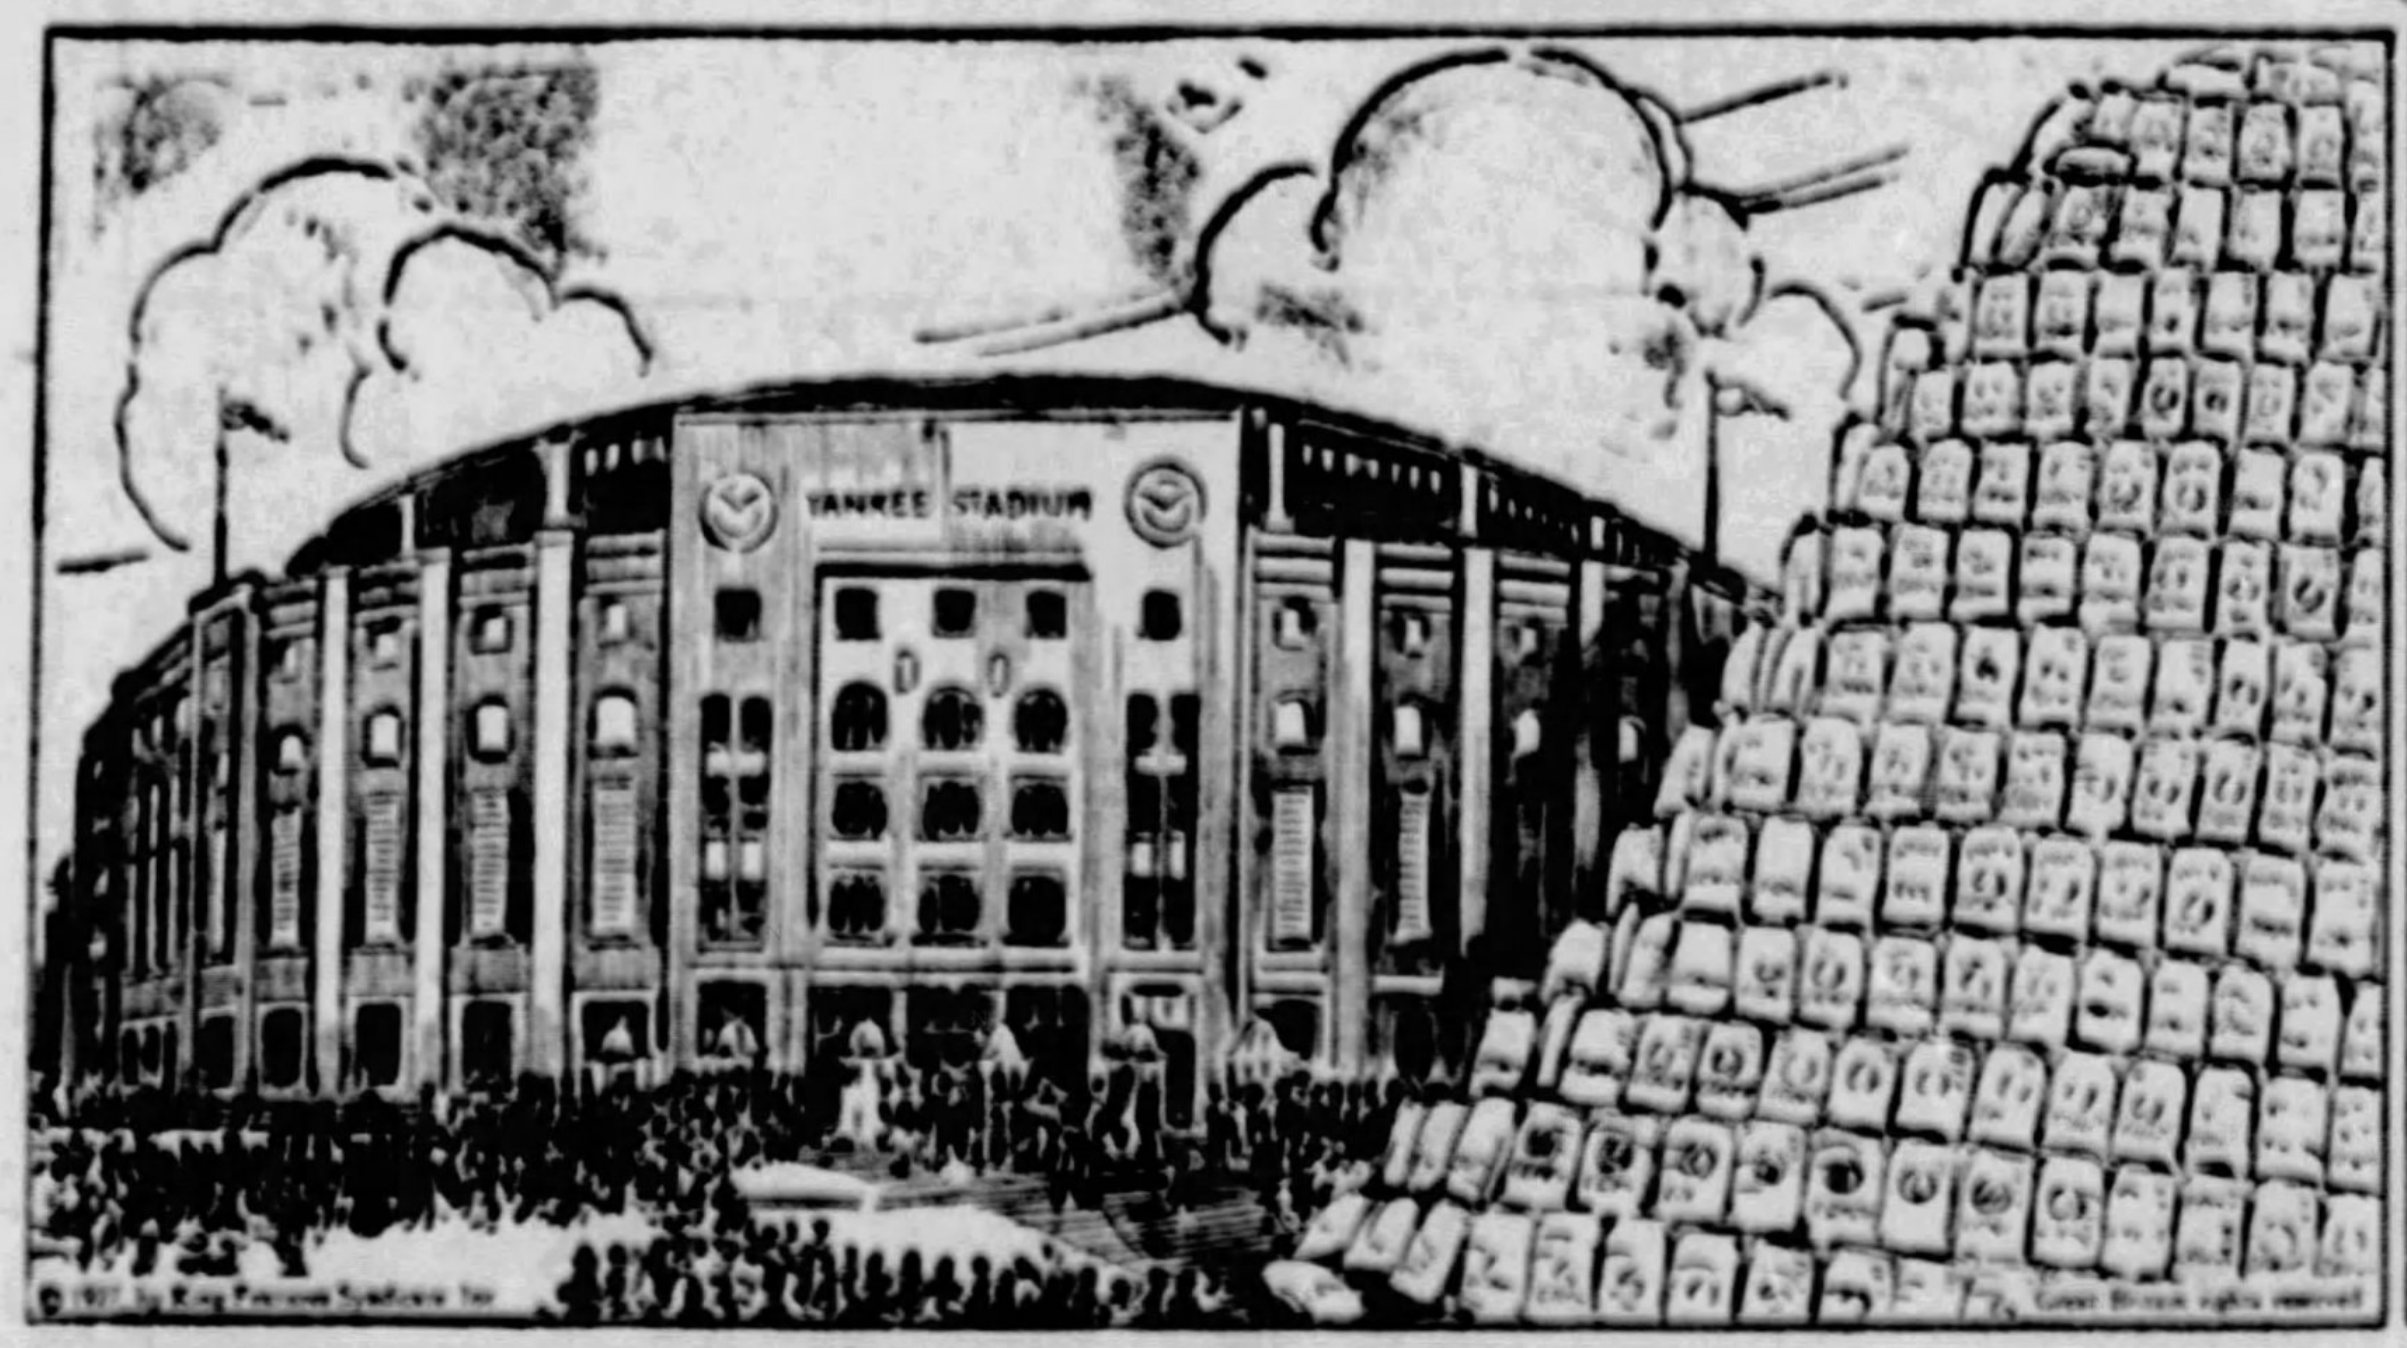
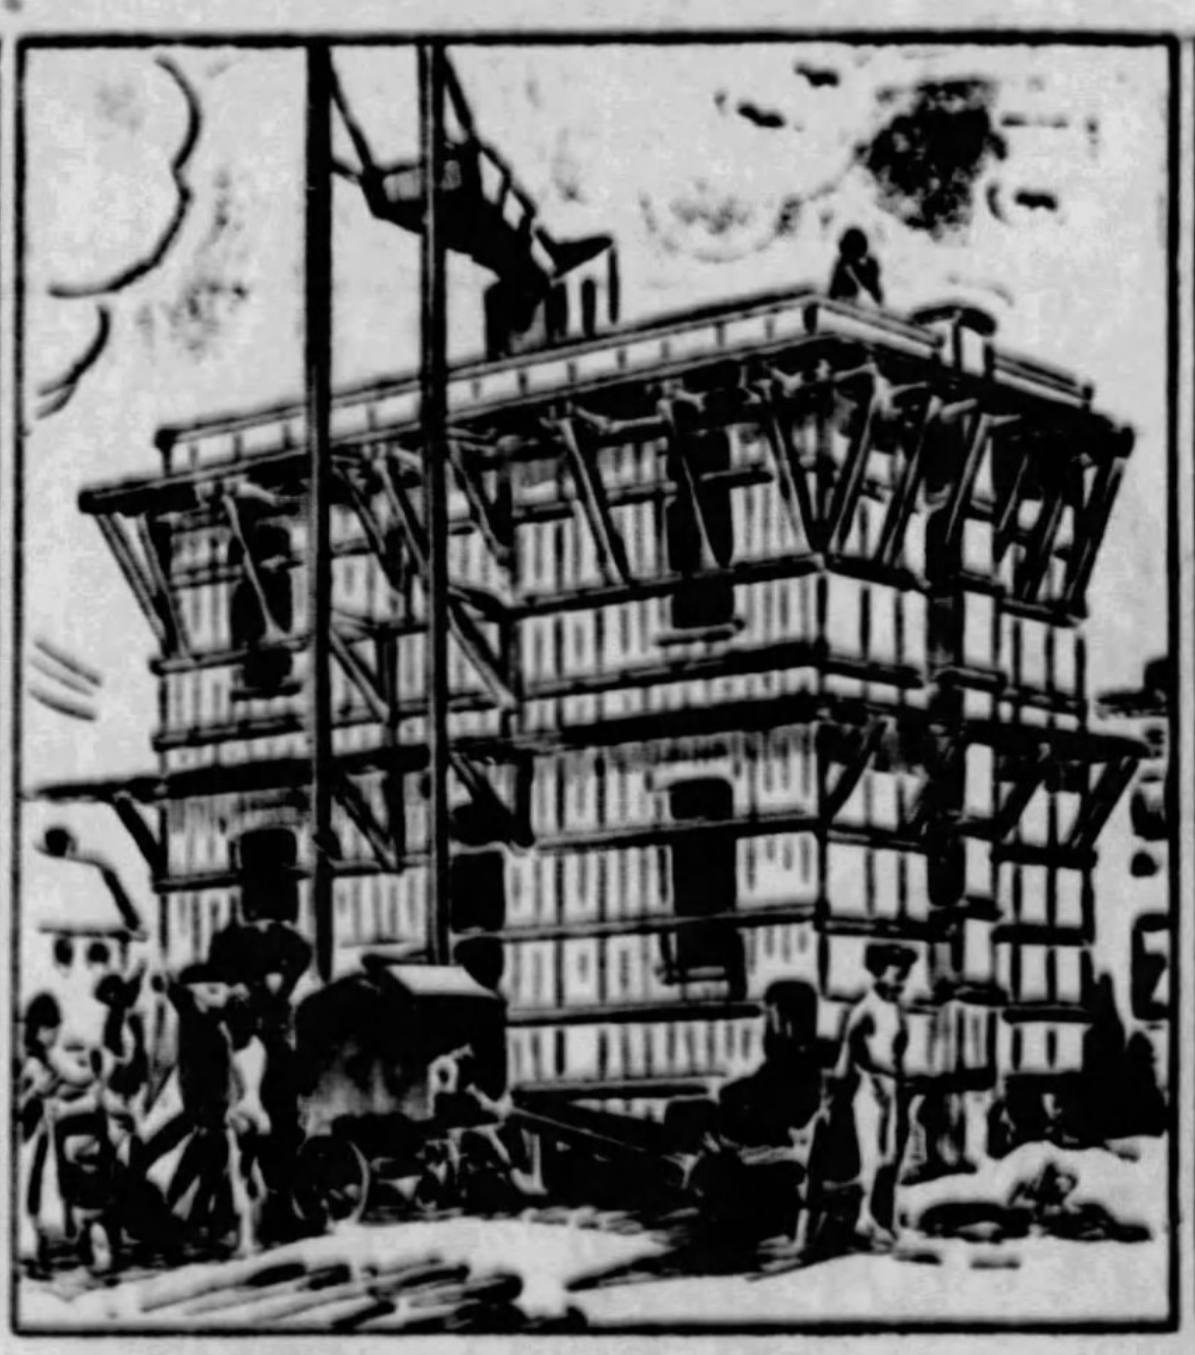
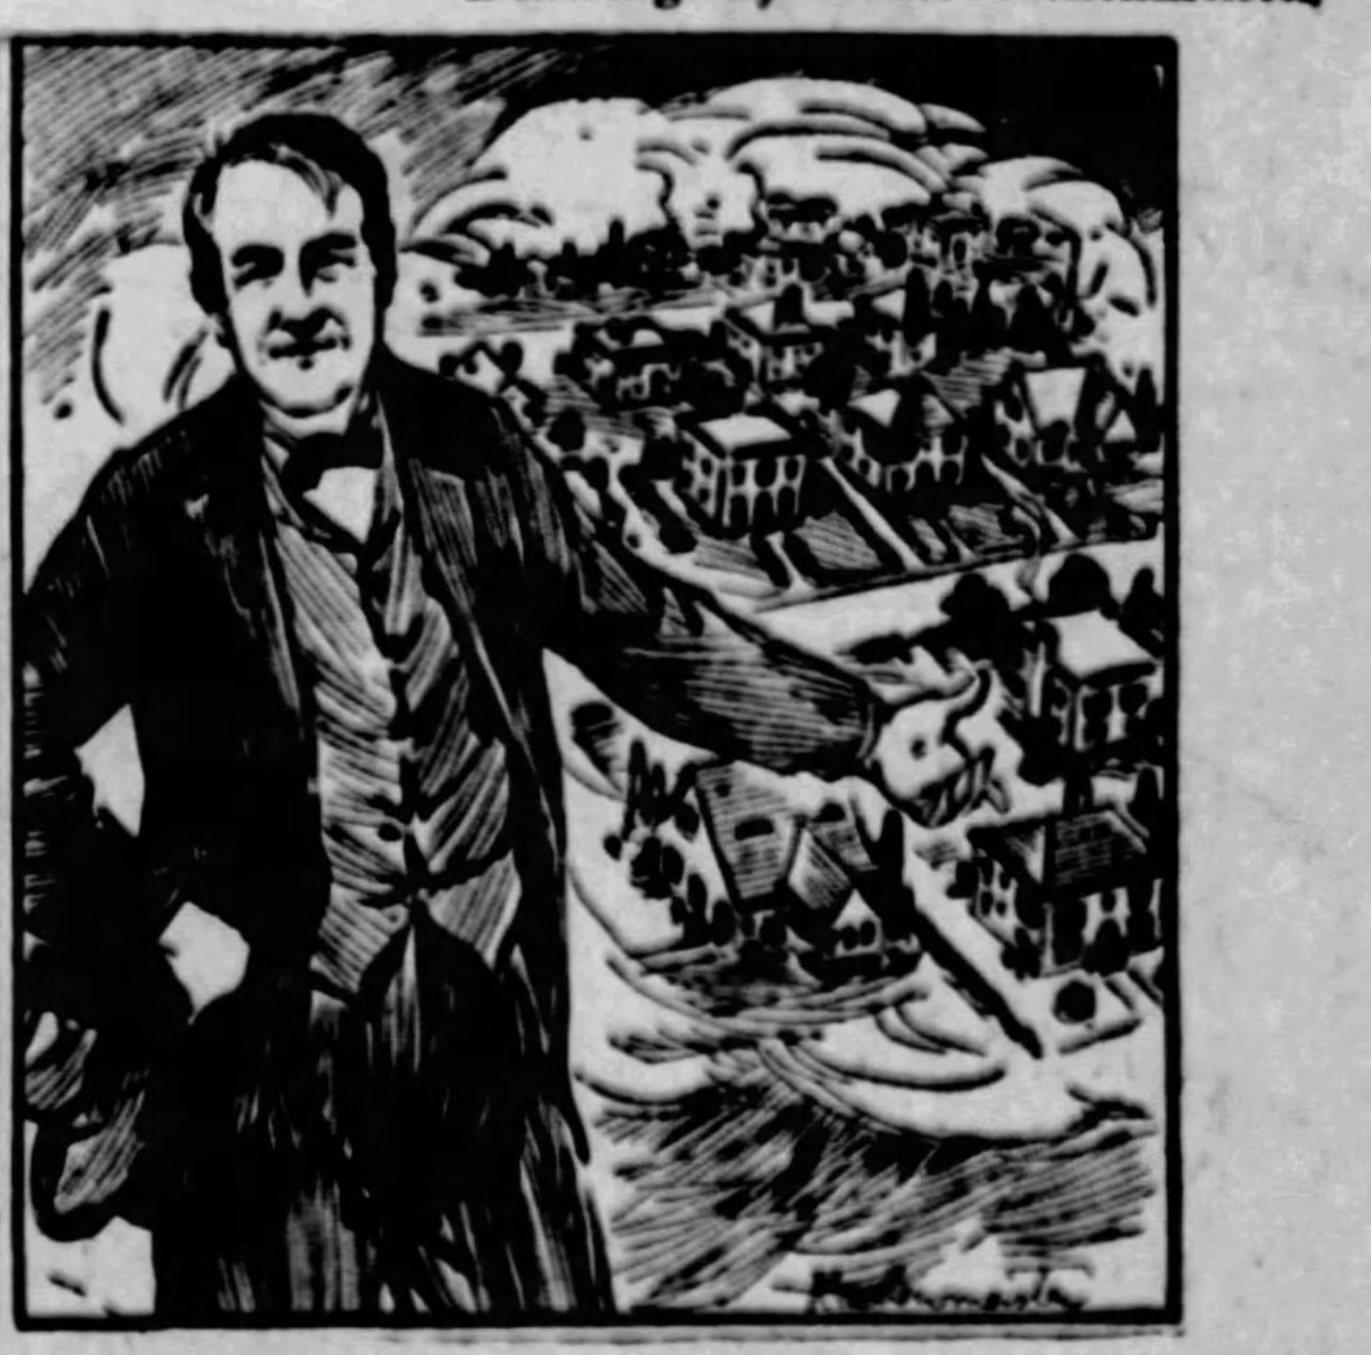
Text by Arthur J. Palmer
Drawings by Frank Kuchenmeister



WHEN combined with steel, Portland cement gives the architect and builder material of almost unlimited possibilities. Examples of this form of construction are seen all over our country. Great office buildings and industrial plants, immense bridges, war memorials, outdoor auditoriums, stadiums, etc. Millions of barrels of cement are consumed annually in such work. Edison's contributions to the cement industry in general are of incalculable value. He has always striven for perfection. He felt that a finer quality of Portland cement could be made and he made it. In the Yankee (baseball) Stadium, New York City, 180,000 bags of cement were used.



FOR several years a "pet" idea of Edison's was the construction of cement houses for workingmen which could be rented for a small amount per month. He arrived at the conclusion that a house cast in one piece would be the answer. Scoffed at by the "experts," he went ahead and perfected a satisfactory method, as shown above.



HE pictured in his mind entire communities of wage earners living in "poured" houses of various styles. However, Edison never completed a poured house himself. He carried his ideas to a point that proved they would work, then left it to others who might be interested to do the actual work. (Continued tomorrow.)
